ASQUITH WILLING TO COMPROMISE ON HOME RULE

Premier Insists Some Bill Must Be Passed At Once

NOT FOR CONFERENCE

May Let Part of Ulster Continue Under Imperial Government

LADYBANK, Scotland, Oct. 25—Premier Asquith, straight from the recent meetings of the British cabinet, gave the country tonight the eagerly awaited decision of the government on the Irish problem, which recently has become befogged by various proposals for conferences of the political parties and by divergent utterances of the members of the cabinet.

Asquith came out emphatically against the suggested formal roundtable conference, but betrayed a leaning towards a compromise on the lines suggested by the first lord of the admiralty, Winston Spencer Churchill; namely, leaving the northeast corner of Ulster to remain under the imperial parliament for a limited period.

Anxious as he showed himself to be for a friendly settlement, Premier Asquith unhesitatingly announced his decision to establish a Parliament in Ireland in accordance with his promise, and also if the opposition declined his suggested adjustment of the Ulster problem to use the armed forces of the nation in carrying the law into effect.

104 BODIES TAKEN FROM DAWSON MINE

Rescuers Are Working At Risk of Lives In Wrecked Mine

DAWSON, N. M., Oct. 25.—One hundred and four bodies in all had been recovered up to late tonight from the wreckage of Mine No. 2 of the Stag Canon Fuel company after a day of the most difficult work which yet has confronted the rescue men. Recurrence of carbon dioxide in the mine this morning for six hours threatened the life of every helmet man who entered the property, and later two fires took practically every helmet man to fight the flames.

DAWSON, N. M., Oct. 25.—Momentary menace of fire in the workings of Mine No. 2 of the Stag Canon Fuel company tonight confronted the government and mine rescue officials. Two fires today hampered the rescue work, and took the attention of helmet men until they finally were smothered.

Tonight special helmet crews, fully equipped with mine fire fighting apparatus, are stationed at the air shaft, several hundred feet within the main high line, ready to respond instantly to the first report of fire. Smolders, due to the explosion in which 263 men lost their lives, are believed to exist in many of the chambers. These smolders, it is feared, will burst into flame as soon as enough oxygen has been forced into the workings to permit combustion.

Rescue men tonight have failed to penetrate chamber 19 east, the one in which many bodies are expected to be found. With fire fighting and gas clearing, the helmet men had their hands full during the day.

As a result of these additional elements of danger, only twenty-seven more bodies were brought to the surface today, making 88 the total number of recovered dead.

So many unidentified bodies have been brought to the surface that mine officials believe it possible that General Superintendent McDermott's body may have been among them. The same is true as to Henry P. McShane, the wealthy young miner from New York, though Coke Superintendent Morrow declared that he saw the body in one of the rear chambers when working with a helmet crew Thursday.

The government helmet men who this morning began their perilous task of operating an electric motor car into the mine, are continuing their work tonight. They reported tonight their expectation of reaching the main air shaft at chamber 13 before daylight. It is at this point in the mine that the rescuers have established their working base, and if the motor car can reach it the work of recovering bodies and exploration will be greatly facilitated.

ITALY TO HOLD ELECTIONS TODAY

ROME, Oct. 25.—Preparations for the general elections tomorrow have taken on a feverish character, especially in the constituencies where Socialists and Catholics are opposed. There have been some violent incidents but energetic measures have checked them quickly. In addition to the police and the carabineers the government is employing troops, including cavalry in Rome.

MRS. PANKHURST SAYS SHE WILL REFUSE TO BE TRIED NEXT TIME

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffrage leader, told a large audience here tonight the story of the social and political wrongs against the women of England, and of the suffragets' fight for enfranchisement.

The next move of the militants, Mrs. Pankhurst said, will be to refuse to permit them trials to be held.

"If my life is spared to conclude my pending sentence of three years penal servitude I will refuse to be tried by a jury of men who are not my peers", she said. "I believe in the laws and government, but you must bring us in".

CONGRESS HALL IS REDEDICATED

President and Champ Clark Speakers At Impressive Exercises

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—Congress Hall, in historic Independence Square, where the Senate and House of Representatives sat from 1790 to 1800, was rededicated today with patriotic exercises, the occasion marking the completion of the restoration of the hall to almost its original appearance. President Wilson delivered a twenty minute address in which he harked back to the early days of the republic and contrasted men and things of those times with the present.

President Wilson, who was accompanied from Washington by Secretaries Wilson and Houston, Speaker Champ Clark, Ambassador Jusserand of France and a delegation of members of the Senate and the House, was given an encouraging reception.

"There has come over me since I sat down here a sense of deep solemnity," the President said, "because it has seemed to me that I saw ghosts crowding in, in a great assemblage of spirits, no longer visible to us, but whose influence we still feel as we feel the moulding power of history itself.

"I can feed my own mind as happily upon the circumstances of the revolutionary and constitutional period as you can," the President continued, "but I cannot feed my thoughts with them in Washington now, because every day problems arise which wear some new face and aspect. I must fall back if I would serve my conscience upon those things which are fundamental, although upon those things which are superficial. I ask myself this question: 'How are you going to assist in some small part to give the American people, and by example, the peoples of the world, more advantage, more liberty, more happiness, more substantial prosperity, and how are you going to make that prosperity a common heritage, instead of self possession?'"

IMPRESSIVE ASSEMBLAGE.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—Congress Hall in Independence Square, the building where Congress met from 1790 to 1800, was re-dedicated today after having undergone restorations to almost its original appearance. The President of the United States, the Vice President, the chief justice and associate justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, members of the Senate and House of Representatives, ambassadors from foreign lands, and the governors of the original thirteen states participated in the ceremonies.

The spectacular feature of the celebration was a big parade of soldiers and patriotic societies.

After a formal luncheon came the parade with President Wilson near the head of the line. As the President approached the historic hall a chorus of one hundred voiced greeted the nation's chief executive with patriotic song.

The old building is small, having a width of fifty feet and a depth of about seventy-five feet. For this reason only 750 persons could be crowded on the first floor where the lower House of Congress met. During the exercises today President Wilson sat in the chair occupied by John Hancock when he presided over the Continental Congress at the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It was the first time it had been used since President Grant requested the privilege of sitting in it in 1876.

Frank Miles Day of Philadelphia made a brief statement concerning the restoration of the building. Then followed its delivery to and its acceptance by the city. The oration by Speaker Champ Clark and the address of President Wilson, who stood on the rostrum of the House where Washington delivered his farewell address, followed.

As the ceremonies came to an end, a salute of twenty-one guns was fired by the warships in the Delaware river.

CONGREGATIONALS HAVE NEW CREED

Adopt Liberal Constitution By Almost Unanimous Vote of Council

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—Congregationalism, united and aggressive, as represented in its national council, ironed out its difficulties today, burnished its instruments for extending its domain in the religious field, and struck off the shackles that had bound it to an antiquated constitution, adopted almost a half century ago, when the council accepted, almost unanimously, a constitution framed by a commission of nineteen. The final vote was 642 to 1.

The document contains a new statement of doctrine, provides for the election of a general secretary with advisory powers towards the Congregational churches of the country, brings the church societies, eight in number, under the control of the national council, and changes the time of holding council meetings from every three years to every two years.

MEXICAN ELECTIONS TODAY CANDIDATES MAKE AGREEMENT DIAZ IN TERROR OF ARREST

Gamboa, De La Fuente and Calero Swear to Abide by Result---Monterey Falls to Carranza---Result of Ballot May Not be Known Several Days

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 25.—General Felix Diaz was still in Vera Cruz at 9 o'clock tonight. Colonel Vidaurrazaga, secretary to the minister of war, General Blanquet, was trying to persuade Diaz to return to the capital with him on a special train which was expected to leave at 10 o'clock.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 25.—Foreign Minister Moheno said tonight that while he had no official knowledge, information had come to him that General Felix Diaz had appealed for protection to John Lind at Vera Cruz, and, it is believed, through him was given refuge at the American consulate.

No danger threatened General Diaz, Senor Moheno said, and he added that he could not understand why Diaz had asked protection of a foreign country.

According to telegrams to business concerns having connection with Monterey the federals were still in possession of that city this afternoon.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 25.—As a final preliminary to the holding of the general elections tomorrow, all the candidates present in the capital gathered this afternoon at the national palace, at the call of President Huerta, to discuss questions relating to the future conduct of the candidates. As a result of the conference, General Huerta announced his intention to make a formal proclamation embodying the agreements arrived at.

These agreements, in general terms, were that the candidates abide by the result of tomorrow's voting. Should any candidate be shown to have polled enough votes to constitute his election, the others are to assist him in pacifying the country and placing it on a sound financial and industrial basis.

On the other hand, should there not be enough votes cast to fulfill the requirements of the law, the elections for that reason being declared of no effect, all those concerned are to aid General Huerta in every way possible to accomplish the same ends, pending the calling and holding of new elections at a future date.

The conference was attended by Frederico Gamboa, presidential candidate for the Catholic party; David De La Fuente, the Liberal Republican candidate, and Manuel Calero, candidate of the Liberal party; Jose Maria Requena, vice-presidential candidate on the ticket with General Felix Diaz; General Eugenio Rascon, Dr. Gregorio Mendizabal and Jesus Flores Magon, the other vice-presidential candidates. The conference is said to have been harmonious in the extreme, all of the candidates pledging themselves to the agreement.

ELECTION PREPARATIONS

All preparations have been completed for the elections of both president and vice-president, deputies and senators. The registration lists have been distributed to the committees that will preside over the polling places. The police who have been assigned to the various districts have been instructed to observe a strictly neutral attitude. In addition, some 4000 troops in barracks will be ready to suppress any attempt at disorder. Neither the government officials nor the candidates look for any trouble.

All the candidates have publicly exhorted their followers to do their duties at the polls, but to preserve orderly conduct. The law provides that one-third the total number of eligible voters must exercise the right of suffrage in order to make the election valid. Failing this, Congress is expected to declare the election void; whereupon General Huerta will continue president ad interim until conditions permit of new elections.

There is no excitement in the capital tonight and only a mild interest is noticeable. A very light vote is anticipated throughout the republic.

At the headquarters here of General Felix Diaz, doubt was expressed tonight that General Diaz would come here. It was explained, however, that on account of the refusal of the federal officers to transmit telegraphic messages, headquarters were out of touch with Diaz.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Official Washington awaits tonight with keen interest the outcome of tomorrow's elections in Mexico under supervision of the Huerta provisional government, recognition of which already has been denied by the American government.

Interest in the outcome was enlivened by the news of the fall of Monterey into the hands of the rebel forces, the surrounding by General Huerta to Mexico of General Felix Diaz, one of the presidential candidates, and discussion of the reported determination of the Washington administration to notify foreign powers that interference in Mexico would be regarded as an act unfriendly to the United States.

In the absence from Washington of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, the official government was silent, but reports from Paris that foreign powers were exchanging views on a proposition to cooperate with this government in some concerted Mexican policy following tomorrows elections were received with marked interest in government departments.

Significance was attached to those dispatches from abroad, coming on the heels of the reports from Washington that the President and secretary of state were at work on a pronunciamento which would define this nation's attitude with relation to the policy in Mexico of the foreign nations, and also to the statement issued in Philadelphia by Senator Bacon, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, to the effect that the interests of the United States in Mexico are "infinitely greater than the other great powers.

INTERNATIONAL UNDERSTANDING?

It was the prevailing opinion that once the elections were over and the policy of the Huerta government for the future revealed there may be found a ground for an international understanding in dealing with the perplexing situation.

Though reports from Mexico tonight indicated that election day might precipitate some trouble in certain parts of the Mexican republic, no dispatches reached the state department that indicated any cause for unusual alarm, and few serious clashes were expected. Chief interest here in the elections is the manner in which the election returns will be handled and how the vote will be canvassed, in view of the overthrow by Huerta of the legislative body which is the legally constituted authority for review of the returns.

It was because of the dissolution of Congress and the arrest of its members that the Washington administration gave notice that it could not recognize tomorrow's election.

Whether Huerta will appoint a special election board, turn the ballots over to the Supreme Court or permit them to be reviewed by a new Congress shown to have been chosen on the face of the returns, is not known here. Whatever method is resorted to, it is pointed out, would have no effect upon the determination of this government not to recognize the result.

RETURNS MAY BE SLOW

Plans were made tonight at the state department to keep in communication with Mexican points tomorrow as closely as possible. Secretary Bryan returned late tonight, to be at his office on Sunday. Owing to the demoralized condition of the sources of communication in Mexico there was no expectation here that any definite news of the election would be known for many days. Returns, it was pointed out, eventually might show a majority for no candidate. In this case there has been discussed the possibility that General Huerta would still hold the reins of power, a new legislature might be proclaimed and Huerta again chosen provisional President.

Numerous private advices reached Washington tonight that confirm the fall of Monterey to the revolutionists and this, it is believed, would have the effect of encouraging revolting forces in other sections of the republic.

Other advices told of several attacks upon plantation towns in the vicinity of San Luis Potosi by revolutionists. In this vicinity the federal military operations were reported as not very effective.

EXPECTING ARREST.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 25.—General Felix Diaz decided to remain at Vera Cruz for the night. It is possible that he may accompany Colonel Vidarrenzaga to Mexico City on Sunday morning.

Expecting arrest at any minute, subjected to repeated calls by Colonel Vidarrazaga, representative of the war department, urging him to accept General Huerta's invitation to return to the capital and forced to listen to friends who occupied rooms with him and who talked lugubriously of mysterious disappearances, General Diaz was nervous and dejected at the close of the day. He tentatively promised to consider a trip to Mexico City if he were permitted to take along as a companion Senor Miguerno, a native of the town of Oaxaca, in which Diaz was born. Miguerno is now a prisoner here. He is a strong partisan of Diaz and it is believed that Diaz is actuated by a desire to prevent his friend from arousing the Indians in his state to revolt.

Diaz has practically been a prisoner, whether by official acts or by his own conception of affairs is not known. He has assumed that any attempt to leave his quarters at the hotel would be followed by his arrest, and since hetering his rooms on Thursday night he has not ventured out. The streets about the building are patrolled by plain clothes men and the roofs of buildings are similarly guarded.

STILL ARMY OFFICER.

General Diaz is still an army officer, but for some reason the war department has not sent him any orders as a soldier. In case he receives such orders he probably would go to the capital without question.

The proximity of his quarters to the American consulate has given rise to speculation by Mexicans that he would attempt to gain there the official protection of the American flag, but unless he personally presents himself he will not receive such protection. It is not expected that Consul Canada will offer him asylum, but the consul will not refuse it if solicited. The feature of such an arrangement, which is interesting to Mexicans, is that should Diaz go to the consulate and remain there tomorrow he would be technically on foreign soil on election day, which would bar him from election to the presidency, according to constitutional lawyers.

The garrison of the town has been strengthened since the arrival of General Diaz and an inspection of troops took place today.

AMERICA AS HOME OF SELF-GOVERNED PEOPLE OUR IDEAL

SWARTHMORE, Oct. 25.—It was while extolling the spirit with which William Penn sought to establish "a free commonwealth" in America that the President incidentally revealed his thoughts on present day problems. His utterances, it is known, reflect the ideas which the Washington administration is preparing to announce to the nations of the world in a formal note on the policy of the United States toward Mexico.

"I would not be interested", the President said, "in celebrating the memory of William Penn if his conquest had been merely a material one. Sometimes we have been laughed at by foreigners in particular, for boasting of the size of the American continent, the size of our own domain as a nation, for they have naturally suggested that we did not make it. But I claim that every race and every man is as big as the thing he takes possession of and that the size of America is in some sense a standard of the size and capacity of the American people; but the extent of the American continent is not what gives America distinction in the annals of the world. It is the professed purpose of the conquest, which was to see to it that every foot of that land should be the home of free self-governed people, who should have no government whatever which did not rest upon the consent of the governed. We would like to believe that all this hemisphere is devoted to the same sacred purpose, and that nowhere a government endures which is stained by blood or supported by anything but the consent of the governed."

There also was a reference to international affairs in a preceding speech by Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, an alumnus of the Quaker college who induced the President to visit Swarthmore.

From Pennsylvania's successes," he said "we may not learn to be assured that free government may exist and extend with liberty of conscience and an equal share of political freedom for every man upon this continent while we "fire no rifle and trust to no sword."

ENGLAND AWAITS ELECTION RESULTS

LONDON, Oct. 25. — The British government is awaiting quietly the outcome of the Mexican elections, believing that they will help in solving the difficulties of that much perplexed country and that when they have been disposed of, the United States, Great Britain and the other interested powers will find a common ground for action tending to bring about the desired peace in the Southern neighbor land of the United States.

At any rate, the British government does not wish to interfere, and declares that it has not interfered, in any way, with the international affairs of Mexico. Every move it has made has been taken simply with the object of protecting its interests. Even now, while other European powers are sending warships to the disturbed area, it is pointed out that Great Britain has refrained from doing so because it believes there is no danger.

So far as the relations between the United States and England are concerned, there has not been any development since Ambassador Walter H. Page visited Sir Edward Grey at the foreign office last Monday, and none is expected until after the result of the Mexican elections is known. Sir Edward Grey will not return to London until Tuesday, while other officials of the British foreign office directly concerned, following the lead of their chief, are spending their accustomed long week-end in the country.

CARRANZA REFUSES PART IN ELECTION

HERMOSILLO, Sonora, Oct. 25.—Venustiano Carranza, leader of the Constitutionalists, reiterated today his previous assertions that in no circumstances would he participate in the elections tomorrow nor admit that any elections can legally be held in Mexico at the present time.

General Carranza's repetition of this declaration was called forth by the arrival in Hermosillo of Bernardo Calero, campaigning in the interests of the candidacy of his father, Manuel Calero, for the presidency. He sought an audience with Carranza but was refused it.

General Felipe Angeles, who was formally appointed sub-secretary of the war and navy departments of Carranza's Constitutionalist cabinet, assumed his duties today. It was understood no secretary would be appointed at present.

Advices from Governor Viveros of Sinaloa, were to the effect that the entire southern part of that state was in the hands of the Constitutionalists. A large force of federals attempted yesterday to make their way southward from Mazatlan, but the Constitutionalists gave them battle at Venadillos, a few miles south, and drove them back. It was reported that the federals' loss was 300.

SPANISH CABINET IS FORCED TO RESIGN BY VOTE IN PARLIAMENT

MADRID, Oct. 25.—At the opening of the Spanish parliament today a vote of confidence in the government was rejected 106 to 100. A number of the deputies abstained from voting.

GUARD KILLED IN STRIKE BATTLE

Thousand Shots Fired, Mostly At Long Range, At Trinidad

TRINIDAD, Colo., Oct. 25.—In a battle between striking miners and guards this afternoon, which lasted from 2:30 o'clock until 5 o'clock this evening, one of the guards was killed.

A striker, a Montenegrin, was shot through the arm, though not seriously wounded.

The battle started when deputies who had gone to the depot to meet the train were fired upon by strikers who had left the colony and entrenched themselves at the overhead bridge of the Colorado and Southeastern, a half mile south of the depot. Over a thousand shots were fired and that more were not killed was due to the fact that most of the shooting was done at long range.

ANTI-JEW RIOTS FEARED IN RUSSIA

Inflammatory Articles Published Tending to Arouse the People

KIEV, Oct. 25.—As the trial of Mendel Beiliss, charged with murdering the Christian boy, Andrew Yushinsky, in March, 1911, proceeds, the uneasy feeling is growing that whatever the result, outbreaks against the Jews will follow. Dispatches from various quarters indicate active preparations in this direction.

The Black Hundred organ the Two Headed Eagle in an inflammatory article today, commenting on alleged Jewish threats against Russia published in the Viennese press, calls on its readers "to remember always and everywhere the infamous words uttered by Jewish publicists and that the Jews dare to insult the sacred name of our adored emperor and menace his sacred person had the whole imperial family."

Vera Tcheebiak's brother Singalesky and his accomplice Rudsinsky testified today. Vera's brother denied that he had ever seen Yushinsky. Dudzinsky denied knowing Vera.

At the trial yesterday two secret police agents, in confirming former chief of police Krassovsky's evidence, testified that while passing as criminals they had learned from Singalesky that he, with Ruzinsky and Latisheff had killed Yushinsky in Vera's house.

The police today arrested many persons in the suburbs of Kiev on the charge of attempting to incite riots against the Jews.

MRS. EATON DENIES POISONING HUSBAND

Describes Events In Last Week of Admiral's Life

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 25.—A denial that she ever gave her husband poison of any sort closed today the direct examination of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, widow of Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, with whose murder she is charged.

An adjournment was taken until Monday.

With great detail Mrs. Eaton told of the last week of the admiral's life, of her visit to Medford to see her daughter, Mrs. June Kuyer, on Wednesday of that week, of her return to Assinipi the following day, and of the admiral's sickness and death.

Regarding the admiral's last illness, Mrs. Eaton said he had at other times had "perfect paroxysms of vomiting," and that she was not alarmed at the attack which he had on Thursday night. The next day Dr. Frame who was attending her mother, examined the admiral, but said he did not think him seriously ill, according to Mrs. Eaton.

In the middle of Friday night, Mrs. Eaton said, she left her own room twice and attended to the sick man. The second time, she said, she got into bed with him and both soon fell asleep. She awoke to find him cold. "I shook him and called 'Joe,' but he was dead," she said, with a slight tremor in her voice.

NO BALLOTS AT PIEDRAS NEGRAS

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Oct. 25.—It was announced at Federal army headquarters in Piedras Negras, Mexico, today that no ballots had been received there for the presidential election tomorrow. It was said that because of this it will be necessary to record the choice of each individual voter, as an election will certainly be held.

Constitutionalists assert that under such conditions each ballot would be scrutinized and it would be impossible for citizens opposed to the Huerta regime to freely express themselves at the polls.

AMERICAN FLEET OF WARSHIPS SAILS FOR EUROPE

Nine Dreadnaughts Start On Trip to Mediterranean Ports

Ceremonials At Hampton Roads to Precede Long Voyage

HAMPTON ROADS, Va., Oct. 25.—Bearing the greetings of the new world to the old, nine dreadnoughts of the Atlantic fleet started today on their way from Hampton Roads to the Mediterranean. The sombre-garbed war machines, carrying thousands of American men, received the final nod of farewell from the Dolphin, bearing Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, and glided out slowly between the protecting capes into the open sea.

As the creeping gray forms melted into the shadows of the horizon, the wireless flushed the last word from the assistant secretary, acting as representative of the President, commander in chief of the navy.

"In sending you as representatives of the U. S. navy today, we hope to show the old world that the achievements and traditions of the past are being sustained and carried forward to a still more splendid future. Good luck and God-speed."

Thus read the final benediction, and scarcely had it left the aerials, when back came the reply of Rear Admiral Badger, in command of the fleet:

"The fleet thanks you for your parting words and will do its utmost to reflect honor on the country and service."

IN BATTLE ARRAY

In battle formation the ponderous gray shapes slid by the Dolphin laying to just inside the capes. Straight down the channel they crept, the crew of each lining the rail at quarters, marines and bands on parade. First came the mammoth Wyoming, floating the rear admiral's flag. Two ship lengths behind, and directly in her wake, the Arkansas, flagship of the first division, under Rear Admiral Cameron McR. Winslow, steamed along. Then followed the Utah, Florida, Delaware, Kansas, Vermont and Ohio. In their wake signalling engine trouble limped the Connecticut, Rear Admiral Frank E. Beatlie's flagship. A few miles out awaited the supply ships and colliers with the hospital ship Solace, which had steamed out of the roads ahead of the formal review.

The fleet headed to open sea after a day of leave taking and naval ceremonial. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, in the Dolphin, reached the roads by the early morning.

Shortly after the yacht was given its salute by the flagships, Roosevelt received the rear admirals in his cabin with the full ceremonial of naval visits at sea.

Rear Admiral Badger came first, then Rear Admirals Winslow and Beattie. After they had paid their respects, Rear Admiral Clifford J. Boush, commanding the third division, came aboard from the Rhode Island, which with the other ships of the third division remained in the roads tonight, being under orders to leave for the coast of Mexico next week.

SUN ON CEREMONIES

Just as the admirals left for their ships, a driving rain, which had drenched the fleet all night and morning, ceased and the sun broke through the heavy clouds to grace the farewell ceremonies.

To Admiral Badger's flagship, the Wyoming, the division flagship, and to the Rhode Island, Secretary Roosevelt and his party paid a return visit with all its formalities. With the secretary were Henry Breckenridge, an assistant secretary of the navy; Assistant Secretary of State John E. Osborne, Assistant Attorney General Samuel Graham, Treasurer of the U. S. John Burke, Commissioner of Corporations Joseph E. Davies and Senator Brandegee of Connecticut.

After the party on the Dolphin had watched the fleet out to sea, they returned to Fort Monroe, and Breckenridge led a trip of inspection through the great coast artillery post.

MALONEY IS NAMED CALWA POSTMASTER

(Special to the Republican)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—John C. Maloney of Fresno has been commissioned postmaster of the new postoffice at Calwa City in Fresno county. The postoffice at Mallormore, Fresno county, has been discontinued. Mail for this office should go to Fresno.

CHARGED WITH FAKING A WRESTLING MATCH.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—William Demetral, a heavyweight wrestler, was arrested tonight on a warrant charging him with having fleeced W. A. Schmidt of Chicago out of $1,000 in a fixed wrestling match. Demetral was about to board a train for Los Angeles, where he has a match for Friday night, when arrested.

BRYAN ON TRIP.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Oct. 25.—Secretary of State William J. Bryan wound up a day of speech-making on the eastern shore of Maryland with two addresses here tonight. Bryan spoke first at Princess Anne this morning. Thence he went to Easton for an afternoon meeting after which he came to Cambridge. He will return to Washington tomorrow.

NOT ANTAGONISTIC ASSERT BUYERS

N. Y. Dealers Make Comments On Recent Letter of James Madison

The New York Journal of Commerce has the following comment to make regarding a recent letter from James Madison, manager of the Associated Raisin Company, in which he said that only the larger dealers were refusing to buy:

"Considerable comment has been made in the West Side grocery trade on the letter of James Madison, vice-president and manager of the California Associated Raisin company, which was published in The Journal of Commerce Thursday, October 16.

"Mr. Madison complained, in effect, that Hudson street dealers were not buying from the C. A. R. Co. because they could not get lower quotations than what were made to firms buying a lesser quantity. He asserted that the trade reports of The Journal of Commerce reflected the tone of these large buyers rather than that of the general market. He further hinted that if the firms indicated did not desire to take the advantage offered by the company's offer at its quotations from July 1 to the present it would be obliged to establish a distributing house of its own in Chicago and New York.

"Inquiries made specially by The Journal of Commerce among representatives, not only of the larger houses, but among those which may be considered independent of their operations, did not meet with confirmation of the charges made. There was a general agreement that the market reports had fairly represented the tone of the market and its volume of business during the summer months, allowing for variations due to individual points of view.

"One buyer who may be quoted as typical of the view taken by responsible houses said; 'I think Mr. Madison has got a wrong notion altogether if he thinks the Associated is being unfairly treated. We have no objection to buying from the Associated Company, but it must be on an even basis with the offerings of the independent packers outside its combination. We have found no lack of offerings even though the Associated Company since its organization was perfected in the early summer claims to control from 30 to 50 per cent of the old and new crops. We can't afford to buy from the Associated Company merely because it calls itself an association.

"As a matter of fact the trade has been getting more than it wants in Muscatels. Seeded raisins are not selling so well this year at the higher prices as last year at the lower. The restrictions attempted to be inforced have only tended to cause a holding off, and it has not been found that the consumption demands have compelled buying. So far as any antagonism to the Associated causes this state of the market I consider that anyone having that feeling is absolutely in error.

"Another buyer said: 'The seeded raisin packers have more raisins than they can sell on this market. That is the fact. The prices last year were extraordinarily low. Coast market price of fancy raisins at this time was 2 1-4 cents per pound lower than now, and stocks were accordingly then relatively larger.'"

The collections for the half day yesterday were $14,145.36 which is the second largest day's business this season, exceeded only by the third tax collecting day when $30,822.96 was taken in, made up in very large part by the two installment contribution of the Standard Oil company. Collections to date have been:

First	$ 64,717.99
Second week	62,010.71
Total	$126,728.70

Two settlements each of $50,000 have been made with the county treasurer.

DELIVER TWO THIRDS OF 1913 RAISIN CROP

Fowler and Kingsburg Districts Are Practically All Cleaned Up

With about two-thirds of the 1913 raisin crop in packing houses and warehouses, deliveries to the Associated Raisin company have materially slackened.

The officers of the Associated do not expect any further heavy raisin deliveries for in a number of sections the crop is practically all cleaned up while in others, growers are holding back at the request of the Associated, or for rain, believing that their raisins will be improved.

There are probably more undelivered raisins in the Parlier district than in any other part of the raisin section due to the fact that the Associated has had inadequate warehouse and packing house facilities there. There is also a large quantity of undelivered raisins in the Selma district. The Fowler and Kingsburg districts have practically all been cleaned up.

The additional warehouse facilities secured last week have relieved a great deal of congestion that existed at many of the receiving stations.

Will Raze Half of Present Block; Also Intends to Remodel Theater

Tentative plans are now under way by several architects for the $100,000 building which is planned to replace the west half of the Barton building on the northeast corner of J and Fresno streets. The plans will also call for the remodeling of the old Barton theater. The work as planned will cost about $120,000. It is expected that the old building, which contains Armory hall, will be razed shortly, after the first of the year. The property is owned by L. L. Cory.

The new building as contemplated will have a frontage of 150 on J street and 65 feet on Fresno street and will be four stories in height. It will contain a basement, and the first floor will be fitted up, according to present plans, for stores and the other three floors for office purposes.

The work of remodeling the old theater building will not be commenced until after the close of the present theatrical season. This work will cost about $20,000. This will include the installation of modern heating and cooling systems.

The plans call for a modern fireproof building fitted with all the latest conveniences. It will be constructed of reinforced concrete.

ATTORNEY FINED $10 REITERATES CHARGE

Shishmanian Protests Against "Arbitrary" Methods of Judge

"I will gladly pay the fine. But I insist that there has been nothing in my acts that call for an apology on my part, and I protest against the arbitrary methods of the court", declared Attorney John A. Shishmanian in court yesterday afternoon after Judge Church had imposed a fine of $10 against him for disrespect to the court.

Shishmanian had during the trial of the case on appeal of S. Nishkian vs. Simon Vartanian interrupted several times while the Judge was questioning a witness. He was ordered to sit down and remain quiet. Shishmanian complied, but at the close of the trial arose again and was about to make a statement which all supposed would be an apology. Instead he protested against having been "called down" in the hearing and presence of his client when he was within his rights as an attorney of the court, and declared that the methods of the court were arbitrary. The attorney was again ordered to sit down and with the order came the fine. He sat down but he was too agitated to remain long seated and then marched up and down the court room, loudly protesting against the arbitrary methods of the court. Every one expected that the fine order would be followed by another of imprisonment, but another case was called and the incident closed.

The case on trial was for $200 damages with a judgment appealed from. Justice Graham having awarded Nishkian judgment for $50 damages and $7.75 costs. According to the pleadings Nishkian was seated on April 5 in the tailor shop at 805 I street reading a valuable book. Vartanian entered, jerked the book out of his grasp, mutilated the work and beat him on the head with fists.

Accordings to the proofs there had been a little misunderstanding between the men because Nishkian had refused Vartanian the loan of a bicycle for a home ride. E. A. Williams was the attorney for Vatanian to maintain that the incident is too frivolous to warrant all the litigation that has followed. The case on appeal was taken under advisement.

ONE NIGHT IN JAIL ENOUGH FOR SERRANO

Will Be Heard In Defense Tomorrow On Court Contempt Charge

After spending a comfortless night in the county jail, Rancher Alia Serrano was ready enough yesterday morning to buy off his liberty and purge himself of contempt of court by settling for $36 for jury, $5 for reporters and $3.50 for sheriff's fees and this time made payment in cash and not as on a previous occasion by check and closing out his bank account before the check could come through the clearing house for collection.

Serrano was adjudged by Judge Church in contempt, but was released on his own recognizance to appear tomorrow and defend or excuse his contempt of court. Serrano is not versed in the language and not at all familiar with court proceedings for which reasons Judge Church put over the hearing until he can be represented by counsel. He labors under the impression that having once before advanced $36 as jury fees for one day the payments holds good until the end of his case.

Once before he was in court with his suit against L. D. Scott and wife and Guy E. Dyar as his attorney then. He had paid him $50 as a fee and put up $36 as fees for the jury on the day of trial. The case was thrown out of court because the allegations of the complaint did not conform to the proof. Leave was given to amend and on the second day of the later second trial on the amended complaint verdict was given by a jury against him.

It was the prevention of the collection of the second day's jury fees by closing out his bank account against the check that brought him into the present court contempt proceedings. Meanwhile he does not understand the whys and wherefores of this second claim when once before he had pungled up $36.

Women's Tailored Suits For Autumn Wear

$25, $28.75, $35, $45 And Up To $75

SEATTLE'S FIGHT

To whatever extent the complaint of Seattle that she is not being fairly treated in the rat question is well founded, the other cities of the Pacific coast should mend their ways. Seattle is making an honest and open fight to rid the city of the danger of plague infection through the prevalence of the disease in rodents. The authorities are co-operating with the federal government in heroic measures not only to kill the rats but to prevent the coming of rats ashore from vessels of possible infected ports. All this is, however, useless unless the other ports of call on the Pacific coast of North and South America show a similar spirit of enterprise in exterminating the plague carriers.

The attempt of people in other cities to suppress all news of possible cases of plague and of the discovery of the disease in plague carrying rats is having a bad effect not only in preventing the arousing of public opinion regarding the disease, but of deadening all efforts to have the rats killed off. While the cost of fighting the rats is heavy, it is nothing as compared with the cost to society of an epidemic of bubonic plague. Rats as a feature of public uncleanliness can be done away with just as bedbugs can be abolished as a symptom of private uncleanliness. Especially the big cities should be cleaned up, and stringent measures should be taken to prevent the coming of the rats ashore from vessels as well as to have the vessels thoroughly as possible rid of rats before they reach American ports.

The habit of suppressing plague news, to which the people of port cities are so prone, is not only dishonest and unfair to those places which like Seattle are fighting in the open, but it tends to increase the very danger from the disease, a reputation for which suppressors of news are trying to prevent.

WHOSE PROFIT?

There is being exhibited in parts of the state a disposition to renew some of the old time jealousy of San Francisco in matters of trade and promotion, and there is a possibility that this may affect the attitude of some of the interior counties toward the Panama-Pacific exposition. It should be thoroughly realized that this is but another instance where the profit will be reaped by those who take advantage of their opportunities. Fortunately most of the counties of the interior of the state are taking time by the forelock to see that they get their share of the publicity attendant upon the fair. The individual citizens of the county should be equally enterprising in doing their share, and conceding frankly to San Francisco whatever profit may come from the work done in preparing for the exposition. While it is true that the state as a whole is being taxed for the fair, it is also true that San Francisco has borne the brunt of preparing for it, and should not be begrudged a greater proportionate benefit.

SACRILEGE

The imprecation which Shakespeare is credited with leaving upon any one who should disturb his bones might well be placed in the mouth of Christopher Columbus, upon the announcement that his remains are to be taken from their resting place in Santo Domingo for display in this country. This is a form of sacrilege so needless that it is a pity that a mere yearning to satisfy curiosity of the circus kind should be permitted to cause it.

The world is growing small enough, in any case, so that remains valuable because of their sentimental association can best be left in their natural resting place, rather than be carried about the world for use in satisfying local or occasional curiosity. The removal of historical buildings, the taking up of the bones of the dead, such efforts as the plea for the removal of the Liberty Bell from Philadelphia, are animated by good purposes, but should be restrained by a better taste for what is appropriate. The dramatic value of these souvenirs of the past can well be supplied by reproductions or moving pictures.

TO TURN THE RHINE

The free and easy way in which mankind in the future may trifle with the contour of the world is shown in the present proposal to make the Rhine a purely German river. This is not the old scheme to annex Holland to the German empire, but what is after all easier, to divert the course of the river so that it will run into the North Sea at a point within present German territory.

The undertaking would of course be very expensive, but it would have many advantages from an imperial point of view. It would divert the great trade of the upper Rhine to purely German ports, and yield this additional revenue as well as commercial prestige to German rather than Dutch merchants. It would mean that in time of war the commercial resources of the Rhenish territory would not be shut up within the neutral district of the Netherlands. It would above all, as a matter of sentiment (and empires are based upon sentiment even more than upon economic advantages) mean that when the patriotic German sings about the Fatherland and the glorious Rhine, he could know that the Rhine is entirely a German river.

The formation of the land of the north shore of Europe would make the undertaking comparatively simple, with about a hundred miles of dredging through a low sloping plain from Dusseldorf, in Westphalia, to Emden on the Dollart. At one stroke, the lower portion of the Rhine, that within the Netherlands, would be left a mere ditch, on which the Dutch could run canal boats to laden out their dairy products, while the trade of the Upper Rhine Valley would be afloat on the German ocean.

It is hard to tell just how much pressure an undertaking of this kind would exert toward making the Dutch consent to annexation to their powerful neighbor.

The Latin-American races seek to give a solemnity to their elections by holding them on Sunday. Then they spend the rest of the week nullifying the effect of the balloting.

BRIEF EDITORIAL FANCIES SELECTED

Fashion has supplied Los Angeles with hats adorned with feathers and intended for masculine use. Swiss and Austrian concoctions of felt and plumage are making their appeal to vainglorious masculine fancy. Woman too long has arrogated to her nearly exclusive use the arts of sartorial adornment. Possibly we are on the eve of a revolution in styles of clothing, and the severity which has characterized men's attire for the last century or more is to give way before expressions in silk and satin of graceful fancy and aesthetic ingenuity.

By way of assistance to those of the sterner sex, who are ambitious of achieving sartorial distinction, the cartoonist presents on this page an artistic conception of the glory that awaits. Two hundred and fifty years ago men wore Gainsborough hats, weighted down by costly plumes. Their silken doublets were adorned with laces costing the revenues of great estates. Embroideries that required years for their completion entered into the scheme of decoration. Expensive satins of every hue, ribbands innumerable, graced the dandy of that day.

Are we to regard the feathers adventuresome pioneers in masculine costume now are thrusting in their hats as the first expression of a recurring instinct to outshine the sun? Are we indeed to paint the lily and add a perfume to the violet?—Los Angeles Tribune.

FAME'S TEST

Fame used to mean much simpler things—
A street was named for one, perhaps;
And several towering mountain peaks
Are christened for some famous chaps;
But now there's one test—only one—
To prove your height and breadth and girth:
How many feet of "movie" film
Are you and your achievements worth?

It used to be that one felt proud
To see his name on a cigar;
To figure in a book or play
Would prove one's ranking as a star;
But nowadays such things are cheap;
With such the great are not annoyed;
You're famous only when you're worth
Three thousand feet of celluloid.
—Denver Republican.

PELICAN A FIGHTER

Have you a pet pelican in your apartment? How unfashionable.

Miss Ethel Hopkins has one, which was discovered by her neighbors in West Forty-seventh street last week and by two health department agents yesterday. Its name is Emmanuel, and it is going on the stage with Miss Hopkins.

When agents tried to seize the bird it pecked cuticle from the arm of one and the leg of the other. They fled, threatening to return with a warrant.

MYSTERIES of EUROPEAN POLITICS

PARNELL AND THE PIGOTT LETTERS

Many readers will easily recall the sensation created by the so-called Pigott Letters which were printed in the London "Times" during the year 1887. On March 7, 1887, the first of a series of articles entitled "Parnellism and Crime" appeared in this paper, which were meant to prove that the Parnell movement was a revolutionary one sustained by crime and designed to overthrow British authority in Ireland.

On April 18th "The Times" published a facsimile letter, purporting to bear Parnell's signature, in which the Phoenix Park murders were excused and condoned. The publication of this first letter, in which Parnell was made to say: "You should know that to denounce the murders was the only course open to us * * * but I cannot refuse to admit that Burke got no more than his deserts," threw the whole Liberal party into consternation.

The Parnell letter in "The Times" was soon the talk of the entire country. Parnell was shown the printed facsimile of the letter, and instead of flying into a rage, as was to be expected, placing his finger on the S of the signature, he said quite calmly: "I did not make an S like that since 1878."

On the same evening Parnell dealt with the subject in the House of Commons, in which he made a flat denial of having written the letter, and said: "I cannot understand how the managers of a responsible, and what used to be a respectable, journal, could have been so hoodwinked, so bamboozled, so hamboozled. The subject matter of this letter is preposterous on the surface."

After Parnell's declaration the subject of the facsimile letter was for a time permitted to drop, but the articles on "Parnellism and Crime" continued to be printed. Finally Mr. F. H. O'Donnell, an ex-member of Parliament, feeling himself aggrieved by certain statements in the articles took proceedings against the "Times" and finally Parnell took a hand in the matter. He asked the House of Commons to appoint a Select Committee to inquire whether the facsimile letter was a forgery.

Several years prior to the publication of this letter there was in Ireland a Richard Pigott who was the proprietor of a newspaper called "The Irishman." Almost every one versed in Irish politics knew "Dick" Pigott or knew of him. Although he professed patriotism it was considered that for a valuable return he would swear away the life of almost every honest man in the land. In 1885 Pigott was collecting materials for a pamphlet called "Parnellism Unmasked." Unionists assisted him in having the work published, but they wanted something more than pamphlets which would connect the Parnellite movement with the crime prevalent in the country. Pigott was asked to find this evidence. He was paid a guinea a day and hotel and traveling expenses to scour Europe and America in search of documentary evidence to hang Parnell, or at least to send him into penal servitude.

Finally in March, 1886 Pigott claimed to have found the documentary evidence—letters signed by Parnell and Egan, which he claimed were found in a "black bag" in Paris. There were five letters supposed to have been written by Parnell, including the facsimile letter. James Caulfield Houston, a distinguished Loyalist, went to Paris to see the letters and believing them genuine he paid a sum of $50 pounds for them, not even asking to see the man or men who had secured them.

Houston hastened back to England with them and presented himself to the "Times" and the letters having been submitted to an expert in handwriting who pronounced them genuine, they were purchased by the "Times." When the trial occurred an effort was made to place the forgery. Pat Egan gave Parnell a clew. "The Times" published a letter purporting to have been written by Egan, in that letter the word "hesitancy" was spelt with an "e," "hesitency." Egan had in his possession letters of Pigott in which the word was spelt in exactly the same way.

Pigott returning from Paris shortly afterwards was arrested as he was walking up and down the platform at Euston on his way to Ireland. He was confronted by Parnell's attorney, Mr. Lewis who said: "Pigott, you forged those letters. Will you confess the crime, tell the 'Times' and let the letters be withdrawn, or will you brazen it out, go into the box, commit perjury and be sent to penal servitude?" After a show of fight Pigott collapsed and admitted his guilt. But the following day he changed his mind, denied the admission, but at the trial his evidence was so shattered that he was compelled to confess. He always claimed that he alone was concerned in the forgery. Finally a warrant was issued for Pigott's arrest on the charge of perjury, the police tracked him to a hotel in Madrid, the report of a pistol was heard and the wretched man was found on the floor with a bullet through his brain. He had died by his own hand. So ended the elaborate plot to destroy the Irish leader.

CARE TO PREVENT SQUINTING EYES

Parents Should Not Leave Children to Outgrow Defects

The general public has many false ideas concerning this unsightly defect and consequently many parents are prone to neglect it because of the hope or the belief that the child will "outgrow it."

Were the real cause and the consequence of neglect of this condition more generally known and accepted, great benefit might result to many unfortunate children and their lives made happier. It is not generally known that in the majority of squinting cases, blindness results to a greater or less degree unless early attention be given them.

The primary cause in most children who have this defect is the lack of the power of combining the images seen by the two eyes into one. This faculty has been lost or has not been developed with the growth of the child. Its development may have been interfered with by a difference in the two eyes, one being far-sighted, the other near sighted, or there may be other differences which interfered with harmonious action. The child cannot focus both eyes on an object at the same time, so in order to avoid the discomfort or strain of effort, the weaker eye gives up and crosses in order to avoid the embarrassment of double vision, which would otherwise occur.

Soon this habit becomes fixed, and permanent squint is brought about. The squinting eye, not receiving any stimulus from use, gradually loses the seeing faculty and partial blindness is the result.

This loss of vision from disuse is more rapid in the very young than in older children. If a child begins to squint at the age of six months, and has good vision in each eye, the squinting eye, if neglected, will become blind in eight to ten weeks. If he does not begin to squint until he is eighteen months old the progress of the blindness will not be so rapid, but he will be blind in the squinting eye in five or six months.

If he does not begin to squint until the age of three years he seldom loses the power of vision in less than a year thereafter. After the age of six years, the danger is not so great, and the child may retain it to some extent. Every child who shows symptoms of squint should have early attention if sight is to be preserved or the deformity prevented.

LOST MEMORY RETURNS.

The light of memory is slowly beginning to sift through a few niches in the wall of darkness that surrounds the mind of "Prof." Harry Lawrence, patient at the General Hospital. Lawrence is a vaudeville performer, whose act consists in reading the minds of others. Yet he can not read his own mind now enough to recall his name. However, Lawrence is now able to remember some details of his life before he reached the hospital.

Recently Lawrence was in a wheel chair in the ward and tried to answer questions that were put to him. When he would remember something he would clap his hands and laugh as a child who had just achieved a particular feat.

"I formerly owned an orange grove in San Bernardino, Cal.," he said, but sold that some years ago. My wife has been dead some time, and my three children—Henry, Estella, and Jeanette—are living on a farm that I purchased in Indiana. I can't remember where that farm is now. I wish I could."

Physicians at the hospital are under the impression that this may be a case of psychic epilepsy, which is distinguished from the more common kind, in the fact that it is accompanied by no convulsions. The patient suffers from a loss of memory, but appears to be normal otherwise. Another theory is that the loss of memory may be due to brain necrosis. This is caused by the cutting off of the blood supply from any part of the brain, making that part useless as a thinking machine.—From the Kansas City Star.

OCTOBER EVE

All day I've wandered on the lonely shore;
And now the shadows fall;
The curlew's call;
A graceful sea-gull slowly wheels above,
With noisy, shrilling cry;
A little sandpip pauses, glances up,
Then scurries by.

I wonder where the happy people are
Who lately thronged the place;
Eager, I watch and wait for just one glimpse
Of kindly face;
But no one comes; and you, who would not trust
Your happiness to me,
Are far away from this long stretch of sand
And restless sea.

I sometimes start, and think I hear your voice
Calling across the sands—
I almost see your tender smile again,
And touch your hands.
A year ago you held me in your arms
Upon this selfsame shore;
How bright—Remembrance keeps the happy past,
The days of yore!

The curlews and the sandpip and the gull
Have found, each one, his mate;
The Twilight's shadows fold about 'tair Night,
Who walks in state:
The Ocean woos the Shore; one faithful Star
Follows the Moon's flight, drear,
Lonely am I! Hark, Boatmen hail afar
And you are here!

PORTION OF COMBINED SHRINE BANDS AND DELEGATES FROM THREE PATROLS.

One of the most extensive automobile tours ever undertaken is now under consideration by the local Shriners' committee as an entertainment feature for the California Shrine tour, which will arrive in Fresno next Wednesday. It is planned to take the members of the patrol and the band for a four or five hour ride, according to the time that can be spent in sightseeing. Inasmuch as the visitors will not be able to leave the city before a late hour in the afternoon, owing to the drill to be given by the combined patrol in the streets of Fresno, it will be necessary to limit the number of places visited.

Kearney Farms and the Sunnyside Country Club are two of the principal places to be visited. The remainder of the automobile trip has not been decided, as the local committee has been unable to determine the length of time that can be spent. By traveling fast, the committee believes that the major portion of Fresno and vicinity can be shown to the visitors in the allotted time.

The Commercial Club will render valuable assistance to the local committee. Practically every member of the club has signified willingness to furnish a machine for the afternoon excursion. One hundred machines can be obtained and this number should prove ample to accommodate the visitors, is the belief of the club members.

Manager Frizzelle of the Kearney Estate has extended a cordial invitation to the Shriners and has guaranteed his services in showing the visitors the beauty spots of the farm in the shortest possible period. Directors of the Sunnyside Country Club have also co-operated with the local Shrine committee.

TO VISIT HOMES OF CITY IN TWO HOURS

"Home Visitation" Will Be Held January 10; to Organize Nov. 9

In a meeting of pastors and Sunday school workers at St. Paul's Methodist church last evening it was decided to have Sunday school representatives visit every home in Fresno and environs within a specified two hours on Saturday afternoon, January 10, 1914. W. A. Brown a national worker from Chicago, addressed the meeting which was presided over by Rev. Charles Laurant Beal, county president of the Sunday School Association. State Secretary Charles R. Fisher of Berkeley, who was present, will return to this city Monday, November 3, to organize committees and the executive force for actual work.

The county executive committee of the Sunday School Association met at 7:30 to discuss the district conventions to be held the latter part of November but no definite date was determined owing to the absence of several of the district officers.

Prayer by Rev. J. A. Wallis of St. Paul's church opened the general meeting which followed. Chairman Beal introduced W. A. Brown who addressed those assembled on "Home Visitation." He emphasized the wonderful results of the home visitations in Chicago and Oklahoma, and explained the methods employed in following up the visitation by a systematic visiting committee from each church. The pastors present expressed themselves as greatly in favor of the plan outlined.

Charles R. Fisher made a brief talk in regard to the best time for the visitation in this city and in conclusion a motion prevailed that January 10 be the day named.

"Reach the children" was the keynote of the following speech by W. A. Brown, who again took the platform. He predicted that because of the campaign already in motion that five years will see the membership of the church of Jesus Christ doubled in North America by the reaching of boys and girls alone. He asserted that some twenty-five million children between the ages of 12 and 20 years would swear fealty to the churches.

Great stress will be placed by workers over the nation on the benefits to the child the Sunday schools and churches will confer, according to Mr. Brown, who stated that unrivaled success will be met for the reason that no one is prejudiced against the child, there is no one who will not give the least moral aid to work for the young of the nation.

The securing for the California Sunday School Association an ideal worker for boys and girls is one of the purposes of Mr. Brown in his traveling about the state, for state workers will be soon placed for the purpose of devoting their entire time to the children in nearly every state in the union by the national association. The cost of maintenance for one such worker would be between three and four thousand dollars. Fresno's share would be about $50.

TRAFFIC ORDINANCE BEING CHANGED IN MANY DETAILS

Committee Goes Over Only One Half of the 60 Sections

No Meter Law Likely—Minors Liable for Misstating Age In Saloons

The city ordinance committee consisting of Trustees Irwin, Hart and Pickford spent an afternoon yesterday going over the traffic and other ordinances submitted to it for examination. The traffic ordinance of 60 and more sections was only half gone through with, "leaving all the hard nuts for cracking to come," as Trustee Hart put it.

Proposition was made to meet on Sunday afternoon for a further conference, but Chairman Irwin protested, saying that the Sabbath is the one day in the week that he gives over wholly to his wife. So being, the further conference was postponed until tomorrow afternoon.

Criticism was made by Mr. Hart of the need of this new ordinance because covered 97 per cent, a she said, by existing ordinances, but the only answer vouchsafed was that it was probably deemed as easy to draw a new one as a substitute as to rescind or amend all the old laws.

"This new ordinance is not one for a town like Fresno," remarked Trustee Pickford. "It would require eight or ten new policemen to enforce it."

However, the new ordinance was taken up section after section up to No. 25 when adjournment was taken. Pickford suggested as a subject not covered by the ordinance that a place be set aside as a stand for vehicles for hire.

Section 6 requiring warnings by call or show of hand and finger to point out a new direction to be taken in turning a corner was stricken out on the theory that it is "all bunk," a driver should not be distracted because he has enough to do to look ahead and the man in rear should look out for himself.

The congested district was enlarged from K and F, Merced and Kern to Tuolumne and Inyo, and section 9 changed that crossings in the congested district shall only be made at street intersections. The distance of a vehicle next to the curb line was placed at three instead of two feet, but the standing of a vehicle at the curb with the horst at right angles in the direction of traffic was prohibited in any case where the position would interfere or impede with street or inter-urban car traffic. The time limit for unloading a vehicle in the street was extended from 15 to 30 minutes.

Suggestion was made for a saving of space to permit of vehicles leading in towards the sidewalk curb, and backing was authorized only as a means of extrication from a congested position. Superintendent Devereaux of the Traction company, appeared before the committee at request for consultation and especially as regards a proposition to have all street cars halt at down town street crossings. It was thought this would play havoc with the running schedules, and anyhow the decision was that such a rule would conduce only to more congestion and confusion as the Maricopa and J street corner gives proof of every day.

Section 71 was changed, and despite all "ifs and ands", every vehicle must halt when passing a street car discharging pasengers, passing when it does at a distance of four feet from the fender. Section 18 is also done away, limiting such passing speed of vehicle to four miles.

Section 19 against driving by intoxicated people was amended to include Roeding Park and section 21 was eliminated. It required a covered wagon to be equipped with mirror showing things in rear for 200 feet. The committee was unanimous in declaring that the driver of a covered wagon has all he can to look to the front, without assuming responsibility for the man in rear, who must look out for himself.

Section 30 was also cut out. It forbids any one under 16 to drive any vehicle or auto in the streets. The committeemen declared they could not recall an accident with a minor in charge of the auto or vehicle, in fact the minor driving with parents and under their control is the most careful of drivers and the danger is less with him than with the women drivers when the occasion arises for judgment and quick action to avert danger.

The committee favored street cars stopping at any and all streets when a passenger signals to descend.

As regards the gas and water meter ordinance the committee will make unfavorable report not having learned that there is such an ordinance in effect anywhere in the state. If Fresno desires anything on this line, it must be a pioneer.

The committee will, however, report an ordinance patterned after the one in Grand Rapids, Mich., calling for a printed sign in saloons warning minors not to enter and making it a misdemeanor in the minor to falsely represent himself as of age to be served with liquor.

JAPANESE ARRESTED ON ROBBER CHARGE FROM ARMONA

Fresno Officers Nab Three Orientals In G Street Warehouse

One Confesses Attempt to Kill Chinese Merchant; Men Are Armed

Three Japanese, Y. Yehamato, T. Ohata and I. Shibura, wanted in Armona for the attempted robbery of a Chinese grocery store early last week, were arrested by Police Detectives Enos and Goehring in the basement of a warehouse at 909 G street late yesterday afternoon. The Japanese submitted without a struggle, although two revolvers were found on their person, when searched at the jail. One of the Japanese, T. Ohata, confessed to the robbery and stated that he had shot at the proprietor with intent to kill.

The men are being held here pending the arrival of Armona officials. The Japanese will be returned to Armona within a few days for their preliminary hearing.

A description of the Japanese, together with the story of the attempted holdup, which resulted in a shooting scrape in which no one was injured, was received at local police headquarters several days ago. Since that time officers have been on the lookout for the trio.

Friday night a Chinese "stool" informed the officers that three unknown Japanese, answering the description of the men in the attempted robbery at Armona, had arrived in Fresno and were hidding in Chinatown. Detectives Enos and Goehring were immediately detailed to search for the men.

All Friday night a constant watch of the various Chinese and Japanese resorts were maintained but with little success. Early this morning information was brought to headquarters by a certain Chinese to the effect that the men had been seen on G street. The detective immediately took up the trail and late this afternoon located the trio in an old warehouse on G street.

With the aid of Officer Harting, the two detectives forced an entrance to the basement, taking the Japanese by surprise and covering them before the trio had time to show fight.

When lodged in jail, T. Ohata quietly told the officers of the attack on the Chinese merchant at Armona and stated that he had intended to kill the Chinaman after the merchant had flourished a gun.

For the past two months, a band of Japanese has been terrorizing the various Japanese and Chinese colonies of central and southern California cities. It is believed by local officers that the three taken into custody yesterday are a part of the gang operating in the state.

COMPENSATION ACT EXPLAINED BY PILLSBURY

Addresses Members of Commonwealth Club At Opening Fall Banquet

Industrial Accident Board Preparing to Commence Work January 1

The Commonwealth Club of Fresno held its first large meeting of the year last night and had as special speaker A. J. Pillsbury, a former Fresno resident, who spoke on the Industrial Compensation Act. He is president of the board appointed to handle this proposition in the state of California. Nearly a hundred members and their friends attended the meeting, which was preceded by a banquet.

Speaking of the industrial act last night, Pillsbury spoke in part as follows:

"From the 1st of January to the 1st of October this year we crippled 533 people. To these people life will never be what it has been again. They are handicapped in one way or another. In that same nine months we killed 354 men and one woman.

"The mortality is between three and four times what the experience of Germany, France, Austria and Italy would justify. That is the problem, and the reason why it is the problem is that industrial accident, where it has not been adequately dealt with, (and it has not been done so in this country) is the third greatest reason for poverty in the world. The first is sickness; the second, unemployment; the third, industrial accident, and the fourth is premature death. These are the greatest sources of undeserved poverty and where it is adequately dealt with, there remains only that poverty which results from delinquency and that can be dealt with as delinquency.

FUNDAMENTAL TRUISMS

"Compensation is founded upon two equally fundamental truisms. The first is that the man who has contributed a hand, an arm, a leg, an eye or a life to an industry is just as much entitled to be compensated for his contribution as though he had contributed labor or capital, raw material or managerial ability. The second, society's right to defend itself from those influences which tend to force large numbers of persons below the poverty line, for the reason that when any considerable potion of any population sinks below the poverty line, it becomes what we call submerged and a menace to orderly society. Property becomes insecure, life unsafe and chaos reigns.

"Therefore, society says to each industry, you must take care of your own killed and wounded, and not throw them upon public or private care.

"Society has said this to the industries of California by making employers the limited insurers of those who work for them. That insurance being limited to what has been ascertained by a broad experience to be necessary to tide the injured persons over their periods of sharpest adversity until they can get on their feet again.

"A compensation paid under this law does not compensate. They are wholly inadequate to compensate, but they do help to keep people above the poverty line until they can re-establish themselves upon a self-sustaining basis.

PROTECTS EMPLOYERS

"When the state took this burden off the shoulders of hurt people it owed it to the employers to open avenues so that they might insure these people for what it is worth to do the insuring. First by authorizing the formation of mutual insurance associations; second, by establishing a state compensation insurance fund in free and fair competition with other insurance carriers, to furnish insurance at what it does cost the state to furnish it without profit; and third through private enterprise, by means of insurance companies doing an insurance business in free competition with the state. The opportunities of these companies to make a profit depends upon their ability to do business at a lower cost than the state can do it, and they can do it low enough to make a reasonable profit on the business, but not enough to make a fat thing of it.

"The state has four objects in view in establishing this fund. The first is right rates, and the best measure of right rates is what it does cost the state to do the insuring with a profit; second, is right settlements with the injured people; third, insurance must be made accessible to every employer of labor in the state, no matter however small or remote, and it is a service that the state performs for the people in making this insurance thoroughly accessible within the state; and, fourth, the education of the people of the state to insure its compensation risks as certainly as they insure against their fire losses.

READY FOR START

"The whole system is now being organized by the present Industrial Action Board which has been able to do this because it has left to its credit in the state treasury about $12,000 out of the $60,000 which the legislature of 1911 appropriated for carrying the Roseberry laws into effect.

"The governor, the board of control and the state controller agreed with the Industrial Action Board that this fund could be used for the organizing of the work to be undertaken by the workmens compensation and safety act which goes into effect the 1st of January. To this end in new and commodious quarters at 525 Market street, San Francisco, an actuary and several assistants are at work making rates.

"The manager of the state compensation insurance fund will enter upon his duties the 1st of November. The United States is now being searched for a competent safety engineer to organize the safety department.

"Consequently on the morning of the first day of January the Industrial Accident Commission will have only to press the button in order to start the full machinery in operation."

POSTAL EMPLOYES BANQUET HUGHES

Postmaster Given Reception By Men In His Employ; Speeches Heard

Postmaster Earle Hughes was the guest of a reception at the postoffice last evening, tendered by the clerks and carriers under his jurisdiction. The affair was planned for Mr. Hughes shortly after his appointment, but on account of the numerous summer vacations, was postponed until a period when all might be present.

L. H. Scriven, one of the carriers, presided as toastmaster, welcoming Hughes. A neat response by the postmaster was followed by speeches from George W. Turner, assistant postmaster; Frank Cardwell, superintendent of mails; H. Bryant Ashton, superintendent of carriers; Charles Schuler and Marvin Peterson. Schuler spoke of the sixteen years in which he had been employed in the local office and Ashton on "The Newest Tot," having been very recently appointed to his supervisory position.

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra furnished music for the evening. The basement of the postoffice was handsomely decorated with bunting and greenery for the occasion and little resembled a furnace room. An excellent dinner of relishes, salad, entries, roast veal, ice cream, cake, assorted fruits and coffee, was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the local branch of the National Letter Carriers' association.

FORMER FRESNO GIRL DIES IN PALO ALTO

Miss Bertha Braly Succumbs; Was Ill Long; Attended School Here

Miss Bertha H. Braly, a former Fresno girl, died at her home in Palo Alto last Friday, according to word received in this city yesterday. Death was preceded by an illness of many months duration. Funeral services were held at Palo Alto yesterday afternoon and the remains will be interred in the family plot in San Jose today.

Though born in San Jose Miss Braly spent most of her life in this city, coming here with her family in 1883. With her sister, Elizabeth, she attended the local schools, graduating from Fresno high school. From there she went to Stanford, from which university she graduated with high honors. It was on a visit abroad with her family last year that Miss Braly contracted the illness that terminated in her death.

She is survived by her sister Elizabeth, and mother, Mrs. Susan Braly, both of whom are living in Palo Alto. She was a cousin of Attorney L. L. Cory of this city. The Braly block at the northeast corner of I and Tulare streets is still owned by the Braly estates.

COUPLE MARRIED AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS

Judge Smith and A. D. Ewing Assist At the Tying of Nuptial Knot

Miss Mary Perner of San Francisco became the bride of Martin Appel of Fresno last night, Judge Smith performing the ceremony at police headquarters. Officer R. A. Rutherford and Sergeant Bradley were the witnesses. Chief of Police Coyle and Joe Merritt were also present.

Miss Perner arrived in Fresno last night and was met at the train by her husband-to-be. Appel, ignorant of the marriage laws, found to his dismay that the court house had closed and he was without a license.

Suddenly he decided that the police could help him. With his bride-to-be on his arm Appel appeared at headquarters and made known his wants. Forthwith Desk Sergeant Rutherford called Deputy County Clerk D. A. Ewing, who came down town, opened the court house and gave the sweethearts the papers.

Where were they to be married? Again Appel appealed to the police and again Rutherford proved the savior. Judge Smith was brought to headquarters and there amid the peace officials the ceremony was performed.

MARKET HUNTERS VIOLATE GAME LAW

Eighty-Four Ducks Confiscated By Fish and Game Deputies

L. Johns and John Johns, two market hunters, pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking the bag limit law for ducks before Judge Smith late yesterday afternoon and escaped with a fine of $50 each. The two men were taken into custody yesterday morning by Deputies Ellis and Bullard near Oxalis and brought to Fresno. Eighty-four ducks, thirty-four more than the law allows, were found in their possession.

Deputies of the Fish and Game Commission have suspected the operations of market hunters for the past week or more. Early yesterday morning Ellis and Bullard were routed out of their camp by a shot near the Raisin City Gun Club preserve. Waiting for several hours, the deputies went in search of the hunters, suspecting that the men would not cease operations when the limit of ducks had been secured.

The deputies came upon the hunters in a low hollow and immediately demanded surrender. Two of the men submitted, while the third member of the party took to his heels. One of the deputies gave chase but was soon out-distanced.

The hunters were brought to the office of A. D. Ferguson, district fish and game commissioner, who drew the warrants, charging them with violation of the bag limit law.

Ferguson then took the hunters before Judge Smith, where pleas of guilty were entered. In passing sentence, Judge Smith warned the men never to repeat the offense, as the fine would be $500.

The confiscated ducks were placed in cold storage and will be given to the county orphanage Monday, as provided by law.

INCOME TAX LAW EFFECTIVE NEXT SATURDAY; HITS OVER 1,000 FRESNO COUNTY PEOPLE

Every Person With An Income of Over $3,000 Must Pay; Government Will Collect First Hand; Tax Is Graduated

The income tax was first imposed in Great Britain under the ministry of Willis Pitt on January 1st, 1799, after failing to raise revenue enough to meet the exigencies of the period by trebling the amount of assessed taxes. Under this law all incomes under $200 were exempt.

The first income tax imposed in this country was during the Civil War, when in 1861 Congress authorized a tax of three per cent on all incomes amounting to over $800 a year. In July of the following year, the law was changed to tax all incomes under $5,000 at the rate of five per cent, with an exemption of $600 and house rent actually paid.

There were other gradations on increased taxation on incomes over the $5,000 mark, and non-resident Americans were also taxed.

Congress passed a bill including a tax on all incomes above the $4,000 mark during the second Cleveland administration but the Supreme Court, after a long hearing, declared that it was unconstitutional.

The income law, which was signed by President Wilson the 3rd inst., becomes effective November 1st, next Saturday. All persons, firms, corporations or employers having the payment of a fixed income or interest to anyone become liable after that date for the income tax on such payments if they amount to more than $3000 a year. The law requires all employers or agents to deduct and pay to the government the amount of the tax due.

It is estimated that fully 1000 persons and 225 firms in Fresno county will be affected by this law. For the whole of San Joaquin valley it is said over 5000 persons and firms will come under the rulings of the income tax.

Other estimates that have been made, state that this new law will hit over 300,000 people in the State of California or interested therein.

Figures gotten together in the East show that the income to the government from this tax for the first year will amount to $120,000,000 and that four per cent of the people in the United States will be affected by it.

All returns from individuals must be in the hands of the government on or before March 1st of each year.

DEDUCTIONS ALLOWED.

All persons who have fixed or determinable incomes will be assessed at the source, that is, by the persons, employers, corporations or firms that makes the payment of such salaries, interest or dividends. Such assessments, however, only include the normal tax, which consists of one per cent per annum. On all incomes over $20,000 a year there is an additional tax.

There are eight reasons given for allowing deduction in computing the net income of each person. First, the necessary expenses actually paid in carrying on any business (not including living or personal expenses, nor in improvements, such as new buildings, repairs, etc.); second all interest paid during the year or indebtedness; third, all taxes paid, except those assessed for local benefits (such as a park or street work in a district); fourth, all losses actually sustained during the year and not covered by insurance or otherwise; fifth, all debts due the taxpayers actually ascertained to be worthless and charged off during the year; sixth, a reasonable allowance for exhaustion, wear and tear of property (owners and operators of mines and oil wells are allowed a deduction of five per cent of the gross output); seventh, the amount of dividends or income received from corporations, firms or association which are also taxable on their net income; and also the amount of income from national, state, municipal or school bond, and eighth, the amount of income that has had the normal upon it paid at the "source." (The first of the seven and all of the eight do not apply when the net income amounts to over $20,000 a year.)

HOW THE TAXES WORK.

It must be remembered that there are two separate and distinct taxes.

First, there is the normal tax of one per cent per annum on all net incomes amounting to more than $3,000. This tax also applies to the net income of corporations and associations even when under $3,000.

An additional tax of one per cent is established on all net incomes from over $20,000 and amounting to $50,000; and of two per cent from $50,000 and amounting to $75,000; and three per cent for the next $25,000; four per cent from $100,000 to $250,000; of five per cent for the next $250,000 and of six per cent on all net incomes over $500,000.

THE TAX AT WORK.

Take, for instance, some fortunate citizen who enjoys a net income of $100,000. First, he is allowed the exemption of $3,000, which leaves his taxable income $97,000. On this account he pays the normal tax of one per cent which amounts to $970.

Now begins the operation of the additional tax. First, he is allowed the exemption of $20,000, as the additional tax does not apply to amounts of that sum or less. Then on that part of his income which is between $20,000 and $50,000 he again pays a tax of one per cent or $300.

Then on that part of his income which is between $50,000 and $75,000 he is taxed two per cent, or $500.

As but $77,000 of his income exceeds the $20,000 mark, there remains but $2,000 which is taxable. On this amount he pays three per cent or $60.

Many people are under the impression that a person with an income of this amount would have to pay a straight tax of three per cent on the whole or $3,000.

TAXABLE INCOMES.

The incomes that are taxable to all persons include gains, profits and incomes derived from salaries, wages or compensation for personal service of whatever kind in whatever form paid; also from professions, vocations, business, trade, commerce, or securities, including that from property acquired by gift or inheritance (but not the value of it).

IRREGULAR INCOME.

When the profits, salaries or gains of a person are annual or periodical, then the employer, agent or corporation making the payment will deduct the amount of the normal tax and pay it to the government.

When the gains or profits are not fixed or determined (as commissions salesmen, authors, book agents) then the persons receiving the gains are to declare the amount of the same in their personal return. However, if part of their income is fixed, and amounts to more than $3,000, they are to deduct the amount of the tax on that fixed income in making the payment.

HOW TO GET EXEMPTIONS.

In the case where a person has an income that is taxed at the source and reasons allowed as deductions, such a person must make a written application not less than thirty days before the date upon which the return (the acknowledgment must of the amount of the income must be sent in by the employer on or before March 1st of each year) is made, setting forth the reasons and file the same with the employer or agent or with the government tax collector.

WHO SHALL MAKE RETURNS.

(Government quotations.)

All persons with an income of less than $20,000 who have the normal tax paid at the source are not required to make a statement regarding their income to the government. If over that amount they are.

All persons with a net income of over $3,000 and no part of which is paid at the source, must make a return. If they desire exemptions they must file the reasons for the same with the tax collectors. If they have an income, part of which has had paid the tax withheld and paid at the source, and part of which is not, they must make a return on that, but need not make mention of the other part on which the tax is paid—unless such income is over $20,000.

UNDER THREE THOUSAND.

There are certain revenues that are taxable as income whether or not the amount is over $3,000. The normal tax of one per cent shall be deducted and withheld from any fixed or determined gains, profit or interest derived from bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other obligations of corporations and joint stock companies. The income tax on such amounts shall be deducted at the source and paid to the government.

The same stipulations apply to coupons, checks, or bills of exchange in payment upon bonds of foreign corporations, associations or insurance companies engaged in business in the United States. Such deductions shall be made by the banker or person who shall cash, sell or otherwise realize upon coupons, checks or bills of exchange, and the banker or person must pay the tax so deducted to the government of the United States. The bankers or such persons shall take out a license (which costs nothing) to cash such coupons, checks or bills of exchange, else they will be liable to a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment for such offense, or both.

TAXING CORPORATIONS.

The net income of corporations, joint stock companies, associations or insurance companies or other business (except partnerships) shall be assessed by the normal tax only. In computing their net income they are allowed individuals.

However, any business institution, corporation, joint stock company or insurance company, is allowed as deduction the amount of interest accrued on its bonded or other indebtedness not exceeding one half the sum of the bonded indebtedness and its paid-up capital stock outstanding at the time of the payment of the capital sock, he amount of inerest paid within the year on the amount of interest paid during the year on the bonded indebtedness not including the amount of capital stock employed in its business at the close of the year.

Corporations will also be relieved of the paying of the excise tax after March 1, 1914 (dealers in alcoholic goods not included) and will pay only the normal income tax.

UNDIVIDED PROFITS.

All persons will be assessed for the gain and profits on any business in which they are interested whether or not such gains and profits are divided and distributed. It shall also be considered evidence of fraud if such gains and profits are allowed to accumulate more than the Secretary of the Treasury believes is needed to operate the business.

This provision does not include partnerships, for persons carrying on business as a partnership are liable for the income tax only in an individual capacity.

ADDITIONAL ON DIVIDENDS.

Corporations, joint-stock companies, associations and insurance companies are not assessed the additional tax on their net income. However, all of the dividends that are paid are not only assessed the normal tax at the source of the income, but such dividends interest and payments are liable for the additional tax (if over $20,000) after passing into the hands of individuals who receive them. This is considered by the government as effective as if the additional tax applied to the net income of corporations. Corporations and other similar companies are not allowed an exemption of $3,000.

TAXING MARRIED FOLK.

The married man with his wife living with him is exempt from taxation when his income is not over $4000. Payments of alimony will not be allowed as necessary expenses in computing the income, and the man whose wife is not living with him cannot claim the extra $1,000 exemption. The same stipulations apply to the taxable wife and the untaxable husband. If both have an income of $3,000 each, but one of them shall be allowed the extra $1000 exemption.

In committee conference, just before the law was passed, all tax exemptions because of children were stricken out. Many people are under the impression that there is an exemption of $500 for each minor child. No such provision was made.)

PUNISHMENTS PRESCRIBED.

Any person who shall neglect or refuse to make a return of income (on March 1st, or before) or any corporation, joint-stock company, association or insurance company who shall refuse to make a return sixty days after the close of the fiscal year (such business organization are allowed to designate the last day of any month as the close of their fiscal year) will be liable to a penalty not less than $20 and not more than $1,000.

Any person or any officer of any corporation or other similar business organization required to make a return, who shall attempt fraud will be liable to a fine not exceeding $2,000, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both.

Any person or any corporation or similar business organization who shall make a payment of the income tax on or before June 30th shall be liable to have five per cent of the tax due added to the amount due, and the total tax when due will be assessed at the rate of one per cent per month until paid. For any fraud detected in making the return, 100 per cent of the amount due will be added to the tax. For negligence or refusal to make a return, 50 per cent of the amount due shall be added and subjected to tax.

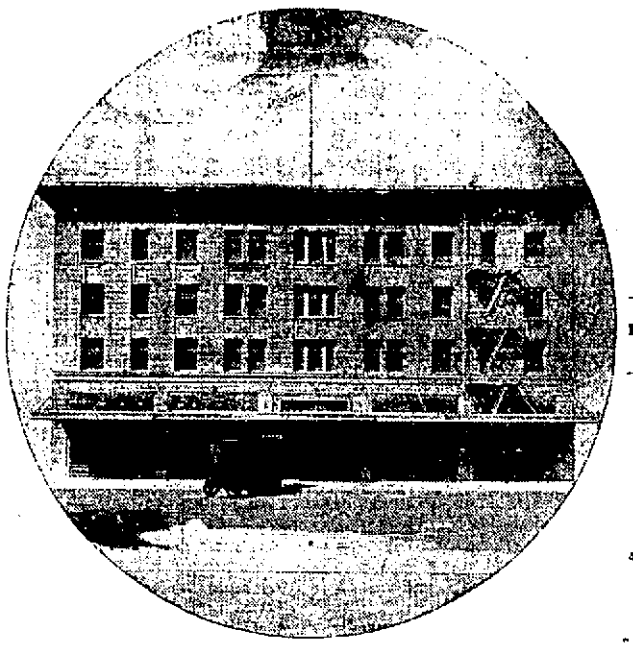

There is an additional penalty for all corporations, joint-stock companies, associations and insurance companies which provides that for the neglect to pay the tax when due, or for any fraudulent to evade the tax, that they shall pay a tax not exceeding $20,000.

SECRECY OF ACCOUNTS.

The government will use every effort to maintain secrecy. The amount of no income or the amount of the tax thereon will be indan public. The better to keep employes and deputy collectors from learning the business secrets of individuals and companies, no record of any person's or company's net income, expenses or tax will be kept in the office of the internal revenue collectors. Any collector, deputy collector, agent or employe who shall give out information concerning the income of another person will be liable to a fine of $1,000, imprisonment for a year, and will be disbarred forever from holding office under the government. No person may see the records unless permitted by the Secretary of the Treasury, or else accredited officials of States wherein an income tax is imposed by the State itself.

The salary of President Wilson and of the judges of the Supreme and inferior courts was exempted from taxation because of a constitutional provision which sets forth that their salaries shall in no way be diminished during their term of office.

If President Wilson is re-elected he will subject to the income tax. When a vacancy occurs on the Supreme Court bench and another jurist is appointed, his salary will be taxed.

Brick Walls Never Crack When Built Right

Brick walls are the most durable of any. There is practically no limit to their length of life. A properly built brick wall will last indefinitely. It does not deteriorate.

And a brick wall is the greatest resistant of heat. It will stand far more than the heat of an ordinary fire. This is something that can not be said of most building materials.

There are no costly defects to be remedied, for these are not made in brick walls.

BREEDEN TO TALK ON SOCIAL EVIL

"The Social Evil" will be the subject of the sermon by Dr. Harvey O. Breeden at the First Christian church this evening, which will continue the series of sociological addresses which the pastor has been giving for the past two months at his evening Sunday services. "Softly Now the Light of Day," Sudds' trio, and the anthem, "Be Though Exalted" will be given at this service.

Dr. Pedlar in Death's Shadow Writes of Kindly Ministrations

Among the papers left by Dr. A. J. Pedlar, who died in Oakland last week after having been one of the most prominent citizens of Fresno for many years, was found the statement by him printed below. It is supposed to have been written in 1911, when he began that long vision of death which has just ended.

Life, its sorrows, joys, duties and responsibilities, all stand round about me today. Some are before me, though just now there is but little to be seen in that direction. Behind me, in the pathway and on either side, rise the reminders of what has been and the not infrequent suggestion of what might have been.

For the last ten years the struggle has not been easy and the experiences have not been always pleasing, either to myself or to those dear, patient souls who have without ceasing ministered to my comfort.

To those kind friends whose well-meant efforts have been freely given, though at "long range," I have a profound feeling of thankfulness. To those more self-sacrificing friends who, not daunted by the very shadow of acute suffering and its visible tortures, have freely given me their time, substance and sympathy by day and by night, I here extend my sincere gratitude. May the Giver of Life and all good gifts grant them health and strength upon their journey and not call for them too soon.

Entirely outside and far above those good friends already referred to, there remains yet another group. Fewer in number, self-sacrificing and thoughtful beyond all others, they have long been my inspiration, my hope! and with me they have freely gone down into the dark shadows, even into the thick darkness of long torturing nights beyond number. First among these rare and unrewarded comrades of my long and dreary march, stands my dear, devoted and ever-faithful wife. For three and thirty years she has, under all circumstances, been my comfort, my joy and my hope. Freely has she given of her very life that I might live, and for her I humbly ask to be spared that I may in some measure recompense the great and prolonged sacrifice she has made in my behalf.

My heart is full and beats warmly for my dear son, whose efforts have been generous, manly and affectionate in our hour of trial. He has honored both his father and mother. His years considered, his errors of judgment count but lightly with me. I have not forgotten that I too, was once a boy.

When I recall more of the closer friends and heroic ones I can not name them all, so I extend in them collectively my warmest blessing and my prayer for their comfort, peace and happiness both here and in the life beyond.

To the kind, the good and the true members of my chosen profession who have freely given of their time and knowledge in my behalf I am indebted beyond calculation. To approximately reward them would necessitate an over-draft upon the Bank of Personal Gratitude.

"The mistakes of my life have been many," but their heaviest blow has probably fallen chiefly upon myself. I hope it is true.

Whatever today, tomorrow or future days may send me, God grant that I may manfully accept the inevitable.

SAYS COMPETITION IN MINING CAUSE OF TREMENDOUS WASTE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—In his address last Tuesday before the American MiningCongress on "The Relation of Big Business to Industrial Prosperity With Special Reference To Mining," Dr. Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin and one of the leading political economists of the country, declared that the Sherman anti-trust act was responsible for the tremendous waste in mining through permitting unrestrained competition. He said that when the Sherman act was passed, "immediately the wheels, so far as cooperation was concerned, were turned back to the conditions of the middle ages." He urged that an interstate trade commission and state trade commissions be established, which shall have substantially the same power to regulate cooperation in industry, that the Interstate Commerce Commission has in regard to public utilities.

"It seems to be," said Dr. Van Hise, "that the Interstate and state Commerce Commissions and the administrative bodies for the pure food laws point the way for the next constructive step in the development of the laws. It would perhaps be chimerical, with public opinion as at present, to propose the repeal of the Sherman law, but the situation may be met by amendments to this law. The Sherman act can be left to apply, as defined by the Supreme Court, to monopoly. Unreasonable restraint of trade may be defined as monopolistic restraint of trade, and it is rather generally agreed that monopoly should be prohibited. To make the matter perfectly clear another amendment should allow reasonable cooperation, but such cooperation should be under the watchful eyes of administrative commissions in order to protect the public.

COMPETITION VS. CONSERVATION

"There can be no question that the competitive system, when unrestrained, is positively opposed to the policy of conservation. This is true alike for minerals and timber. The minerals of the earth require the building of the earth for their making. Mineral deposits are doubtless in the process of manufacture at the present time; but even, if so, this is at so low a rate as to be negligible. From the point of view of mankind, the stores of minerals in the earth are deposits of definite magnitude upon which we may draw but once and which by no possibility can be increased. In this connection it should be recognized that modern civilization would not be possible without the mineral resources of the earth—no iron ships, no tools except those of stone, no fuel but wood. Without the sub-surface products of the earth we would at once return to the material conditions of the stone age. It is therefore incontrovertible that from the point of view of the human race, economic systems or laws which result in unnecessarily rapid use of the mineral stores of the earth are indefensible; but such are the economic theories and laws now dominant in the United States.

"The masterfulness of the competitive system may be proved with regard every product which is taken from the earth. Lead and zinc in Wisconsin and Missouri are mined on a small scale under an extreme competitive system. The losses of these metals in their mining and metallurgy are nothing short of appalling. In Southeastern Missouri, according to the late Dr. Bulkley, not less than 15 per cent of the metal is left underground; the losses in concentration approach 15 per cent; the loss in smelting and concentration frequently amount to 15 or 20 per cent; thus making a total loss of from 45 to 50 per cent. These great losses are due to the system of numerous small holdings combined with the competitive system. High royalties on the part of the small feeholder are demanded of the operator. The operators desire to get large returns at the earliest practical moment upon this small investment. In consequence ore is left in the ground that should be mined; unnecessary losses take place in concentration, also unnecessary losses occur in smelting.

COAL LOSSES

"But the most disastrous losses in mining as far as the future of the human race is concerned are in connection with coal. Director Holmes of the United States Bureau of Mines, in a paper upon mineral wastes, presents the facts in regard to the ruinous wastes of the unrestrained competitive system in connection with coal. He says that in the early days of mining, when there was much subdivision of ownership, that not more than 30 to 40 per cent of the anthracite coal in the veins mined was brought to the surface, leaving from 60 to 70 per cent in the ground. He states that even at the present time that not more than 50 per cent of the anthracite reaches the surface. The situation is similar for bituminous coal, but until recently the losses for such coal was substantially half. This loss has been somewhat reduced, but it continues to be appalling. Holmes estimates that since the beginning of mining in the United States, two billion tons of anthracite and three billion tons of bituminous coal have been left underground in such condition as to make its future recovery doubtful or impossible. The principles which from the point of view of conservation should apply to the mining of coal are well known. So far as practicable the mines should be so worked as to make one superimposed vein after the other available. Coal slack should be reduced in amount and utilized. No considerable percentage of coal should be left in the ground as pillars. If these reforms are introduced, the losses could be reduced to half the present amounts and possibly to one-fourth.

"But to ask that any such proposals should be put into operation is purely chimerical. Under the Sherman law there is no opportunity to limit output, divide territory, or regulate prices. Five thousand bituminous operators could produce two hundred millions of tons of coal per annum beyond present demands. If the operators could agree upon limitations of output, and division of market so as to reduce freights, and could arrange for reasonable prices, which would give them no more than their present profits, they would then be able to follo these principles in mining their coal; for they themselves would be gainers in prolonging the life of their mines, and far more important, many future generations would be the immeasurable gainers in that they would have an adequate coal supply.

"Under the competitive system, we are recklessly skimming the cream of the natural resources of a virgin continent with no regard for the rights of our children or our childrens children. They will have a heavy score against us if we continue to ignore the future and to apply the unrestrained competitive system in total disregard of their rights.

COOPERATION THE CURE

"My proposal to remedy these conditions is neither regulated competition, nor regulated monopoly, but retention of competition, prohibition of monopoly, permission of cooperation, and regulation of the latter. At the present time there are state and national movements to still further extend the advantages of cooperation to the farmers. Since it is unquestionable that the sense of justice of the citizens of the United States will support the courts in prohibiting class legislation, we shall, therefore, I believe, ultimately permit cooperation in all lines of business alike. If we, however, retain freedom of competition, permit concentration sufficient to give efficiency, allow reasonable cooperation, and prevent monopoly, this will require regulation just as it has been necessary to regulate the railroads. This done, the Sherman law will be forgotten. Has there been any prosecution of the railroads for violations of the Sherman law because of collusion in fixing rates? And yet, everyone knows that they are just as flagrant violators of the Sherman act as any other class of corporations in the United States. Are the freight rates the same for different roads between any two points? Are the passenger rates between Philadelphia and Chicago identical on all roads? Can you do better in price by traveling over the Pennsylvania, than over any other road? The rate is the same providing the speed is the same. How does it happen that the roads all get together? Just by Providence, I suppose. It was doubtless by a providential act that these rates were fixed identically upon all roads, under the same conditions, all over the country.

"Why is it that nobody proposes to indict the railroads for collusion?" Simply for the reason that the rates which they can charge are controlled by commissions, national and state. Nobody any longer wishes to make them further trouble, because the public is protected by its commissions. The railroads are just as amenable to attack under the Sherman act as any other combination in the United States, but when the railroads are giving reasonable rates, and are competing in giving reasonable service, even if the law is on the statute book and is the hallowed thing that has been described—the sense of official justice is such that they are not attacked in the courts. Will the attorney general of the United States or the attorney general of this or any other state, bring suit against the railroads for conspiracy in fixing rates when the public is properly protected? I have not heard the proposal made anywhere.

DISCRIMINATION

"However, it is a wrong condition when we have on the statute books a law of a kind which requires the officials of justice to close one eye whenever they pass by the men in control of one great group of industries, and at the same moment see other men not one whit more guilty. We ought to remedy this condition so that honorable business men shall not be in the position, the unfortunate position, of being technically violators of statutes which it is not advantageous from the public point of view to enforce.

"In regard to the Sherman act, it has been assumed that its only violators are the great combinations. This assumption is made in practically all discussions of the question. The Steel Trust, the Tobacco Trust, and a few other large combinations are mentioned; and it is supposed that the small business man and the small producers are not acting in violation of the law. But the principle of cooperation which the Sherman act tries to suppress extends from the great industrial centers, like Philadelphia to the country cross-roads. Does it make any difference here in Philadelphia, the home of Anthracite, whether one buys anthracite of one retail dealer or another? It doesn't make any difference in the country cross-roads either. The price is just the same from all the dealers in the same locality. The same is true of ice, the antithesis of anthracite, and is also true of all standard articles. The principle of cooperation has extended from the great manufacturers and the great dealers of the large cities to the small manufacturers and small dealers of the small cities and even villages. All are cooperating in the same way; the principle is the same for the large and small man; one is violating the law just as certainly as is the other. I am willing to stand for enforcement of law when the law is enforced alike for all; but when somebody is picked out because he is in the front seat, or because it is good politics to attack him; and ninety-nine or nine hundred and ninety-nine are allowed to escape, I say that it is a profoundly immoral situation. And that is exactly the existing situation in this country. The politician who says, 'Break up these trusts; destroy them,' says with the same breath, 'We must have cooperation among farmers.'

FARM TRUSTS

"Why, the cranberry growers of Cape Cod, New Jersey, and Wisconsin, sell about 90 per cent of their products through an agency down in Hudson street, New York. Similarly many products of the farmers, illustrated by cotton, citrus fruits, etc., are marketed through cooperative selling agencies. Have we heard of the attorney general prosecuting these farmers? Congress understands the situation and at their two recent sessions they attached to the Sundry Civil bill a clause containing an appropriation of $300,000 for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws, which included the provision that none of this money should be spent in prosecuting combinations or agreements of labor, not spent for the prosecution of farm products and associations of farmers who cooperate and organize in an effort to and for the purpose to obtain and maintain a fair and reasonable price for their products.' The purpose of this provision is clearly to make the Sherman law class legislation by indirection and in effect to prevent equality before the law of the manufacturer as compared with the farmer. And some of the smarter state legislatures have seen the situation and in order to prevent the farmers from being hit by their antitrust bills exempted the products of the lands so long as in the hands of the producers. You see, the state legislatures, like congress saw that the farmers have so many votes that they have to be dealt with gently when they form a trust. But some of the state laws got into the United States courts, and these courts promptly declared these exemptions unconstitutional as being special legislation. I venture to predict that it will not be so popular a political game to shout, 'Bust the trusts' when the farmers understand that their trusts are also to be 'busted.' No more pernicious or immoral legislation was ever passed by Congress or by the states. The principles of justice in regard to trusts and combinations are alike for the manufacturers, the farmers and the laborers. In this country we have not a special situation which concerns a few men, but a general, irresistible impulse. There is just as close-rivited an arrangement between the three icemen in the country town as there is in steel; and any solution of the problem of combination, if it be a just solution, must be applied not only to steel, tobacco, etc., but to the small tradesman, the farmer. Just as clearly as the great combinations are violating the Sherman act, as I have no doubt many of them are, so are the small aggregations of wealth violating state anti-trust statutes. This general violation of the trust laws national and state is the problem that we have before us."

ENDED HAPPILY.

The talk at a recent reception turned to literature, when Louis Mann, the comedian, was reminded of a story read by a party in New England.

The party was the wife of a farmer, and as she laid down the magazine that she had been reading and soulfully sighed, her husband glanced up from his newspaper.

"What's the matter, Mariar," asked the old man. "Have ye finished that story?"

"Yes, Henry," answered Maria, "just this very minute."

"I s'pose," said Henry, resuming his paper, "that it ended happy."

"Yes," answered Maria. The beautiful heroine got over a long spell of sickness, an' what's more, the story give the name an' the price of the medicine that cured her." — Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A VALUABLE DOG

A shambling old negro went down the street leading a big dog with a "For Sale" sign on its collar. A little girl spied the dog and wanted it. She teased so hard that her mother finally asked its price.

"Two dollahs," said the negro, an expectant grin dividing his features.

"Two dollars!" exclaimed the lady. "Why, the dog isn't worth that much. I'll give you 50 cents."

The negro drew himself up indignantly. "Lady," he said, "Ah couldn't think of it. Why de fellow Ah got dis dog from gave me a dollah to get rid of him!"—Everybody's Magazine.

FLAMES DECREASE IN BURNING OIL GUSHER

Subside From 200 to 50 Ft.; To Use Mud and Steam In Extinguishing Blaze

TAFT, Oct. 25.—Although the flaming gusher of the Kern Trading & Oil Company was at its usual height last night, West Siders were this morning surprised to find that it is but a ghost of its former self. Where yesterday the flames were going 200 feet into the air with a pressure which made a dull roar, the blaze is now but little more than 50 feet high with indications of dropping lower.

An effort was made to extinguish the flames this afternoon. To augment the steam lines in the work of extinguishing the blaze, the Kern Trading & Oil company has contracted with the Los Angeles Mfg. company for the erection of a two thousand barrel tank on the edge of the crater. Work was started on the tank yesterday morning with plans to have it completed today. This tank is to be filled with heavy mud which is to be dumped into the crater of the miniature volcano at the same time the steam is turned in from the 8-inch lines.

Because of the pressure condition of the flames it is believed the work of extinguishing the fire will be accomplished with but little trouble.

LAKEVIEW COMPANY TO COMPLETE WELL

MARICOPA, Oct. 25.—The No. 12 well of the Lakeview property of the Union Oil Company was cemented yesterday, to shut off the bottom water. The No. 11 well, which was cemented over a week ago, has been drilled in, and will now be completed to the sand as soon as possible. The new officials in charge of the lease, since the Union took over the property about a month ago from the minority stockholders, have made an excellent showing, and there is every reason to believe that within a short time the production will be increased to more than it has since the Lakeview gusher ceased to flow.

LOS ANGELES PARTY BUYS MIDWAY LEASE

Maricopa Queen, Regarded As Valuable Property, Changes Ownership

MARICOPA, Oct. 25.—A rumor is current in the West Side that the Maricopa Queen Oil Company has sold its lease and property, on section 32, 12-23, to a syndicate of Los Angeles capitalists. It is known that an option was given on the property sometime ago, and that the officers of the company wished to dispose of the lease, as it had more than paid for itself and would bring a big price at this particular time, as the territory has been proven to be the richest in the entire Sunset field. The leasehold is to 20 acres, and has been improved with seven wells, of which two are gushers doing from 800 to 1200 barrels per day. The remaining five wells are regular producers of from 100 to 250 barrels.

To W. S. Wilhelm, president and superintendent of the company, belongs the credit of discovering the famous Wilhelm sand, which has made the territory on sections 32, 12-23 and 5, 11-23 the most valuable in the entire Sunset field. The wells in that section were formerly all producers of a heavier gravity oil found at a much shallower depth, and known as the third sand. When the No. 7 well was deepened by Mr. Wilhelm, the bottom oil sand was encountered and the well came in with a flow of 10,000 barrels. It was reduced down and has since been producing a 26 gravity oil at the rate of 1200 barrels per day. Since that time the No. 6 and No. 5 wells were deepened. The No. 5 well reached the sand last week, and came in with a big flow, doing 2,000 barrels of oil in six hours. The No. 6 well has not been completed to the sand as yet, but will be finished in the near future.

The company is owned by Long Beach men and has it offices in that city. W. S. Wilhelm is president, C. Smith, vice-president and George Spicer attorney and secretary.

BIG OIL COMBINE MAY BRING MILLIONS TO STATE

Royal-Dutch-Schell Is Still Buying Up California Oil Properties

Seek Control of Union Oil and Are Working On Other Projects

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—It is estimated by well posted men that the Royal-Dutch-Schell Combine, backed by the Rothschilds, intends to ultimately invest $75,000,000 in the California oilfields. The latest purchase, that of the Mays, in the Midway, was consummated at $1,000,000.

By virtue of the fact that the European combine has always been the most powerful rival of the Standard Oil company in world oil trade, it is evident that investments to the extent indicated, would virtually revolutionize the oil business here, and probably result in its settling finally into the hands of the two mighty powers.

Chief among the projects, which are being worked on by the Royal Dutch Schell combine, is the more than probable absorption of the Union Oil company of this city, on the control of which Eugene J. de Sabla, Jr., in the interest of the General Petroleum company of San Francisco, holds an option.

De Sabla, who is president of the General Petroleum, left New York for London only a few weeks ago to join Capt. John Barneson, manager of the company, presumably for the purpose of closing up the transaction, which is also to include the General Petroleum company. Barneson has been in London since last spring, and has been negotiating with the Rothschild combine a large part of that time.

Everything seems to point to early completion of the deal. Those here who are in touch with the negotiations say that they understand that steady progress is made toward that end. Recent advices pointed to the fact that the decision on the transaction is practically up to the Royal Dutch Schell directorate.

No modifications in the option on the Union Oil control have been asked, and the purchase price still stands at $130 a share. Payments on the option have speedily been made, and $733,000 of the $1,000,000 involved has been received. The deal for the Union's control involves over $20,000,000 and will net stockholders of United Petroleum and Union Provident $120 a share when consummated under the present terms.

FIRST STEPS.

It is certain that the first steps in the Royal Dutch-Schell deal were taken before Barneson's departure for Europe. It was not long after this that public announcement of the combine's intention of entering the oil-producing business in California was made. The combine for some time previous had been shipping gasoline to this coast from the Orient, through its subsidiary, the American Gasoline company. Most of the cargoes went to Seattle, although lately San Francisco has also been receiving them.

The first producing property purchased by the combine was the California Oilfields, Ltd., a very successful English corporation, operating in Coalinga field. Almost simultaneously came the announcement that the European concern would also build a pipe line and refineries to handle this oil. It is worthy of not, however, that since the negotiations for the Union and General Petroleum have been coming to a head, the pipe line scheme has apparently been dropped.

The Union Oil Company controls the producers' Transportation Company's line from the Kern county fields to Port Harford, near San Luis Obispo. This line has a capacity of about 40,000 barrels a month, having recently been doubled from Junction Station to Port Harford. Over this line is also handled the oil of the members of the Independent Oil Producers' Agency, a co-operative organization, of which the Union is well supplied with oil transportation facilities in all sections of the state.

The General Pipe Line Company, a subsidiary of the General Petroleum company, operates a pipe line from Midway to Los Angles Harbor and a branch from Lehec to Mojave. The company has, however, been hampered in its operations by lack of water transportation facilities, and has only lately been able to relieve itself of this difficulty by disposing of its crude to other California concerns, as well as to the Royal Dutch Shell combine, under a contract effected lately in London by Capt. Barneson.

The Union Oil company owns a magnificent fleet of oil-carrying ships, to which it is adding continually under the pressure of a steadily increasing volume of sales. Let alone the acquisition of the oil properties and production of the two companies, it can easily be seen what tremendous assets in transportation the Royal Dutch-Shell combine would secure in taking over the two companies. It is certain that the Europeans are to become one of the principal marketers as soon as the Panama Canal is opened, by virtue of the large trade in fuel oil with Great Britain and other foreign countries, which will then be opened up.

According to well-informed parties the Rothschild combine contemplates the expenditure of about $100,000,000 in the developments of its oil business in this country. This would leave an immense surplus for future operations after the absorption of the Union and General Petroleum is effected. It is probable that that deal would not represent an investment of more that $60,000,000 when carried out, and probably less than half this amount would be paid in securities.

In the deals so far effected stocks and bonds in the European companies have played the most important part, but in view of the large dividends paid, stockholders probably find such consideration very acceptable. The dividend on Shell Transport and Trading stock last year was 30 per cent.

A recent significant development in relation to the deal has been the raising of the capital of the Shell Transport and Trading company, which will place $5,000,000 available for immediate use. A portion of this will probably be used to purchase the option on the control of the Union Oil company.

MOST RECENT PURCHASE IS MAYS

The most recent purchase of the combine in this state is its smallest thus far—the Mays Consolidated Oil Company, which operates several hundred acres in Midway field. The consideration in this deal, which was lately ratified in the East, was some $1,000,000. The total investments of the combine in oil properties here now approximate $17,500,000, others, beside those mentioned, for which deals are practically closed being the W. K. and Turner oil companies. California people are largely interested in the last two, and they have been listed on the San Francisco Stock Exchange for a number of years. The properties are located in the Coalinga field. The Mays Consolidated is the first purchase in Midway.

IS EXTENSIVE AS STANDARD

The Rothschild combine, through its many subsidiaries has been as aggressive and vigorous a developer of the oil business in the old world as the Standard Oil company has been in the new. It is the leading operator in the Oriental oil fields, including India, Sumatra, Java and other sections.

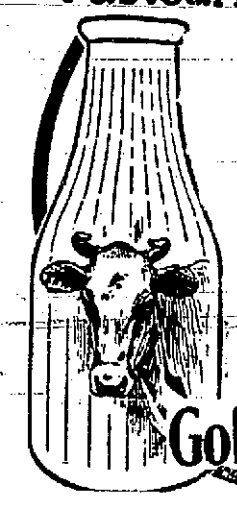

The combine has built up expensive markets for kerosine in China and Japan, but is short on this product, and has been securing some here for return cargoes on the ships which bring over gasoline.

Beside these oriental interests the combine has led in the development of Russian fields, through its subsidiaries and allied companies. In every section of the world, in fact, except America, it has in the past been a leader in activity.

During the past year or so its entrance into the Western Hemisphere was effected through purchase of properties in Mexico, Oklahoma and other eastern sections and finally in California, where its operations promise to be most important.

Instructional Talks On Player Pianos No. 6

Hymns, Ragtime, Sentimental And Classical Music Are All Yours With A Player Piano.....

NOWADAYS you don't need to know how to play a piano. That is, you do not have to be a musician. The mechanical part of producing piano music is attended to by the player piano.

But that doesn't mean that it is mechanical music. Quite the opposite is true.

You can show your interpretation of music quite as well on a player piano as a musician who has spent years in study can on his favorite instrument.

This is because of the devices that permit every shading of volume of sound that is possible. You can throw expression into the music. And that's the main thing, anyway.

If you like ragtime—there's your favorite snappy, happy music just to your liking. If the stately cadence of hymns, or the inspiring strains of classical music suit you better, the world's best musicians are yours with a player piano.

People who enjoy music can have the best of it with a player piano. People are buying player pianos nowadays because they have two instruments in one—a player and a piano.

The Right Way To Buy Your Piano

The right way to buy your piano is to go to a dependable house and pay a reasonable price for an instrument that has a good tone, good workmanship, good material, and a reputable factory behind it.

For 35 years we have studied piano construction and the needs of the piano-buying public, 18 years of this time in Fresno. We know them both and knowing them both, we are able to guarantee to every prospective buyer of a piano or player piano the very highest possible value, the greatest satisfaction and durability at the price paid.

An Artistic Piano For Only $650

Through recent improvements in player manufacture, we are selling now, on extremely easy terms, a new design of 38-note player piano in splendid mahogany, fumed oak, walnut, or mission case that wins the admiration of all who see it.

DARJEELING

By MARGUERITE THOMPSON

It sounds simple enough, a week-end trip to Darjeeling, and really the distance is very short—but it takes almost a week end to go through the succession of changes, boats and trains before one even arrives there. We left Calcutta in the afternoon. Really the only nice part about Calcutta is the leaving it—the country round is luxuriant and the huts with their quaint thatched roofs curving over their eaves and their transparent walls are fascinating. The walls are made of woven rushes like open lattice work. No one worries about privacy, it's too hot. Just as the sun disappeared in the stagnant gray air that lies on the horizon, our train stopped and as everybody else got out we did too and rushed after others through sand and over clumsy board walks to where a boat was waiting to ferry us across one of the mouths of the Ganges.

It was so beautiful on the river, far on either side was the dark line of the shore, treeless, barren, uninhabited, there was no sign that we had ever left anything so boisterous as a great railroad terminal or that we would ever find anything of the kind on the other side. Indeed, we were making no attempt to reach the other side but lay idly floating on the great light surface of the water. The moon hung low on the sandy bank and the water lay smooth and white and motionless save where a mad current of ripples foamed in and out and away through the peaceful mass of waters. Our boat just crept along, so slowly as left no path behind her in the waters, now we ran along side one bank, then the other, again we sought refuge from the treacherous currents by keeping well in the center. Sometimes we hurried up for a short distance only to drift back again farther than we had come. It was eleven when we reached the terminal on the other side of the river where the trains were already waiting us. There was a great crowd and in a few minutes everything was full. We could find no place, except a couch occupied by one lone Hindu; getting desperate we climbed in with him, apologizing for so doing as he had evidently settled himself for the night. "I am sorry," he said in perfect English, "there are only berths here for four and there are four of you. Make yourselves comfortable and I will send my servant to find me another place." Evidently there were none to be had for when the servant returned, the Hindu bade him take out his trunks and began to roll up his blankets. We protested, "What would he do if there were no more places, he could have to stay, we could manage—" "Oh it is no inconvenience," he answered, "I am on my way to Ceylon; what is a day more or less? I will wait here at the station till tomorrow. I thank you!" And he was gone.

Just before leaving Calcutta we were attached by the most dreadful person and she has come to Darjeeling with us. She is one of these professional travelers, the kind who begin to travel at sixty and continue the rest of their days, the kind that goes around the world on two cents and gets some missionary society to furnish that in return for her giving them lectures on her return about the world as she saw it. She has white hair and a little pink face exactly like the tiny monkeys in zoos and her chin wiggles in a most horribly fascinating manner. Even as I write her high raspy voice pierces my brain from ear to ear and her hard clumpy walk beats in my head. Since she joined us yesterday she has talked day and night without one stop for stations. I fear I'm to blame for her talking all night for I made her sleep on the upper berth in the car and she's never gotten over it—she talked of nothing else all night and all today. You see our coach had two lower berths and two upper ones, the upper ones are always miserable little places, impossible to sit up or move around in for they are only two feet from the ceiling at the widest point—I took one upper berth and Thea being ill took the lower. That left my little aunt and the monkey lady to share the other two. The monkey lady in a flash transferred her things to the lower berth and sat upon it with a firm air of possession. The little aunt being the most unselfish of persons prepared meekly to climb above but I objected and literally forced the monkey lady above for she was far more vigorous and able to climb than my aunt. And yet I feel very sorry for her, she means well, it's only that she is so used to being alone and having to grab the best of everything for herself before someone else gets it that its become the habit. It seems such a pity that she is with us and at Darjeeling of all places but you can't leave little old ladies to wander fearfully about alone in India no matter who they are. If only she'd eat at stations, she has had nothing but crackers since yesterday and I fear she will starve on our hands. But enough of old ladies—they pass, and like seasickness, you quickly forget. And after all, I admire them, I admire their pluck and courage, to begin at their age without money or knowledge or health and travel into all manner of strange places, to do the things most people always long to do and are far better able to do but lack the courage to get up and start out.

We were turned out bright and early this morning at the most dreary of little stations in the most dreary of open barren country and flat, it was level as a desert and yet this was where we were to take the tiny little railway that runs from the low flat plains of India up into the Himalayas to Darjeeling, 9,600 feet above. The plain was all about us and a little toy train was waiting to take us up but we couldn't for the life of us see anything to go up. And yet no sooner were we in our seats than we started up! This is a point which never will be very clear in my mind and I intend to investigate most thoroughly on our return trip. We ran along an inclined plane for a short distance and found ourselves plunged into a most marvelous jungle, only they don't call it a jungle but something quite different which I forget. The trees are tall and thin reaching far above in a vain effort to free themselves from the mass of vines and creepers that weigh upon them and seek to smother them. Giant vines, almost as big as the tree trunks swing across from one tree to the next and a thousand smaller creepers reach up towards it and wind it over and over and twist themselves into knots until the forest is lost in the mad tangle and twisting of these creeping things.

In our compartment was an Eurasian woman who lived in Darjeeling and she told us how not so many years ago they would stop the train and everyone go on a tiger hunt in the jungle if a tiger was seen, that if you wanted to get out and visit a friend they would wait for you but that since Darjeeling has become so popular as a hill station the government has been more strict and requires that the time schedule be kept within four hours if possible, in other words that the reputation Mark Twain gave this chubby little railroad is no exaggeration but the strictest truth.

I never knew a train to make such fast time straight up a hill as our aggressive little engine did, and certainly it was the steepest track I ever saw. We wound right up and around the edges of the world, up into the mists that always hang over the mountains, where the trees, creepers, rocks everything is covered with long hairy moss and the dampness sits in beads of water on the saturated world. At times the rain drizzled down and the world was lost in mist and we crawled around the edge of dripping precipices with nothing above, or below only a ghostly track beneath us. And this is the dry season in the Himalayas! Then the everchanging mists would open and we looked far below into green mysterious valleys and again we caught glimpses of mountains, more vast than anything we had ever dreamed. Sometimes the trees were torn away and a great scar of yellow earth already greening with ferns told of some landslide in the last rainy season. The earth was all gorgeous, soft ferns, everywhere was a garden, a green garden of dripping plants.

And cold! Oh it was chilly cold and the bitter dampness wormed its icy way through rugs, blankets and our heavy coats, the first time since we left Paris that we had used them. Our hands and feet froze and we were soon wet like the dripping landscape for the railway coaches have no windows so that one can enjoy the scenery. But it was good to be alive again after the half conscious state we were in below in Calcutta heat, even while the dampness chilled and oppressed with its heaviness, the cold of it vitalized. Thea came slowly to life, her fever left her. "Oh I am so thankful I came," she said, "I know I should have died if I hadn't gotten out of that awful climate!" Our appetites returned, we bought tea at every station beside chasla hauzan at the first station, breakfast at ten and tiffin at eleven and after each meal we felt so delightfully warm with all that curry and rice inside us and the burn of it still in our mouths that we could endure the cold till the next eating place.

There are many stations all the way along the road, wooden shacks with wide verandas huddled together over the abyss, a touch of bright color here and there, a pink dahlia or geranium, maybe a blue pole or a scarlet strip of paper, a sickly plantain with pale leaves and fruit that never ripens, and against the blue mist of the great depths around and about and below, the green parasols of the papaia trees. At the larger stations—those consisting of five or six shacks—the hill-folk gathered about us with trays of marvelous treasures for sale, amulets of brass set with myriads of turquois and containing the prayers that the gods love, weird brass spoons from Thibet, strange necklaces of carved beads, earrings of jade and turquoise, prayer wheels and loose stones. Thea bought two exquisitely colored pieces of turquoise matrix for two cents apiece. I foolishly thought I'd wait till we reach Darjeeling. Alas, when I reached Darjeeling I found plenty of imitations but the genuine was very scarce and dear. One lady bought a little sack containing dozens of turquois of various sizes, a few opals and other stones, all for forty cents. But such things are a mere chance, unfortunately I had no luck at all, no such opportunities came my way.

How different everything was! After the heat of India and its naked crowds, to find oneself here in the cold all of a sudden and around one a new kind of human being, tall, strong free creatures padded and muffled and fur-lined like Esquimaux. The Hindu had disappeared and in his place were these strong, hardy folk of the hills, with yellow Chinese faces and long free strides. And still we climbed up, up into the heights of the world, we doubled back and forth on our tracks, zigzag on the side of the precipice, where there was room we made loops and even double loops. And always the ghostliness of it all in the swaying mists. We climbed to an elevation of over 9,000 and then slid down a gentle thousand on the other side to Darjeeling. And even at this height, and in the middle of winter (January) there was no snow anywhere, neither around us or on the mountains around and below. The dampness is so heavy that there is seldom any snow, neither is the cold ever terribly intense. Everything is green, heavy, luxuriant green, the giant mountains in the distance and the tiny valleys in the depths; the ground is green and heavy delicate ferns cover everything. Out of the tangle of matted creepers the trees are heavy and green with moss and there are the giant fronds of great tree ferns.

We reached Darjeeling at four in the afternoon—we were due at eleven, but that is nothing unusual. Mrs. Roberts was expecting us and carried us off up the hill in the mist and built us a fire to thaw out by. Imagine! People at Darjeeling actually live in that cold without fire! They had to build one especially for us. I thought I should never get thawed out. I warmed my hands and feet and toasted my back but while the surface gets warm and comfortable for a minute, the whole inside of me is frozen still. However I hope to be warmed through by tomorrow. Mrs. Roberts is a cheery little Scotch woman and she is filling us up with boiling tea and smothering us in blankets. She was only expecting the three of us and had only two rooms, one a large cheery room overlooking all Darjeeling with a pretty garden below and the great ranges of the Himalayas above, the other an ordinary back bedroom. The monkey lady took one look. "I suppose you three will want to be together," she said, "so I will take this room," and she moved her things into the large cheery room leaving us the back bedroom! We gasped but were too cold to protest. But certainly one of us will have to keep her company for there is only room for two of us in this room and I forsee that one is I. For I know Thea would sleep on the floor before she would share a room with the monkey lady. And tomorrow we see Darjeeling and the highest mountains of the world if the mists permit.

Second Carload In 30 Days

Peerless

Stoves and Ranges

No other dealer in the Valley has a record like this. Our sales since the arrival of our first car load for this season, September 13th, have been so far beyond our expectations that within 30 days we found it necessary to order a second car load, which we have just gotten in. A demand so phenomenal as this is conclusive proof that PEERLESS ranges are first in the hearts of thrifty housewives. They are so good and yet cost so little.

PEERLESS stoves and ranges receive their baking, fuel saving and lasting qualities, their attractiveness, their rich trimmings and every other detail of their construction that places them above all other makes, in the largest foundry on the Pacific Coast, that of the old reliable James Graham Manufacturing Co., at Newark, California.

They cost you so much less than other ranges because of our buying advantages over other dealers. We save money by buying in car-load lots — we save money by dealing direct with the makers themselves—we save money by buying a California made range, thus cutting out the high freight the dealer pays who sells Eastern makes. These savings enable us to sell you a range, a PEERLESS, unequaled in quality for so much less money than you would be asked to pay elsewhere that comparison would be absurd.

You must see the PEERLESS to understand the wonderful value we give you and must use it to appreciate its baking satisfaction and fuel economy.

If you want to know what others think of Peerless Ranges, ask for our free booklet that contains the names and testimonials of some of the Fresno people who use them

STATE PROFITS FROM INHERITANCE TAXES

Revenues Now Increased Without Increase of Cost of Administration

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25. — Few people realize what a benefit the inheritance tax department of the state controller's office is to the taxpayers of California. And as the legislature increases the department's powers and provides it with additional funds for the application thereof, this benefit will become more and more pronounced.

During the last three years the collections have been well in excess of $1,000,000 annually, in two of the years exceeding a million and a half, as compared in the three years previous to from $600,00 to a trifle over $900,000. Yet the cost of collections, proportionately, is little, if any, greater.

State Controller John S. Chambers has been giving especial attention to the work of the inheritance tax department with a view to increasing its efficiency. He is taking a personal interest in all the litigation involved and this week will appear in Los Angeles to take charge of the hearings in the estate of Ida Hancock Ross. This estate was appraised, in round numbers, at $4,500,000, but as a result of investigations made by Agents of Controller Chambers, he has become convinced that there is an under appraisement of at least $3,000,000. He will now seek to have the appraisers revise their figures, and should they decline to do so, he will throw the matter into court. If successful, the state will benefit to the extent of from $50,000 to possibly $200,000 in taxes, depending upon the amount of the increase finally secured.

INVENTOR OF SODA HONORED BY ALBERT

Earnest Solvay, Belgian Chemist Celebrates His 75th Birthday

BRUSSELS, Oct. 25.—The inventor of the soda now generally in use throughout the world, the great Belgian chemist, Ernest Solvay, celebrated, a couple of weeks ago, his 75th anniversary, his golden wedding, and at the same time the 50th anniversary of the foundation by him of the Solvay Society of Brussels, the original parent manufacturers of soda by the Solvay process. King Albert has taken the opportunity of these notable events in the life of the eminent Belgian scientist to appoint him grand officer of the Order of Leopold; and among the other honors offered to Solvay are the coveted Lavoisier medal, presented to him by the Institute of France, and the Grand medal of the University of Paris.

Apart from scientists, few persons realize the great debt which humanity owes to Ernest Solvay, the inventor. Soda has been described as the bread of chemical industry, and the famous French chemist, J. B. Dumas, stated that the two greatest inventions of the nineteenth century were the steam engine and artificial soda. Numerous are the uses to which artificial soda is put. It is in daily use in every household throughout the civilized world in the form of soap (in the manufacture of which it is the most necessary ingredient), and it is also used by laundries, paper, glass and color manufacturers, chemists, photographers, for bleaching, and in the manufacture of pyrolignenous products, flour, starch, oils, candles, etc. Some idea of the immense value of Solvay's invention to the world—the first patents for which he took up in the year 1861—may be gauged by the fact that in 1863 soda cost $55 per ton. It is today reduced to $20 per ton. At the present time there are actually more than 5,000 Solvay furnaces in use, divided over the following countries: Belgium, England, France, Spain, Italy, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Russia, the United States and Japan.

In private life Ernest Solvay is a man of very simple habits. He is a great pedestrian, and in the summer mornings never fails to walk to his office.

Mme. Francis Alda, the Metropolitan Opera Prima Donna, Who Appears Before the Musical Club Monday Evening, November 3rd.

Despite the fact that Hallowe'en is scheduled on the calendar for Friday evening, there seems to be a general celebration of that occasion planned for Thursday vening in Fresno. Both the Sunnyside and Riverside Country Clubs are to entertain on Thursday evening at their respective houses, and the affairs are to be among the most important of the week.

The function at the Sunnyside Club which is the second for the fall season, is to be quite simple in its appointments, with dancing as the chief feature of the evening's entertainment.

At the Riverside Country Club, the Hallowe'en celebration is to be a sort of "fall opening" of the club festivities. Dancing is to be arranged for those who care for it, and tables will be placed in the card rooms for those preferring the less strenuous pleasure. Each of the club members is entitled to bring a guest on this occasion, which will add to the gaiety of the evening.

* * * *

Members of the Fresno Musical Club, of which there are several hundred more this year than last, owing to the strenuous efforts of the board of managers in their recent membership campaign, are anticipated with the greatest interest, the first of the series of "star" concerts which will be featured during the winter. The first one is to be a constellation of stars, however, as Mme. Frances Alda, the prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who is booked to appear on Monday evening, November 3, is assisted by Gutia Casini, a Russian cellist of marked ability, and Frank LaForge, whose ability as a pianist has been applauded by a Fresno audience on a previous occasion. The concert will be given in the auditorium of the high school.

1. Rococo Variations....Tschaikowsky
   Gutia Casini.
2. a. Lungi dal caro bene .....Secchi
   b. Nymphs and Shepherds ..Purcell
   c. When the Roses Bloom..Reichardt

An interesting birthday surprise was given Mrs. J. H. Looney yesterday at given Mrs. J. H. Looney yesterday afternoon at her home, 309 Valeria street. Impromptu music contributed to the afternoon's pleasure, and after an hour or so of delightful informality, toothsome dainties were dispensed.

A charming little neighborhood gathering was that hostessed yesterday afternoon by Mis Floy Long at her home on Tulare street, complimenting Mrs. Gail Hare (Doris Zieske), a popular bride of the fall season, with an informal sewing party. It was the same congenial group of friends that had many times assembled for an informal sewing bee, and the affair served as a jolly reunion. Refreshments were served at a late hour in the afternoon, the guests being seated at a table that was artistically ornate with emblems of the autumnal season, while place favors suggested the approaching Hallowe'en.

Among those in the group were Mrs. Gail Hare, Misses Dorothy Noble, Alice Miller, Helen Miller, Marguerite Neeley Leila Walker, Anne Tupper, Helen Tupper, Gladys Robertson, Francis Cox, Ethel Long.

Club women of Fresno will be interested in the signal honor paid to Professor Lillien J. Martin, who is remembered here through her lectures on psychology. Recognition by the University of Bonn, for her original research, is told in the following clipping from a Palo Alto paper:

Professor Lillien J. Martin of the Department of Psychology in the University has recently been notified that the University of Bonn has conferred upon her the honorary degree of Master of Liberal Arts and Doctor of Philosophy. This extraordinary distinction, unanimously decreed by the faculty of the German university in recognition of her many original contributions to the science of experimental psychology and aesthetics, is one enjoyed by no other American psychologist, if, indeed, by any other American scholar in any department of science. It is doubtful if any other psychologist in any country, outside four or five in Germany where the greatest scholarship in this department is centered, has thus been honored.

This honorary doctorate is not granted, as in the case of the usual degree, upon the completion of a worthy piece of independent work and the passing of a required examination by a candidate, but is conferred as a high and rare rank of scholarship upon persons who have made unique contributions to knowledge. Professor Martin's first intimation that she was even being considered for the degree came in a cablegram from a German psychologist: "Congratulations Bonn Doctor's degree!" The meaning of this was made clear a few days ago upon the receipt of the diploma itself.

In Professor Martin's case the degree was conferred, according to the scholastic Latin of the diploma, for her achievements, either as an absolute pioneer or in following up the discoveries of German pioneers, in reducing the whole subject of imageless thought through the introduction and development of a method for its exact measurement, in working out a method of suggestions (hypnotism) that is applicable for making investigations in normal psychology, in devising and formulating a method for the study of memory by the projecting of visual images, and in deducing principles and laws of aesthetics through experimental psychological study of aesthetic material—that is, pictures, poetry and so on. The degree is especially significant coming from Bonn, since it is on the faculty of this university and that of Gottingen, where Dr. Martin has also studied, that the greatest psychologists of the world are gathered.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES

FRATERNAL ORDER EAGLES

A social dance is the enjoyable feature planned by Fresno Aerie No. 33, Fraternal Order of Eagles, for the meeting tomorrow night at A. O. U. W. hall. Eagles and friends have received invitations to the affair which will be but the first of several this winter. Other dances or socials will probably be held on the last meeting nights of the months of November and December, during the present membership campaign.

The local aerie has received a special dispensation lowering the initiation fee to $10 until the first of the year and a campaign will be in progress until that time. The Boosters' committee in charge is composed of H. C. Harvey, W. Scott and T. E. L. McFayden.

Fresno aerie is preparing to make a big fight for the 1915 convention of Eagles at the state aerie to be held next June in Fort Bragg. A committee has been appointed to start this campaign. Some $3500 must be raised to entertain the visitors properly. On the committee are Judge H. F. Briggs, Leo I. Stock, Frank Shuck, T. E. L. McFayden, Dr. W. M. Thorne and L. Parker Timmins.

ODD FELLOWS

Next Thursday being the fifth Thursday of the month, Central California lodge No. 343 will dispense with degree work and hold a social meeting that night. Only members are invited and the program will be informal.

Tomorrow night the third degree will probably be conferred by Fresno lodge No. 156.

Next Friday night Fresno encampment will confer the Royal Purple degree.

Last night about thirty members of Fresno lodge made an auto trip to Riverside where they conferred the first and second degrees for the lodge there.

Preparations for the seventh annual roll call—November 7th are being made by Central California lodge.

FRATERNAL BROTHERHOOD

In honor of the fourteenth anniversary of the lodge and in celebration of Hallowe'en, Fresno lodge No. 91, F. F. B., will hold a big social at the hall tomorrow night to which members and friends are invited.

A reunion and entertainment will be held after the regular meetings. Refreshments will be served during the evening. The first ladies to be admitted to Yosemite lodge will be among the candidates to receive the Workman degree.

INDEPENDENT FORESTERS

The open meeting of Court Fresno No. 763, I. O. F., will be held Thursday, October 30th. It was thought advisable to change to the last Thursday for this month on account of the Hallowe'en festival. The committee have made arrangements for a dancing party for this meeting, but the November meeting will consist of a program of music and a mock trial to be followed by dancing and refreshments.

The degree team is hard at work practising the initiation ceremony and are adding to their number every meeting night. During November the installing of officers will be practised so that team will be perfected in all the ritualistic work by the first of the year.

The Court started a new campaign for members to last during November and December. Selma Court is working up new Oriental degrees and will be invited to put the work on for Fresno early in November. The Selma "Princes" are noted for having the finest degree work in the state and under the leadership of Grover Light and Fred Morgan, initiated a class of twenty at the last meeting. Deputy Riggs will be a visitor at the joint meeting to be held in Visalia on the 29th.

7,000 FEET OF TILES LAID FOR DRAINAGE

Sumphole Digging at Kearney Park Will Be No Easy Piece of Work

Working sixty men as a daily average and in the third week of operations, Contractor J. E. Mitchell reported yesterday 7000 feet of tiling of the main drain laid and 16,800 more to be laid in the laterals for the drainage system of a quarter section of alkali land, part of the Kearney estate property of the state university. Tomorrow the digging will commence on the sump hole in a corner of the quarter section nearest to the irrigation ditch.

The digging of this sump hole will be one of the difficult tasks in connection with the work. The sump hole is at the lowest level of the land and, while living water is struck at nine feet, the concrete bottom and sides would have to be laid in six feet of water, the depth of the sump hole to be fifteen feet. A pump has been installed and this will be kept in operation night and day to keep down the water while the concrete bottom and walls are laid. The interior dimensions of sump hole will be 6x6 square and 8x8 exterior.

Considerable sub-irrigation water has been encountered in the digging of the main and lateral drain tranches at an average depth of six and one-half feet, after digging through an average of three and one-half feet of earth and a lower layer of three feet of hardpan. The drain pipes will have attached to them about sixty-five concrete silt holes, at a depth of one foot lower, to catch all silting in the process of draining, the silt holes on the main drain 4x4 and those on the laterals 2x4.

The contract for the alkali drainage system does not call for completion before the middle of December. Meanwhile visitors daily go to the place interested in observing the progress on this work, which is, so far as this experiment is concerned, is the largest one tried on a practical basis in the state.

The extent of the damage has not been determined.

EGGS SELL CHEAPER ON PUBLIC MARKET

Turkeys for Thanksgiving Are Offering for 22 Cents a pound

Market Master Haughawout took unto himself the credit yesterday of keeping the price of eggs on the public market five cents lower than what they charged up town.

The ranchers came to the market ready to sell for 45 cents a dozen, but along came an agent from the town grocers with representations that they would be offered 50 cents for deliveries at the stores. Haughawout says when he learned of this he made the rounds of the egg sellers, convinced them that the offer of 50 cents did not mean cash, but an exchange for groceries at the retail selling prices, and the price of eggs on the market remained at 45 cents.

It was a good Saturday's market with forty-eight producers on hand, and thirteen screen enclosed stalls selling meat exclusively. Turkeys appeared on the market and sold for 22 cents a pound for live birds. With the coming on of cool weather the market coffee stands have increased in number to three, and as special features again as during previous marketing seasons are the stalls offering for sale appetizing home made cakes, pies, salads and baked beans in variety, besides preserved fruit.

W. A. Conn, D. S. Ewing and President Cosgrave constitute a transportation committee to arrange for the trip and are signing up enough members to warrant the charter of a special car for the San Diego journey.

COMET NOTES.

Metcalf's Comet discovered on the evening of September 1st, in the constellation Lynx, will be known as 1913 b. The latest Bulletin at hand from Harvard Observatory, No. 530, gives its position as follows: Oct. 1, Right Ascension 23 hrs. 43 min. 17 s., Declination North 73 degrees 51 min. In the constellation Cephus. Its perihilion passage occurred on Sept. 14, and it will be nearest the earth on Oct. 7, Magnitude 10.

Neujamin's Comet (1913c) was on Sept. 30, in Right Ascension 23 hrs. 35 min. 48 s., Declination North 8 degrees 57 min., in the constellation Pisces. Magnitude 11.5, Perihelion passage Oct. 3.

Under date of Sept. 19, Prof. E. E. Barnard, of the Yerkes Observatory telegraphed the New York Times the following interesting statement regarding the Neujamin Comet:

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Sept. 19. —The peculiarity of the new comet is that it is nearly destitute of the usual nebulosity. It is nearly all nucleus. Its orbit makes it possible that it is an asteroid, and a nebulous asteroid would be unique.

E. E. BARNARD,
Yerkes Observatory.

Harvard Bulletin, 532, a telegram from Berkeley, California, states that Nicholson and Miss Kidder find that the Delavan Comet is identical with Westphals. Period 61 years. The ephemeris for this comet on Sept. 27, 7201, G. M. T. was Right Ascension 21 hrs. 50 min. 38 s. Declination South 1 degree 37 min. 56 s. in Aquarius. It is moving slowly northwest and is growing brighter according to Dr. Brooks of Geneva. It is visible in a small telescope.

NOVEMBER EVENING SKIES

By Garrett P. Serviss.

The Stars and Constellations.

Overhead in November reigns Andromeda, the heroine of the ancient mythological story of the royal house of Ethiopia, to which reference has before been made in these articles. Andromeda can easily be recognized by means of a row of conspicuous stars of the second magnitude, beginning with the northeastern corner of the Great Square of Pegasus and running off to near the edge of the Milky Way, northeast of the zenith.

Between Andromeda and the pole star appears Cassiopia, who in the legend was Andromeda's royal mother and whose constellation is clearly marked out by a zig-zag of stars bearing some resemblance to the letter "W." The story relates that it was Cassiopeia's vanity, leading her to boast that her beauty exceeded that of the sea nymphs, which resulted in her daughter being chained to a rock on the sea coast to be devoured by a sea monster. Below the last star in Andromeda, in the southeast, and striding across the Milky Way, appears the hero Perseus who rescued the maiden by turning the monster into stone by the sight of the gorgon Medusa's head which he had cut off. The stars of Perseus form a bending row following the curve of the Milky Way.

Almost directly north of the highest star in Perseus, and forming an angle with that star and the star in Andromeda's foot, is the celebrated variable Algol in the little constellation representing the head of Medusa, the gorgon. This star is, in many ways, the most remarkable in the heavens. Every two days, twenty hours and forty-nine minutes it fails to a minimum, having in the course of three or four hours lost two-thirds or three-quarters of its light. Then it immediately begins to brighten again, and in two or three hours once more shines with the brilliance of a second magnitude star. The cause of these rapid periodic changes is believed to be the existence of a huge dark mass, either an extinguished star, or a dense meteoric swarm, circling close around Algol, and eclipsing it at regular intervals.

Another remarkable variable star commands attention this month—Mira, "the Wonderful," in the constellation Cetus. Its maximum period is irregular. On the average 331 days elapse from one maximum to the next, but the maximum may come a fortnight ahead of time or a fortnight behind. The brightness of the star at maximum is also irregular, exceeding the second magnitude at times. But generally it is only of the fourth magnitude when at maximum. At minimum it disappears entirely for the naked eye, sinking to the eighth or ninth magnitude. It is probable that the variability of Mira arises from an entirely different cause than that concerned in the case of Algol. Instead of being due to eclipses, the variations of Mira's light no doubt originate from something in the constitution or the star itself.

November is the great month for meteors, two famous showers falling within its limits. The first of these is the shower of the Leonids, so called because the meteors radiate from the head of the lion in the constellation Leo. They are due on the 14th or 15th, and to see them one must get up in the early morning hours, as Leo does not rise before midnight.

These meteors were wonderfully numerous in 1833 and 1866, but since then they have not been seen in such vast numbers. It has been shown that the planets Jupiter and Saturn have drawn most of them aside from the orbit which they formerly pursued.

The other meteor shower is that of the Andromedes, due on the night of the 23rd. They radiate from the constellation Andromeda, and are associated with Biela's comet, which disappeared in the first half of the nineteenth century.

The reader will observe that the great array of constellations which makes the Winter sky so magnificent is now beginning to appear. Near the eastern horizon Orion is just rising; above him is Taurus, and still higher the Pleiades. In the northeast below Perseus glitters the brilliant Capella in the constellation Auriga. The Great Dipper is under the pole in the north, and Vega scintillates in the northwest a worthy rival of Capella in the northeast.

FOLLOWED INSTRUCTIONS.

A talk on the servant-girl problem at a social function the other night brought this one from Congressman Francis Murphy of Massachusetts:

A few weeks ago company called unexpectedly on a certain New England family, greatly to the chagrin of the good housewife, for the larder was rather short and there was no way at that late hour to replenish it.

"Bridget," said th emistress, taking the servant girl into her confidence, "you will have to bring in anything that you can find, and I will make an apology at the table."

The dinner hour came, and taking the cover from one dish the mistress was surprised to find it empty.

"Why, Bridget," said the hostess, turning and addressing the servant girl, "what is the meaning of this empty dish?"

"Shure, mum," was the startling rejoinder of Bridget, "didn't yez say yez would made an apology at the table, an' don't yez want a dish to put it in?" —Philadelphia Telegraph.

A SAFE CLUTCH

In a political conference some time ago they were speaking about having a safe grip on things, when Congressman John W. Abercrombie of Alabama recalled an incident of the Sunny South.

A candidate was going through a section of Alabama once, the Congressman said, and stopping before the cabin of a colored man he was greatly impressed by the way that a pickaninny was absorbing a dish of chicken and a large slice of pie.

"Yés, sah, boss. Yes, sah," smilingly replied the proud father. "Jes' look at him gwine aftah dat pie!"

"He is getting on the outside of it, all right," commented the politician, "and not losing a crumb."

"Yes, sah! Yes, sah!" grinned the father, with an admiring glance at his off-spring. "Once he gits his uppah lip ovah a piece ob pie it am his pie, boss, it am subly his pie."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

COMPARATIVELY FORTUNATE

Senator Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona, when one of the party complained of his hard lot, said it might be much worse, and told the story of the country cigar dealer:

One day a traveling salesman happened in the town of the cigar dealer and rambling into the store, asked for a couple of smokes.

Extracting two from the handful drawn from the case, the salesman put one in his pocket and lighted the other.

"How do you like those cigars?" asked the dealer, as the salesman thoughtfully puffed his way toward the door.

"Wicked!" was the prompt reply of the salesman. "Absolutely the worst I ever smoked!"

"Maybe they are," returned the dealer, with a soulful sigh, "but I don't see where you have got any kick coming. You have only two of them, while I have a thousand."—Boston Advertiser.

BIBLE STOPS SUICIDE

Albert Kent, 27 years old, is in a serious condition in the Orange Memorial Hospital. He attempted to commit suicide by drinking carbolic acid, but his mother succeeded in knocking the bottle from his hands by hurling the family Bible.

Kent is employed at the Edison factories here. He has a wife and two children in Newark. He left his wife several weeks ago and went to the home of his parents.

Before his mother knocked the bottle from his hands with the Bible, Kent had already swallowed some of the poison. If Kent lives it will be due to his mother's well-directed aim.—West Orange (N. J.) Dispatch to the N. Y. Sun.

The World's Greatest Beauties
SINCE THE DAWN OF HISTORY
HAVE HAD BEAUTIFUL HAIR

In all affairs of weight, whether of war, politics or business, beautiful women have always exerted a mighty influence. This subservience of the world to feminine loveliness is seldom admitted by the sterner sex, but it is there just the same, and no one realizes this better than man, mere man. He is a daily worshiper at the shrine of Venus and a passively willing prisoner to her charms. This condition has existed since the world began, until, to the lord of creation, paying regular and magnificent tribute to beauty has become a habit.

In the early days, to enhance the pristine beauty of their hair, the women resorted to the use of fragrant ointments. Much care was given to the hair, hours being devoted daily to the manipulation of mi-lady's tresses by her slaves and hand maidens.

Today the girl or woman, desiring to appear always at her best and to have healthy luxuriant hair, relies on

SCOTTISH RITE HONOR FOR THREE FRESNANS

Austin, Allison and Bernhard Given K. C. C. H. Degree In Masonry

Three Fresno Masons, Judge H. Z. Austin, Duncan D. Allison and Joseph P. Bernhard, were among the twenty-one members of the order in California to receive the honorary degree of Knight Commander of the Court of Honor at the Supreme Council of Scottish Rite Masons which met this last week at Washington, D. C., for its annual session. This honor is conferred regularly by the governing body of Scottish Rite Masonry as a step inward the conferring of the honorary thirty-third degree, which is held by only two men in this part of the state, V. V. Van Valkenburgs and J. C. Pottle. The list this year, in addition to the three Fresnans, included thirteen members of the order from San Francisco, four from Oakland, and one from San Jose.

FIFTEEN HURT IN NEW ENGLAND WRECK

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 25.—Fifteen persons were injured, one woman seriously when the Gilt Edge Express, bound for Boston over the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad went off the track on a curve a mile and a half east of Westerly tonight. Heavy rain is believed to have undermined the roadbed, causing the rails to spread.

Bishop Perry of the Rhode Island diocese, was a passenger. He was returning from the Episcopal church convention in New York to his home in Providence. He was not hurt and helped take care of the injured.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 25.—Captain M. Corcoran, troop C, Thirteenth cavalry, committed suicide by shooting Friday night at the Columbus, N. M. border patrol camp, according to advices received at Fort Bliss. No reason was advanced for the act.

Girlish Complexion Now Easily Acquired

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent describes her newly acquired complexion. She is one who has adopted mercolized wax in place of cosmetics, massage, steaming and other methods. Many who have tried this marvelous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish naturalness, rather than one bearing evidence of having been artificially "made over." One that is indeed "Nature's own," the result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger, healthier skin beneath to show itself and giving its pores a chance to breathe. Mercolized wax, procurible at any drug store in original one ounce package, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

I have also had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath, which I recommended recently. If any have mislaid the formula, here it is: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel.

SCALP ITCHED AND BURNED

Scarcely Any Hair on Head. Terrible Itching. Also Bothered With Pimples and Blackheads on Face. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Both Troubles.

Greenwood, Ind.—"First my hair began to fall, then my scalp itched and burned when I became warm. I had pimples on my scalp; my hair was falling out gradually until I had scarcely any hair on my head. I couldn't keep the dandruff off at all. My hair was dry and lifeless and I lost rest at night from the terrible itching sensation. I would pull my hair off and scratch my head any place I happened to be.

"For several years I was bothered with pimples on my face. Some of them were hard red spots, some were full of matter, and many blackheads. I was always picking at them and caused them to be sore. They made my face look so badly I was ashamed to be seen.

"I tried washing my head with Cuticura Soap, dried without rinsing, then put the Cuticura Ointment on and rubbed it into the scalp. I applied the Cuticura Soap and Ointment the same each week until cured. Three months' use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment has made my face as smooth and clean as can be." (Signed) C. M. Hamilton, Sept. 24, 1912.

Quite an interest has been aroused among the young folks of the city in the "county fair" to be given by the Epworth Leaguers of the First M. E. church next Tuesday, the 28th.

This enterprising league proposes to give a near-reproduction of the recent district fair in the basement of their church, the program being replete with "side shows" and amusements of all kinds. Great interest and excitement is being manifested over the auto-polo races and the baby show.

No admission will be charged and all side shows are to be free, this being a kind of "get-together" crowd of leaguers and non-leaguers before beginning active and systematic league work for the winter, and all young people of the city who are not lined up with other churches are invited.

ADMIRAL MAYNARD DIES

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 25.—The death of Rear Admiral Washburn Maynard, a retired naval officer, at a private hospital here last night, was announced today. Since his retirement Rear Admiral Maynard had lived at Narragansett Pier, R. I. He was born in Tennessee 69 years ago.

Washburn Maynard was in command of the gunboat Nashville in the Spanish-American war. The gunboat was active in the early part of the war and her then did valiant service in cutting cables at Cienfuegos.

GOOD REASON.

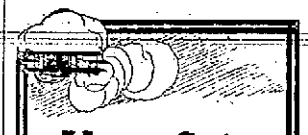

"I don't have the kiddie at the theater very often," said an actor who recently returned to town for the usual brief run in a house where the bill changes weekly, "but during the holidays I let his mother bring him down for a matinee, and arrange to have a box for them. The youngster remained remarkably quiet (for him) through the entire performance.

"That evening at dinner I jokingly remarked:

"'Son, how did you manage to be so quiet during the show?'

"His answer surprised me.

"'Do you think I wanted you to scold me, daddy, before all those people?'"—New York Times.

HORACE PARSONS OF BAKERSFIELD DIES

Father of H. G. Parsons of Fresno Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia

Horace G. Parsons, president of the Bakersfield Realty board since its organization, and father of Horace G. Parsons of this city, passed away at his home in the former city Friday morning. The funeral will be held today in Bakersfield.

The deceased was taken sick Sunday last and what was believed to be a bad cold suddenly developed into pneumonia.

Mr. Parsons was 66 years old having been born at Whitewater, Wis., on August 19, 1847. He was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, located at Madison and immediately afterwards he came to California, where he has resided for thirty-eight years. On arriving here he located at Oakland, where he engaged in the real estate business and later went to Nevada City. After leaving Nevada City fourteen years ago he came direct to Bakersfield, where he followed the same business.

He was the oldest real estate dealer in Bakersfield. During his long residence he made innumerable friends through his active service in assisting to upbuild Kern county. By his genial disposition, unfailing courtesy and untiring public efforts he won for himself high favor among all classes and the news of his sudden demise was a shock to the entire community.

Besides a wife he leaves two children, Mrs. George D. Keller, of Los Angeles, and Horace G. Parsons, Jr., of Fresno, and two sisters, Mrs. H. A. Mayhew and Mrs. M. P. Scofield, of Niles, Cal. A brother, Will Parsons died at Santa Clara two years ago.

FINAL REGULATIONS REGARDING INCOME TAX

Treasury Dep't Gives Instructions for Obtaining Money "At the Source"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—The Treasury Department issued tonight the finally revised regulations for deduction of the new income tax at the source on interest maturing on bonds, notes and similar obligations of corporations, joint stock companies or associations and insurance companies, classed by the department under the general term of "debtor" for the collection purposes. Because of the short time allowed for the interpretation of the law and the issuance of these regulations, bringing the date so near November 1, when the deduction must begin, it is temporarily provided that on November 1, 1913, and for fifteen days thereafter, interest coupons presented-to-a-debtor need be accepted only by temporary informal certificates.

A tax of 1 per cent will be deducted at the source, beginning next Saturday, from all income accruing and payable to every United States citizen residing at home or abroad and to every person residing in the United States, though not a citizen, which income may be derived from interest on bonds and mortgages or deeds of trust or other similar obligations, including equipment, trust agreements and receivers' certificates of corporations, joint stock companies or associations, and insurance companies, although such interest does not amount to $3,000, government obligations being excepted. Certificates claiming exemption may be filed by bond holding individuals.

All persons, firms or corporations undertaking for accommodation or for a profit the collection of coupons, checks or bills of exchange for payment of interest or dividends upon foreign obligations must obtain a license from the internal revenue commissioner and give bond.

Non-resident foreigners are not subject to taxation on income from interest bearing bonds if they furnish proper certificates.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—Three members of a band of nearly a score of alleged contraband Chinese were arrested by the police today at Los Angeles harbor and given into the custody of government authorities.

Reports of the alleged operations in the harbor district of smugglers of Chinese have kept officers on the lookout for several days. The Chinese caught today were said to have been landed from a launch.

EMPLOYERS UNITE AGAINST UNIONS

English Capitalists Form Association to Prevent Strikes

LONDON, Oct. 25.—An association has been formed with the object of consolidating the resources of the employers of labor of the United Kingdom and of maintaining their rights and their freedom to bargain individually with free workers or collectively with trade unions. It bears the title of the United Kingdom Employers' Defence Union and will be registered as a trade union.

The new organization is the outcome of a meeting held at the Whitehall rooms on May 26th, with Lord Dysart in the chair. The strength of the movement may be gathered from the fact that at a meeting held recently two large manufacturers who were present promised $250,000 each towards the guarantee fund. There were other guarantors of $50,000 and smaller sums. Each member of the union will, it is understood, be invited to guarantee a sum to commensurate with his position in the commercial world the intention being to create a fund of $250,000,000. One of the stipulations is, indeed, that individual guarantees will become operative only when this sum has been secured.

Great importance is attached to the operation of the guarantee fund in dealing with large and small strikes in the interest alike of employers and employes and of the commerce of the United Kingdom. It has been arranged that all calls on the fund, which will be "pro rata" on the whole of the members, shall not exceed 7½ per cent in any one year. Much less than that proportion will, it is believed, be sufficient to secure adequate protection for men willing to work and employers willing to employ. In the event of a struggle arising out of any tyranny by trade unions the members would be backed by the fund, and the expenditure of a small percentage in most cases would, so the leaders of the Defence Union hold, be adequate to ensure victory.

The leaders of this movement emphasize the fact that the United Kingdom Employers' Union is not espousing an anti-trade union policy. They argue, however, that the vital interests of the employers in all trades must, in view of what happened during the past few years, be defended against the new unionism. Had a Defence Union on national lines been formed a decade ago, when the master engineers successfully resisted the demands of the unions of that day, it is felt that much trouble and hardship would have been prevented.

Coming to more recent upheavals the promoters of the Employers' Defence Union point out that had a guarantee fund such as the union will establish been in existence at the time of the railway strike of 1911 and of the miners' strike of last year, those disputes might have been fought to a finish and a satisfactory and lasting settlement secured. The guarantee fund will, the leaders of the union urge, defend members against interference of outside organization, uphold the inviolability of contracts, and, when strikes are forced on them, will prevent workmen from being intimidated by members of trade unions and any other kindred organizations.

The Defense Union will also deal with what it regards as two great evils arising out of the Trade Disputes Act—boycotting and peaceful picketing. To amend this act will be one of the objects of the new union, and its leaders maintain that its registration as a trade union is rendered necessary to ensure that it shall enjoy the same privileges and exemptions as the Workmen's unions.

Existing employers' associations will be invited to become members of the Defence Union and to join the guarantee fund. It may be added that the organization of the United Kingdom Employers' Defence Union has been entered upon with the approval of Lord Avebury, the Duke of Bedford, Sir John Bingham, Sir Arthur Clay, Dr. E. C. Clark (Regius Professor of Civil Law, Cambridge), Lord Dysart, Colonel W. L. Davidson, Mr. Edwin Evans, L. C. C., Sir Henry Fairfax-Lucy, Sir John Gray Hill, Dr. G. H. Hunter (Swan Hunter and Wigham Richardson), Mr. A. Vernon Harcourt, Mr. Mark H. Judge, Sir Philip Magnus, M. P., Sir Guilford Molesworth, Mr. E. Vaughan, Morgan, Mr. Walter Morrison, Professor W. M. Flinders Petrie, Mr. W. Raeburn (Raeburn and Verel, Limited) Mr. C. F. Ryder (Telley and Co.), Dr. F. A. Sibly, Mr. Allan H. P. Stoneham, Mr. F. Danford Thomas, Sir H. Vonsittart-Neale, and Mr. E. E. Williams.

In commenting on this movement, the "Times" says: "The association is not to be an ordinary union of individual employers, but will include as well all associations or federations of associations who may care to join it. It will not set itself up as a rival to such a body as the Coalowners' Association. Nor, on the other hand, will it pose as the enemy of trade unionism, as long as it is conducted on what it considers to be equitable lines."

ROOSEVELT AT RIO JANEIRO.

RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 25.—An excursion on the bay today gave Colonel Roosevelt an opportunity to view the picturesque beauties of Rio Janeiro. He was accompanied on the trip by the minister of marine. Prior to this the former President paid a visit to the naval school, where he was received with military honors.

During the course of the afternoon a big delegation of teachers and students called on Colonel Roosevelt at the Guanabara palace.

URGES FOREIGN TRADE

ST. PAUL, Oct. 25.—Addressing members of the Association of Commerce tonight, William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce, urged American manufacturers to operate more extensively in foreign countries, saying that vast foreign territories were not receiving the proper attention of the American manufacturers.

Touching on the trust question, Redfield said he believed the problem would work itself out through the operation of economic laws.

A FISHERMAN'S PARADISE.

Fish are so plentiful in Alaskan waters that they almost jump at you. The fishing grounds extend for over 5,000 miles along the coast and up all the rivers (one of which is at least 2,000 miles long, and all over the adjacent seas. A conservative estimate of the fish taken from Alaskan waters, not counting that used for native food and for dog food, places the total valuation at $135,000,000 since we bought Alaska for $7,200,000. In one year ten fishing vessels pulled in 7,708,000 pounds of the choicest kinds of fish.

If the ordinary American were asked to guess how many people are permanently engaged in the fishing business in Alaska, the answer would probable be—about 200. As a matter of fact, there are 15,000 men pulling up salmon, halibut and herring, and storing them away in cans and icehouses. The number of men can make a big hole in anybody's fish pond; if the looting by the fishermen goes on indefinitely there will be nothing left except the water presently.—Edgar Allen Forbes, in Leslie's Magazine.

ROW IN THEATER ENDS IN EMERGENCY CASE

Earl Farlow Struck By Manager Hesse Following Altercation

Earl Farlow was badly cut in the head last evening, following an altercation with a fellow patron in the Empire theater, when the manager, P. L. Hesse, in attempting to stop the trouble, struck Farlow and then ejected him from the building. Farlow wandered up and down the sidewalk in front of the place in a daze, bleeding from the temple, until the police came, when he was removed to the emergency hospital, and his cut treated by Dr. Savage. It was stated at police headquarters later that the wound on Farlow's head had been caused by a diamond ring on Hesse's finger, and that the cut was not serious. Farlow was removed to his home at 651 Cullisch street. The name of the other participant in the trouble at the theater was not learned.

Why More Structural Steel Is Bought At Home Since "Burnett" Plant Was Rebuilt!

Iron Castings
Structural Steel
Fire Escapes
Steel Stairways
Sidewalk Doors
Tank Towers
Etc., Etc.

Steadily and irresistibly this iron working plant had been going forward for years, and had reached a goodly size and was fairly well equipped to furnish steel and iron in various forms, when the fire of last March partly wiped out our buildings and destroyed much valuable machinery.

Since this fire, and during the work of rebuilding, we have been guided by one big idea—that of making this fabricating plant a positive force in the building activities of the San Joaquin valley.

The most competent structural engineers on the Coast were added to an already efficient force, fabricating machines of the latest type were installed, facilities for loading, unloading and handling enormous pieces of steel were introduced, and we made ready to supply the structural steel needed in Fresno and the surrounding towns.

At one time there was an advantage in buying steel and iron away from home, but now the tables have been turned and contractors, architects and builders consider it to their benefit to buy these building materials locally.

AUTHORITIES ON POULTRY RAISING POINT OUT MANY BAD METHODS IN MANAGING FOWLS FOR PROFIT

Observing the numerous failures and half successes of persons engaging in poultry-raising, a Missouri investigator wrote to all the professors of poultry husbandry in the agricultural colleges of the United States and Canada asking them what faults they find in the average poultryman's methods. Their replies are interesting, for each is a student and close observer of the conditions existing in his particular section. Many a poultryman might profit by reading their opinions. A few of them are given below.

LACK OF SYSTEM IN BREEDING

Prof. F. S. Jacoby of Ohio, a well-known authority on poultry-raising, says: "I should say that the one greatest fault with the average farmer's way of raising poultry is the lack of system in breeding. Careful breeding and selection is necessary if we hope to improve the productive qualities of the poultry in the United States. The farmer with a flock of pure bred poultry is in a position to overcome the problems of feeding and management, for he has the basis for future results. He should endeavor to select and breed from those individuals which come up to a certain standard of egg production or size, rather than from the entire flock, as most farmers are inclined to do at the present time. The application of the laws of breeding, coupled with studied care, is essential to success with any kind of live stock."

LICE AND CONTINUED USE OF SAME GROUND

Prof. W. R. Graham of Guelph, Canada, says: "The greatest fault, as far as I know, that the average farmer and poultryman makes in rearing chickens, is in rearing them year after year on the same ground, and they do not pay any special attention to the tender green food for the young stock; and, moreover, in many cases the chickens are very lousy. In many instances there is no attention paid to seeing that they have plenty of house room as they grow larger. To overcome this, I would suggest that they secure colony houses, and grow the chickens in a cultivated cornfield, or an orchard."

LACK OF APPRECIATION OF THE VALUE OF THE HEN

Prof. Horace Atwood of West Virginia thinks that "the reason that farmers do not make more money from their poultry is because they pay so little attention to it, and have so little respect and appreciation for the earning power of their fowls. Just as soon as a farmer becomes fully impressed with the fact that a good flock of hens will bring him in more clear money, in proportion to the investment, than any other type of farm animals, then he is in position to take interest in improved methods and new discoveries. Until a farmer becomes impressed with the fact that the poultry business is a great big business, and worthy of his attention, it is idle to talk to him or bombard him with bulletins, in regard to keeping better fowls, constructing better houses, or feeding more intelligently."

MONGREL METHODS AND MONGREL STOCK

Prof. W. A. Lippincott of Manhattan, Kansas, believes that "the great difference between wild hens that lay two dozen eggs a year and the well-kept farm flock that averages twelve dozen has come about through systematic care and attention on the part of the farmers.

"The great trouble with the average farmer's way of raising chickens is, that in the case of their wild ancestors, the chickens have to raise themselves. They are tolerated rather than raised. In the same way that poor folk generally have poor ways; poor stock generally gets poor care. Mongrel methods go with mongrel stock and the mixed flock accompanied by roost-in-a-tree, and eat-in-the-corn-crib, and hit-or-miss breeding methods, is very much in evidence on the general farm. The way to improve this is to induce the farmer to buy some standard bred hens that he can be as proud of as he is of his team. Then he will give them such care as he does his team."

UNDULY ARTIFICIAL CONDITIONS

In the opinion of Professor H. L. Kempster, "the greatest fault with the average farmer's or poultryman's way of raising poultry is the tendency to unduly artificial conditions around the poultry yard. With unlimited range at his disposal, nevertheless it seems possible for him to use only a small portion of his farm for poultry raising. With the farmer this range is usually limited to the farm yards and with the poultryman, fences are usually placed so thick that yard cultivation is restricted or rendered practically impossible. Fowls are very susceptible to filthy conditions, and a large portion of the trouble in the farm poultry yard may be traced to unsanitary surroundings, and when range is restricted on a commercial plant usually the enterprise is short lived. Range for growing chicks, and the arrangement of the poultry house so as to permit cultivation and reseeding of the poultry runs will not only render conditions more favorable, but will also tend toward more economical production."

LACK OF SELECTION IN BREEDING STOCK

Professor J. C. Graham, of Amherst, Mass., believes that one of the greatest faults with the average farmer in poultry management is lack of selection of breeding birds. It is quite a general custom among them to breed from the entire flock instead of selecting a few of the most vigorous birds for the breeding pen. Most of them feel that the expense of separating their birds and keeping the layers confined during the breeding season is too great. The result therefore, of their method is deterioration. With a very slight outlay, a few posts and chicken wire could be bought and the layers confined during the breeding season. In this way the breeders would have free range. The result would be strong vigorous germs that would hatch well and grow rapidly to maturity. These chickens would also be from selected females and males. If they were to adopt a method of this kind improvement would be seen year after year in their flocks. Instead of producing birds that weigh four and one-half to five pounds, they would be taking to market those that weigh from six and one-half to eight pounds. With careful selection, as above indicated, and observing the cardinal principles in poultry construction and feeding I believe the poultry business would be revolutionized in farming communities.

DON'T CONSIDER POULTRY WORTH WHILE

Professor F. C. Elford, of McDonald College, Canada, says: "The greatest fault with the average farmer's way of raising poultry is, that he does not consider it worth while. Anything will do, both in the production and the selling. To overcome this the best thing that can be done is to have the farmer put the poultry under the care of one of the family. Give the boy or the girl, though he or she may still be going to school, full charge and show him or her how to keep accounts. Let the farmer provide the hens with good accommodations, plenty of feed and charge all up against the poultry account at market prices. Have the account credited with all poultry and eggs consumed in the house as well as what is sold. If a new house or new equipment is to be built, let the expenses be divided over, say, three years. At the end of each year the balance which the new manager will show will open the farmer's eyes in such a way that poultry will get the proper attention."

SHOULD KEEP SUFFICIENT FOWLS TO MAKE IT PAY

Professor Homer M. Jackson, of State College, Pennsylvania, states that "one of the chief difficulties which handicaps the average farmer in the profitable management of his poultry flock is the fact that he does not keep a sufficient number of fowls to make a really profitable business of it. The average farm flock of the country is probably between sixty-five and seventy-five fowls, and during the greater part of the year it is practically impossible to get the product from these fowls to market in good condition. One of the most important steps that the farmer can

BEST PROCESSES OF PICKLING RIPE OLIVES FOR AMERICAN MARKET

At present the most profitable use of the olive is for the making of ripe pickles. Our green pickles do not compete successfully with those imported from Spain. Though the making of oil is profitable, it is so largely for fruit too small for pickling or that damaged by frost.

1. Treatment with lye to neutralize the acidity and bitterness.
2. Repeated soaking in water to remove the excess of lye.
3. Salting by soaking in brines of gradually increasing strengths.

(1) Neutralization. Soak the olives for twelve hours in a solution made by dissolving 11-2 pounds of caustic potash in 12 gallons of water. Very bitter olives may require a second treatment with fresh lye (some Mission, Manzanillo, Sevillano); sweeter olives may require a weaker lye (Ascolano, Columbella). With soft olives, 11-2 pounds of salt should be added to the lye. The olives should be kept submerged by means of a floating cover and the lye drawn from the bottom and poured over the top two or three time to insure equal treatment.

(2) Soaking. When by examination of the color of the flesh of the olives, it is found that the lye has penetrated nearly to the pit, they should be removed to pure water. This water is renewed at least once a day until the lye is removed, which requires two or three days. With soft olives, a brine containing about two pounds of salt to twelve gallons of water should be used for removing the lye.

(3) Salting. When the lye and most of the bitterness have been removed the olives should be placed in stronger brine. If the olives are to be canned or bottled, a brine containing about five pounds of salt to twelve gallons of water is sufficiently strong. If they are to be kept in barrels ten or twelve pounds of salt will be needed. The olives must be prepared for the strong brine gradually by being placed in new brines every three to four days. Each brine should be about two per cent stronger than the last.

Strong lye tends to soften the fruit. A second treatment in weak lye is better for bitter olives than a strong lye. Salt has a tendency to harden the fruit and can be used to counteract the softening effect of the lye with very ripe olives. Strong brine will shrink and shrivel the olives, unless they are prepared for it by solutions of gradually increasing strengths.

With ripe pickles, the object is to have the color as uniform and dark as possible. Uniformity is obtained by pickling each variety by itself, by having the fruit as evenly ripe as possible and by exposing the olives to each solution in as uniform a manner as possible. Spotting comes usually from unevenness of the lye treatment, and especially from allowing some olives to float on the surface. Depth of color is obtained by having the olives thoroughly ripe. By exposing the olives to the air for several hours between the various solutions, both the depth and uniformity of the color are increased by oxidizing and browning the flesh.

With green olives, the air should be excluded as much as possible, until the final brine is reached. A little

TO A FAT PIG

(We have never fallen into poetry in this department ourselves, and we seldom quote poetry, but the following effusion from the dignified "Blackwood's" magazine, is such a unique specimen of agricultural poesy that it seems worth repeating.—W. G. H.)

When I peruse that tranquil countenance,
When I behold you lying in the deep
Calm torpor of your customary trance,
And smiling in your sleep;

When I compare the lives that men endure,
The hard hours trending on each other's heels,
With yours, an easy, drowsy, sinecure,
Unbroken, save for meals;

Stirred to the limits of mine injured pride
By your outrageous "otium cum dig," O Hog, if I could reach you, "I'd "Learn ye to be" pig!

O Hog, O fat, insufferable Hog.
The very barn-door hen must ply a leg
Or go unvictualed; even the household dog
Has to sit up and beg.

Judged by your smug complacency, you seem
To think yourself a strangely favored beast,
But is there not a shadow on the dream,
A spectre at the feast?

You never move. For your voracious need
Mysterious broths are brought you from afar:
(Not that you ever are.)

The great trough yawns beneath you very snout;
You eat, you sleep, upon the self-same spot;
People object to see you move about,
They'd rather you did not.

O Hog, so unsuspecting and so fat,
Do you suppose that these attentions spring
From man's great kindness? If you I swallow that You'd swallow anything!

Oft have I noticed, hovering round the sty,
Where you, unknowing, snore in Morpheus' arms,
Approves your bulging charms.

Darkly he prods you with his oaken staff
Like this—I'm sorry—and remains a while Gloating; and laughs a grim carnivorous laugh
While you sleep on, and smile.

O hog, so fat, so green, did you awake
To the ferocious menace of those eyes,
You would sleep less, methinks, but you would take

SERVING HOT LUNCHES IN SCHOOLS STARTED IN EUROPE AND IS NOW SPREADING IN THE UNITED STATES

The serving of hot food in school to children who are compelled to carry their lunch is not a recent innovation. In 1790 Germany began serving lunch to some of her school children, and the custom now prevails in Belgium, Denmark, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Spain, Switzerland, Italy, France, England, and to some extent, in the United States.

In America the work was begun in Massachusetts. Now the school lunch in one form or another, is appearing in many parts of the United States, not only in the schools of the larger cities, but also in those of the more remote country districts.

In the state of Washington during the school year of 1911, 107 schools provided at least one article of hot food for the children who were forced to carry a cold lunch. In some districts the school board paid for both equipment and food; in others, for equipment only,—the children contributing the food.

At Cheney, in the training department of the state normal school, lunch was served to fifty children. The food was prepared and served by the girls of grades seven and eight with the help and guidance of student teachers. The equipment was furnished by the school and the food that was not obtained from the school garden was brought by the children or was donated by citizens who became interested in the experiment. The results were very satisfactory.

That the custom of serving hot lunches to children at school has spread so rapidly and has developed such proportions suggests that it is meeting a universal need. Physicians, school nurses, and teachers have long argued that wholesome food helps materially in the promotion of both the physical and the mental vigor of children, the food supplying the energy not only for bodily growth and play, but also for mental growth and study. It is this strong conviction on the part of those who have studied the problem that has added the hot noon lunch to our schools.

The children to whom the lunch basket is a necessity should receive much more careful and thoughtful consideration than they do at present. They often are obliged to go a long distance to school and during the short winter days especially, hurry off with little or no breakfast. They spend the greater part of the day in a room not too well ventilated, and as soon as school is out they eat their cold lunch hurriedly and rush off to play. Hurried eating prevents salivary digestion, the mechanics of it being forced upon the stomach. This greatly increases the work of the stomach and the chemical changes are postponed. Super-impose upon this the conditions arising from insufficient blood supply—the result of physical exercise begun immediately after eating—and there is the beginning of digestive disturbances which sooner or later affect the child's efficiency.

It ought to be possible for every school to make provision for giving the children at least one kind of warm food at noon. This could be prepared and served by committees chosen from the different classes, and would require only a few cooking utensils. No school is too poor to make a beginning in this work, and a beginning once made, the work will stand on its merits. It is remarkable how money and enthusiasm will come to the support of a real idea with a real plan for its execution. No adverse criticism has been heard from patrons, teachers or pupils where the plan has been tried. All are enthusiastic supporters of the work.

The teacher who has aspirations for her pupils will welcome the serving of the noon lunch as opportunity for constructive thinking by means of which children will become genuinely socialized. She will make use of this opportunity to give lessons in domestic science which will be full of inspiration because of their immediate and practical utility. The cooking itself appeals to a fundamental and universal interest of children and consequently arouses their best effort. It provides an opportunity for an activity that is entirely free from the danger of mental overstrain; it furnishes much necessary information in regard to healthful living, in the study of the cleansing processes, in the study of the preparation of food, and in the manipulation of mechanical contrivances necessary for the carrying out of these processes; it helps children to understand the significance of the simple food principles and values which so strongly influence their lives and physical development; it gives training in habits of order, neatness, thoughtfulness and helpfulness, and it supplies ample material for self-expression and for training in community life.

The noon lunch arouses a vital and intelligent interest in the school garden—an important feature of present-day education—the fundamental importance and far-reaching consequences of which have not been developed to the fullest possibilities.

Lessons in hygiene and table etiquette can be given more impressively in a natural setting as well as training in conversation which helps each child to feel that he is an integral part of the community.

If, as is generally conceded, the school of today is a social organization in itself, reaching out and touching other life at every possible point, and thus enriching its own life, then it would seem that all things tending to make each member of the school feel his relation to the organization as a whole, and accept his responsibility for the whole, are vital to the life of that organization. Whatever will establish in the child the habit of doing work for the profit and pleasure of the community, is a great factor in the development of community spirit.

The school is a place where pupils and teacher live together. A large part of every day is spent there, and their interests center about the school, quite as strongly as the family interest centers about the home. They are in a measure a family and their success and unity depends largely upon their opportunities for coming together in an informal way. The noon lunch is a common meeting ground. It is the place where all the children meet with the teachers; where all co-operate for the pleasure and well-being of the whole; where all relate their best experience in the choicest language at their command. This daily assembling around the table brings about a truly friendly feeling, puts each child and teacher in direct contact with the personality of the other children and teacher. The little children learn from contact with the older ones, and the older ones get an insight into the interests of the little ones that develops a helpful protecting sympathy. The environment forbids individual selfishness and each child learns that he is individually responsible for the happiness and interest of the whole group. This is ideal community life.

Objection has been made to taking the time of the school for cooking and sewing—things which should be taught in the home. If scientific and economical domestic economy were taught in the home, the objection would be valid; but it is impossible for the busy and often overworked mother to keep abreast of the revolutionary change that are constantly taking place in this great problem of efficient home-making. It would require much more time than the average mother has at her disposal to glean from the various sources the requisite knowledge for the scientific management of the right kind of a home. This brings the work to the school; and every thoughtful mother should recognize that the time spent in the cultivation of the studies for home-making is just as valuable as that spent in the acquisition of book information. Schools are an organic growth of society and represent to a greater or less degree, the practical wants of the nation. While book information alone was sufficient to meet the educational needs of our forefathers a century ago, it does to meet the needs of the twentieth century child. Therefore the school of today should offer every child an opportunity to receive a practical education—one that will fit him to hold his own in the rough work of actual life—and by means of which he becomes socially efficient. The efficient person of today "must be a doer among many others, a laborer in society, a co-worker, a co-operator." The school must adjust its course of study to meet the practical needs of today and to send forth into life the best possible man or woman. These considerations should dispel the prejudices of those persons who feel that there is no time in school for the practical work—especially for the girl whose mission in life must ultimately be that of the home-keeper. All workers for the improvement of the home recognize that the hope of this improvement depends in a great measure upon the better preparation of home-makers for their duties. The cooking in connection with the noon lunch offers an opportunity for a beginning in the training of girls that is so essential for the success and happiness of their lives, and of the lives of others in the home. There is sufficient evidence in the world about us that education is incomplete, and that our schools do not yet perform their perfect work. When our courses of study are so adjusted that the practical and the theoretical in education supplement each other, idleness will be done away with, and every moment count for growth, and the children of this great land will

TULARE APIARIST DIES FROM EFFECTS OF HIS WOUNDS

Skull Was Fractured With Hoe In Hands of Brother-in-Law Sept. 8

Assailant Sam Miller, Is Taken Into Custody and Will Answer to Crime

TULARE, Oct. 25.—John E. Walker, the Tulare apiarist, who was struck down by his brother-in-law, Sam Miller, on the afternoon of September 8th, and who has since been suffering from a fractured skull, died this afternoon at 2:40 o'clock at his home just southeast of Tulare.

There had been no hope held for Walker's recovery for the past several days. He had been gradually growing weaker and was entirely unconscious immediately preceding dissolution. It was not believed last night that he would live until morning, but he rallied early this morning. Later he began to sink again, death coming this afternoon. All of the immediate relatives of the unfortunate man were at his bedside at the time of his death.

Walker was one of the best known bee culturists in the San Joaquin Valley. He was president and selling agent for the Tulare County Beekeepers' Association. He was born on the Tulo river, near Woodville, June 27, 1876, and grew to manhood there. He learned to be a practical farmer, and gradually began to devote his time to the culture of bees. In 1899 he was married to Arna Headricks, sister to the wife of Sam Miller, who will be charged with Walker's death. Four children were born to the union, Oliver, Vernon, Neva and Elvin, who survive him. He is also survived by his wife, his mother, Mrs. S. Walker of this city, four brothers, L. A., E. A., F. E. and W. O. Walker, all of this city, and four sisters, Miss Edna Walker and Mrs. Preston Hodges of this city, Mrs. J. B. Fugale, of Fresno, and Miss Luey Walker of Sacramento.

Sam Miller, who has been out on bail for the past few weeks, after having been arrested on a charge of attempted murder, was again taken into custody this afternoon and is in the county jail at Visalia. A stronger charge, probably of manslaughter or murder in the second degree, will be placed against him.

For the past few days Miller had been staying with relatives near this city, his presence there being known only to the family and to the officers. Constable Carl Virden and M. L. Wheeler, of this city, went immediately to the ranch when it was reported that Walker had died, and placed Miller under arrest again. He was taken to Visalia and placed in the county jail.

Sam Miller was residing on Walker's ranch at the time of the quarrel on September 8th. He and Walker had been dealing in bee products together, and had previously quarreled over settlements. On that day, during the quarrel, Walker is said to have started toward Miller, who picked up a hoe and struck him, cleaving open his skull and felling him to the ground unconscious and bleeding. Miller came to Tulare and was arrested. Walker was brought to a hospital here and operated on the next day, to relieve brain pressure, and ailing paralysis. He finally rallied from the operations, and for some time there was hope for his recovery. Later he began to sink in strength. Miller several weeks ago was released from the county jail on $5000 bail put up by relatives near Porterville.

Shoots Bald Eagle At Visalia Which Measures Six Feet

VISALIA, Oct. 25.—A beautiful specimen of bald eagle was shot by Ernest Miller on his ranch at Stone Corral this morning. It measured six feet and eight inches from tip to tip across the wings. Miller shot the bird with a 38 Colt's revolver while it was in flight. But one bullet was used. The bird was presented to the Eagle lodge of this city, and will be mounted and used as a decoration for the walls of the lodge room.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE W. YOAKUM OF MERCED.

MERCED, Oct. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. George W. Yoakum observed their golden wedding anniversary by giving a reception to their many friends at their home in this city tonight. Open house was kept between the hours of 7 and 10 o'clock, during which scores of friends, young and old, called on Mr. and Mrs. Yoakum and congratulated them warmly upon their long and happy life cruise. Refreshments were served the visitors by daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Yoakum.

George W. Yoakum and Rebekah N. Johnston were united in marriage at Alamo, Contra Costa county, on October 26, 1863, Rev. Father Jaeger performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Yoakum lived in Alamo but a short time before removing to Lafayette, in the same county. Then they moved to Walnut Creek, and later to Mariposa. In 1885 they moved to Merced and have made their home here ever since.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Yoakum crossed the plains in the early days, he in 1852 and she in 1860. Mr. Yoakum followed the wholesale butcher business for many years, going from that into peace officer work. He served as city marshal, night watchman and deputy sheriff in Merced for many years, and is now county gardener, and incidentally a deputy under Sheriff S. C. Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Yoakum, who are 72 and 68 years of age respectively, have six children, seven grand children and five great grandchildren as follows:

The children are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cribb, of Los Angeles; Mrs. T. A. Mack, of Merced; Mrs. Forrest V. Routt, of Alhambra; Mrs. Charles M. French, of Merced; George F. and Alvis T. Yoakum, of Merced. The grandchildren are Clemes Cribb, of Fresno; Stanley Cribb, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Maud Turpin, of Fresno; George Mack, William Mack and Tyler Yoakum, of Merced, and Rosamond Routt, of Alhambra. The great grandchildren are Emma and Edward Cribb, of Fresno; Mary Elizabeth and Dorothy Cribb, of Los Angeles, and Virginia Turpin, of Fresno.

It is a happy fact that not one death has occurred in the immediate family of Mr. and Mrs. Yoakum during their 50 years of married life. The nearest to a death, perhaps, was several years ago in Merced when Mr. Yoakum, when serving as night watchman, was shot by a man he was seeking to arrest.

They have finished their work in the Sunset field for the time being, and will await further orders from their employers at Visalia.

C. S. Green has moved the Phoenix Refinery warehouse from the Reardon building to a new building near his office on Carter street, which he built for a large stock of oils and gasoline.

INVESTIGATION TO BE MADE OF BOYS

Juvenile Arrest Causes Uncovering of Probable Delinquency of Two Dozen Lindsay Youths

VISALIA, Oct. 25.—A juvenile investigation which may result in delinquency charges being preferred against no less than twenty-five young men and boys of Lindsay will likely be made as the result of a statement by George Allen, a 16-year-old boy, who spent last night in the county jail, but was released today for lack of formal complaint made against him. Allen was arrested in company with a 15-year-old girl by the night marshal of Lindsay.

"If I am guilty of any crime," he said upon his release from jail today, "there are about twenty-five more boys in Lindsay who are in the same boat."

When Probation Officer Frederick Grimes learned today that no complaint had been issued against Allen, and that he was arrested merely on suspicion, he ordered his immediate release from custody. The officer expressed indignation over the arrest, although he thought the circumstances justified an investigation, which he will make next week.

The woodworking classes have greatly improved their shop quarters in their new building and have added a number of benches of their own handicraft. About fifty students are now registered in this course.

The present building is getting unsafe and will have to be removed.

Every effort is being made to promote the social features of the show, which was founded for the sole purpose of exciting interest in the raising of flowers in home gardens, and to show what has been accomplished so far here along this line. Special prizes will be awarded the best exhibits of flowers by grammar schools and also from the different colonies. No entry fees will be charged and entries can be made at the Kerman News office after November 1st.

RENEW LITIGATION OVER MADERA MINE

Famous Old Daulton Copper Holdings May See More Suits; Recently Sold for Delinquent Taxes

MADERA, Oct. 25.—The famous old Daulton copper mine, known as the California-Nevada, is to again be the subject of litigation. The property has been the subject of many suits in the past and is about to go into courts again.

The property was bought in by L. M. Bradford on October 15th for $883.38 after 5 years of unpaid taxes.

The taxes went delinquent in 1907 when the property stood in the name of the California-Nevada Copper Company in whose name it stood for two years following.

In 1910 it was bought in by J. R. Barnett on sheriff's sale to satisfy alleged claim and he has held such title up until October 15th of this month.

The property which is known as the old Daulton mine takes in under Bradford's purchase the southwest quarter of section 25 and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of one-half of the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 35, all in township 9.

The land is rich in copper deposits, but has seen so much litigation that it has not been famous of late years.

Mr. Barnett is now said to insist on his claim, and there is an alleged defect in one of the conveyances.

COALINGA HOME IS REDUCED TO ASHES

COALINGA, Oct. 25.—An early morning fire destroyed the dwelling of G. H. Walley on east D street. The fire department responded almost immediately after the alarm was turned in and it was only due to their efforts and hard work that the two buildings, adjoining on either side of the burning dwelling, were not destroyed. B. C. Williams had charge of Walley's interests here, Mr. Walley being a resident of Fresno. Walley carried $500 insurance. The dwelling was occupied by D. B. Sterling and wife. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is presumed to have been from defective wiring. The Sterlings had $800 insurance.

Hereafter fond mothers may bring infants to church and give them into the care of the nursery, which has been established in the church parlors. This nursery is in charge of Miss Genevieve Schaffer, who is also at the head of the kindergarten classes maintained in connection with the church work.

KERMAN HAS SCARLET FEVER.

KERMAN, Oct. 25.—The presence of three cases of scarlet fever in the Empire school district caused the trustees to dismiss school yesterday and fumigate the building under the direction of the county health officer. No other cases have been reported in the community and there is little fear of an epidemic.

Giant Indian Stops Porterville Runaway In Sensational Feat

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 24.—"Big Jim" Manuel, policeman of the Tule Indian reservation, and himself a Tule brave of deep color and extreme adroitdupois, laid foundations for the award to him of a Carnegie medal when he stopped a runaway mule in the Main street business district this morning as the animal was dashing through the fiesta crowds in a sensational test of strength.

Several ineffectual attempts had been made to stop the beast, which was the property of Leslie Cannon, of Westfield, and which had started from the corner of Main and Putnam avenue. "Big Jim's" method was original. He made a dive for the animal's head, made a fine tackle of the beast and then throwing it to the pavement by sheer force of weight, completed the capture by sitting on the beast's head.

LARGE CROWDS VISIT PORTERVILLE FIESTA

Last Day Proves Banner One In Attendance and Amusements Provided

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 24.—Saturday was the banner day of the Full Fiesta and the largest crowd which ever attended a community event in this city packed the business streets all morning and afternoon, and at 3:30 o'clock tested the extreme capacity of the Municipal Athletic Field for the football game between Porterville and Bakersfield high school.

It was a busy day. In the morning hours there were a number of field events, including pushmobile and bicycle races, foot races of various kinds and at the Cornell race track, a trap shooting competition, in which were entered teams from all portions of the county.

The first event of the afternoon was the county relay race, in which were entered teams from Porterville, Tulare, Exeter and Visalia, and which was won by Porterville.

The crowd in the afternoon was considerably augmented by the arrival of the special train from Bakersfield, bringing 200 loyal boosters, accompanying their football team. The organized cheering of the visitors added considerable to the enthusiasm and interest of the football game.

This evening the Carnival Circle at Main and Cleveland streets was packed for hours. Hundreds took part in the dancing, which was a feature, and it was well into the morning hours when the lights were finally turned out and the festivities came to an end.

There is one more event, which while not strictly a part of the Fiesta, is being promoted by the Fiesta officials. This is the auto polo game, which will be held at the municipal athletic field Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

TO BEGIN WORK ON CATHOLIC CHURCH

McKITTRICK, Oct. 25.—The excavation for the foundation of the new Roman Catholic church to be erected in this city will be commenced next Monday. The Associated Oil Company has leased lot No. 9 in block No. 5 for the building and the construction will be pushed as rapidly as possible. The church will be of the bungalow order and the lots on which it is to stand is 50x165 feet.

Oiling of the principal streets of the city has been commenced under the direction of the board of trustees and will be continued until most of the thoroughfares have been placed in excellent condition. The extraordinary increase in the number of automobiles and trucks within the past two years has severely tried the city streets and the roads leading to outlying districts, but through the activity of the Kern County Board of Supervisors, together with the influence of the various oil companies operating in the McKittrick, Temblor, Belridge, Lost Hills and North Midway fields, the roads connecting the city with those districts have been improved to a considerable extent within the past few months. The sentiment in favor of good roads has been increasing constantly for more than a year, and the cooperation of private citizens and oil companies has brought about a most commendable change in the direction of better avenues of travel.

Work on the county road from McKittrick toward the Belridge and Lost Hills fields has been in progress for some time under the supervision of E. H. Fairbanks, who has been assisted materially by the enterprise of the Union, Belridge and General Petroleum Companies, which have, at personal expense, placed many miles in good condition. The oil companies have always shown a disposition to help the county authorities in this respect, some offering petroleum in any quantities needed, realizing the value of better roads throughout the regions in which they operate and in which other concerns may enter. In the McKittrick field the Associated Oil Company, as has been its custom, has oiled its roads from the extreme southern to the extreme northern point. While this involves much labor and no little expense, it is in thorough accord with the up-to-date methods of the company and furnishes an object lesson to other concerns, no matter where located.

The growing importance of the oil districts in this portion of Kern county demands first class roads, and it is a matter of gratification to those most interested—the oil operators, the ranchers and the residents generally—that the good roads movement is assuming such large proportions. The magnitude of the oil industry—ever on the increase—the development of the agricultural interests likewise growing continually, the steady advance in the line of commercial activity—all combine to make the subject one of paramount interest to all who wish to see Kern county and the state progress in every branch of their already well assured development.

BURGLARIZE ETTER STORE AT MADERA

Robbers Enter Rear Window, Take $50 From Cash Register and Escape

MADERA, Oct. 25.—Burglars last night entered the dry goods store of A. J. Etter by breaking in at a rear window and took $50 from the cash drawer. They made good their escape. The damp, loose soil in the back yard shows that two men, one with large feet and one with small feet, are guilty, but otherwise there are no clues. The men entered the store, pulled down the curtains and went through the drawers in the office desk where they found the money.

HUGHSON SCHOOLS HAVE 216 STUDENTS

This Is Average Attendance In Grammar Rooms; High School Has 41; News Notes

HUGHSON, Oct. 25.—The average attendance for the grammar school the past month ending Friday, was 216. There has been very little sickness during the month, but when it did enter a family it chose the larger ones, bringing the average daily attendance down. The average daily attendance for the high school was 41.

The boys of the high school entertained the girls at Date's hall Friday evening. Friends of the students were invited. After the program the young folks enjoyed themselves with dancing and games.

Last Wednesday a party of twenty men made a search for two lions and their cubs which had been seen on the river bottom near the Empire bridge. The dogs, not being in the habit of scenting lions, proved to be of no service. The search resulted in the discovery of some coons and a few other animals, but no lions. The lions have been seen on three different occasions by families living near the Tuolumne river, during the last three weeks. The search was made in hopes that the Hughson board of trade could have a stuffed lion or two on exhibit.

While rather quiet conditions have prevailed in real estate circles all over the valley for several months, business along this line in the Hughson district has probably been in advance of other portions of the county.

Three deals closed this week as reported through the J. V. Dato Realty company are as follows: The 10 acre ranch of J. E. Wheeler to Jno. P. Serpa of Illinois; the G. H. Wilson ranch of 10 acres to George Pearl of Yuma, Ariz., and the 80 acre ranch owned by Lowell Bros. to P. M. Nevin of San Leandro.

The sixth cutting of alfalfa of the season was made this week on many ranches. Nearly every rancher milks from 8 to 30 cows, running the milk through separators and selling to the creamery, though much milk is also sold to the local condensary.

CHAMBER WILL AID IN BOOSTING LATON

LATON, Oct. 25.—The Laton Chamber of Commerce unanimously decided last night to join with the Laton Women's Club in an advertising campaign for Laton.

On the understanding that dollar for dollar could be secured from the county advertising fund it was decided to raise $160 to be expended for a pamphlet descriptive of Laton, and the amount was nearly all subscribed by those present at the meeting.

YOSEMITE PRESENTS BEAUTIFUL VARIETY OF FALL COLORINGS

YOSEMITE, Oct. 25.—A hint of the beautiful winter dress of Yosemite is given every morning to the Mariposa county teachers who are assembled here in convention this week. Each morning the sun dawns upon a white world, painted by Jack Frost over night, and excelled only by the blanket of white snow which will come a little later. The work of the frost upon the foliage of the valley has produced a wonderful variety of fall colorings, in all of the deciduous trees and shrubs. The maple is particularly beautiful this season; and departing stage loads of tourists are leaving with arms full of gaily colored branches.

VISALIA, Oct. 25.—The Good Will Sunday school, a non-sectarian institution, will be held in the Garden theater tomorrow and the services will more nearly approach a theatrical performance than any which have ever been held here. Moving pictures and stereopticon views will be shown to illustrate Bible stories and sacred music will be produced by means of a large graphanola. This novel service is in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Grimes, who will organize from the membership a Boys' Prize Club, for the boys, and a Sunshine Society, for the girls, both of which will assist in charity work.

DUNLAP NEWS NOTES

DUNLAP, Oct. 25.—George Parker, who had been burning brush the fore part of this week, came near having a serious forest fire. It seems that Parker started to burn some brush on his place and did not realize how dry everything was. Before he knew what he had done the fire was well beyond his control and looked serious for a while. After the wind had abated the fire was finally put out with the aid of a number of neighbors. No damage was done.

McMillan. The next meeting will be held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Smith. The following officers have been elected: President, Mrs. J. T. Turner; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. A. Fraser. Tomorrow afternoon a meeting will be held in the grammar school, the first of its kind ever held there. The campaign will be closed with a mass meeting to be held in the opera house Sunday evening.

Wilson had a large audience this afternoon. He quoted freely from "The New Freedom" by President Wilson to prove from a non-socialistic source the social unrest which prevails throughout the country.

A movement is on foot to make a good showing at the citrus fair, to be held in Visalia December 4th to 11th. This town has a reputation to keep up, having taken the first prize for the best display of citrus fruits twice in the last three fairs held.

ART OF PHOTOGRAPHY MAKES RAPID STRIDES

True Plastic Effect Obtained Without Aid of Stereoscope

VIENNA, Oct. 25.—The exhibition of scientific photography which is being held here in connection with the Austro-German Medical Congress contains an exhibit which marks a great advance in the progress of photography. This is a series of photographs in which true plastic effect is obtained without the employment of a stereoscope or any other optical instrument. For the various objects depicted to stand out in their true relations to one another all that is required is that the picture should be looked at directly and not from one side or the other.

The method by which this result is obtained is as follows: A double negative is made in the ordinary way by the use of a stereoscopic camera with twin lenses. Instead of the reconstruction by means of the stereoscope of the plastic image from the pictures thus obtained the inventors, Herr Fridmann and Herr Reiffenstein, have devised another means of making each eye see only one, and that one its own particular image. This consists of the application of the fact that when placed against a white background the image on a positive transparency is visible and that when seen against a black background it becomes invisible, while should the image be bleached the contrary is the case. From the negatives which have been obtained in the ordinary way with the stereoscopic camera are made, therefore, from one, an ordinary transparent positive, and, from the other, a negative which is afterwards bleached.

Let it be assumed that from the negative corresponding to the image seen with the right eye the ordinary positive is made and that the left eye's picture becomes the bleached negative. If these two transparencies were super-imposed one upon the other and laid upon a white background only the right-eye picture would be visible. On the other hand, if placed upon a black background only the left-eye picture would be seen. It is, however, necessary that both eyes should see their respective pictures simultaneously. For this a background is required which to the right eye appears white and to the left eye black. This is provided by a sheet of glass, the back surface of which is prepared in a special manner, while the front surface is ribbed convexly, whereby the rays of light falling upon this surface are broken in such a way as to make it appear black or white according as looked at from one side or the other. The problem is, therefore, solved. The two transparencies are placed one upon the other and then both upon this background. The right eye sees only its proper image and the left eye likewise. These combine automatically, as is the case when a stereoscope is used, and the result is a true plastic picture.

The inventors exhibit five or six specimens of such photographs to which they have given the name of "Stereographs." Three of these appeared to be almost faultless. One of them represented a lump of quartz in which even the shimmer on the surface was reproduced; another a spray of orchids in a vase; and the third the skeleton of a gorilla. In the other specimens the two images did not seem to combine easily. It must, however, be added that by other persons present these stereographs were considered the most satisfactory. The new process has attracted considerable attention in scientific circles, while the police authorities are also interested in it, in view of its possible utilization in criminal photography. The inventors are making arrangements for the manufacture in cheap and handy form of "backgrounds" which they hope before long to have brought to such a state of perfection that the process will be generally employed.

WEEKLY COMMENTS

By CHARLES H. SHINN.

The time when fore-handed Californians begin to think in terms of Christmas ought to commence somewhere in October. There are so many possibilities for future gifts which one can thus best forecast, gather up and arrange. If it is to be photographs of your own making, the early camera gets the day-dawn in the autumnal forest.

If one thinks in terms of books, for children, every one of which wise people try to read first, why then October does not allow much time to dawdle before Christmas looms and illumes. Better begin right now, perhaps, with Zona Gale's "When I was a Little Girl," with "Polly Oliver," with Stevenson's Child Garden of Verses and others of the classics.

But one ought to cast somewhat more than a glance over the home field and here the anxious parent can be advised to read and enjoy both text and pictures in a new sort of child's book—"Behind the Garden Wall." It is a book of gay and rollicking verses written by one Robert Wallace, illustrated and colored by Elsinore Corwell, published by Paul Elder & Co. There is nothing wishy-washy about the characters such as burly Ben Beetle the brutal Tiger Lily, the Rich Tree Toad, Lady-bug Jane and Old Joseph Crow. It is the sort of a book one can buy happily for children.

There is a Princeton man, an author and writer of plays—Vance Thompson—who has written several really interesting books but nothing as yet half as much worth while as his latest "The Mouse-Colored Road," which Oliver Herford illustrates and Appleton publishes. It is a Christmas tale of unusual charm, both of matter and manner; children should own it, but the grown-ups will like to read it to them. In this wonder tale, the children slip between the molecules of time and travel the "mouse-colored road" in both directions—a thing that every one of us would much like to do. The Peter Pan spirit is in every line; we can but feel that Vance Thompson should more often do this kind of work.

Years ago it was that people fell in love with "W. V., Her Book," That was William Canton's; his W. V. who is now no more with us, came to be loved by all readers just as Dr. Brown's Marjorie Fleming is loved. Such children are immortal. Comes along a sweet, wise and noble successor in "The Story of Saint Elizabeth of Hungary," which Dana Estes & Company of Boston publishes in this country, and it charms us to see that it is dedicated to another dear child.

William Canton, born on the isle of Chusan (almost seventy years ago) and educated in France, has been one of the greatly-toiling editors of the Glasgow Herald, the Contemporary Review and other publications. He began to publish poems and tales twenty-five years ago; the History of the British Bible Society (in five volumes) is also his. Very few people stop to realize the enormous amount of reading and study which has gone into Canton's books; he seems to have dug to the very roots of the mediaeval faith, worship and social system, and because of this exactness joined to his vivid imagination, all the old-time saints live again, as does the beautiful "Elizabeth of Hungary." Such books as this ought to be read more often and by all of us. Children love them, and so do their elders. The exquisite colored illustrations are by that Eleanor Fortescue-Brickdale well known in London as a painter.

It is altogether unlikely that the coming Christmas will see anything better in its way than Canton's admirable study and illumination of the old chronicles concerning the fair Elizabeth, follower of St. Francis, who lived and blossomed seven hundred years ago.

University graduates, if of the right sort, are not many miles away from the gay verses and legends of their childhood. They, too, will read William Canton and much besides. In their modern phrase, one must "get into something, get in all over, and get results." You can observe these energetic, well-equipped young men and women from Berkeley, Palo Alto and the lesser institutions of the Coast, making "original investigations." It would be silly to laugh or platitudinize about it; the schools are developing a number of level-headed young thinkers in just this way.

Note, if you please, the Truxton Beale prize essays, Volume 1;—five brilliant studies of the fundamental ideas of Tolstoy's "What Shall We Do Then?" Twenty essays were offered; the first prize went to Bayard H. Jones, the second to Shelton Cheney. Honorable mention was awarded to the essays of Seth Thompson, Newton B. Drury and Lillian R. Mathews, also to one other student who withdraws her essay. The five named contribute the essays in this volume, which is a long credit mark for the teaching of sociology done at Berkeley. Considered as literature, the essays of Cheney (the son of a poet-novelist), of Drury (the son of a well-known newspaper man) and of Miss Mathews, whose family is connected with the University of Iowa, rank very high. Considered as a criticism of the practicability of Tolstoy's scheme for reorganizing human society, the other two essays also are able and thorough.

Such publications as this have more significance and greater value than we are apt to think. Some of these essayists will edit papers, write books, take up social service (as Miss Mathews has) and will lead the "new crowd" as the elders pass off the stage.

Another University of California study, "Women in Trade Unions" in San Francisco, by this same Miss Lilian R. Mathews, is published in the fine arts series of Economics to which investigations on wages, labor legislation and many other subjects have been contributed. It is a thoughtful and unprejudiced book of 100 large octavo pages—a book which must long remain an authority in this field.

The editions of all books of the type of the University publications is limited. Some way should be found to print larger editions in order to distribute them far more idely and reach all libraries, newspapers and thoughtful readers everywhere. Also, we should have more men like Truxton Beale, willing to put up a thousand dollars for essay-writing competitions, "to advance the bounds of human knowledge." That is one of the ends for which our State University tells. It is constantly publishing "original investigations" many of which are of universal interest.

The educated woman-doctor at her best is one of the most wonderful things in our civilization. There was the late Dr. Charlotte Brown; there is Dr. Sarah Shuey of Oakland; Dr. Mary B. Ritter of San Diego, long such an influence for good in Berkeley; Dr. Rebecca Dorsey of Los Angeles, and half a hundred more. No language can express the value of such women as these, to men as well as to women and children; to the whole profession, and for the creation of greater ideals of life.

Working in the same spirit, was Dr. Arley Munson, a wide-awake young American woman physician who has written a very interesting book —"Jungle Days." She had fresh material and she has used it well. She was for five years engaged in active field work among the women of India. Such a modern "medical-missionary" belongs to a new profession; she must be full of science and also of the spirit of religion. D. Appleton & Company have seldom published a finer record of unselfish human achievement.

Thinking people should keep track of the editorials which now and then appear in "The Pacific," the organ of the Congregationalists of California. They are both sane and progressive. They recognize the fact that our present social order is changing very fast. Shall we have more profit sharing? Will equal justice more nearly rule in business so that labor gets a larger share of what it creates? "The Pacific," like the "Congregationalist," the "British Weekly," and many other once conservative papers, answers such questions with a "yes."

"I am going to choose me a wife,' a young Californian confided to his amused relatives.

"What will be the qualifications?" an elder asked.

"I want a nice, well brought-up girl who likes to go around with me and see things."

"Don't you want somebody like your mother?" said his father, still more amused.

"Of course I do, but then mother is such an exceptional person. I couldn't expect that, you know."

This was really serious. Each one of the millions of good mothers are "exceptional" to their children.

The father squared his shoulders. "Son," he said, you want a companionable wife, as you say; you also need one who is a home keeper in the big modern sense. She must be well up in domestic economics. Miss Hewitt, over in the town of Aalmeda calls her the 'Purchasing Agent,' of the family and is training the school girls for such work."

It takes a book-lover to appreciate that good fellow Leigh Hunt, one of the most charming men of his time. Some of his essays are pure gold, and his little verses are inimitable. Those of our modern poets who contemn grace and melody, might well study the loveableness of the famous verse to little Jennie Welsh (afterwards Mrs. Carlyle):

"Jennie kissed me when we met,
Jumping from the chair she sat in.
Time, you thief, who loves to get Sweets into your list, put that in!"

But among his more serious poems, what can be more perfect than these eight lines which ought to be dear to librarians, teachers and all who love books:

"There is May in books forever:
May will part from Spenser never;
May's in Milton, May's in Prior,
May's in Chaucer, Thompson, Dyer;
May's in all the Italian books;
She has old and modern nooks.
Where she sleeps with nymphs and elves
In happy places they call shelves."

It is always an event of general interest when a prominent publishing house starts and keeps up a really good "cheap series," for it brings a lot of worth while books within the average fellow's reach. Macmillan has such a series—their "Fiction Library" at 50 cents per volume. Three of its recent issues have come along. Zona Gale's delightful "Loves of Pelleas and Etarre," Crawford's "Heart of Rome" and Hamilton Drummond's "Justice of the King." Each of these is in its way a classic, and has given pleasure to many readers. In their present form such books as these will reach many more, and for years to come.

Jane Addams in a recent address (before the "National Federation of Settlement Workers") said that the direct way of influencing legislation—by using the ballot—was infinitely better for women's characters as well as for men's. "Well-bred people," she remarked, "don't go about their affairs in a round-about way." The indirect method, she added, robs women of their dignity.

It seems a long time since Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology did anything so stupid and narrow as its recent exclusion of women from the newly established courses in preventive medicine and the training of health officers. We happen to need technically trained women as well as men. These are joint courses, largely attended. Time for Harvard to wake up!

The Carlisle Indian School has added to its program for the new school year courses in Social Hygiene for girls and for boys. This famous school is helping the more intelligent young Indians all over America, especially in agriculture and industrial lines.

It is a busy world. Miss M. H. Mason lately returned to London after spending some years in eastern and central Africa, with about a hundred water-color paintings of wild flowers. These were shown at the Royal Horticultural Society rooms, and were described in their "Journal" for August. This Journal is a stately and indeed a magnificent publication now in its 39th volume (new series).

A few years ago, when the governors began to meet in annual session, great things were predicted by sanguine newspapers. But the sixth conference, recently held at Colorado Springs, brought together only twenty-five state executives and failed to produce a single noteworthy discussion. It seems unlikely that another session will ever be held.

The sum total of European opinions about the Treaty of Bucharest is that the powers have blundered, irretrievably, and that another war will result. Every ethnological principle seems to have been violated, and the mingling of races under alien governments is much worse than it was before a shot was fired in the late struggle.

Just come out of Africa. He is a missionary, Dan Crawford, who has written a book called "Thinking Black", and has translated the Bible into the Bantu language—which, by the way, has thirty-three tenses, nineteen genders, and amazes all the philologists.

The magazines of the late October and early November crop are more than usually interesting. In fact, they are waking up. The sombre sensationalism of the muck-raking of a decade ago has given place to a more hopeful, more intelligent effort first to understand then to conquer the difficulties of our modern social conditions.

Professor J. Laurence Laughlin, the noted conservative economist and publicist, contributes a pungent analysis of that great trade-union ideal; a "Monopoly of Labor" to the October Atlantic. Ex-President Tucker of Dartmouth, one of the most thoughtful of living Americans, writes more than hopefully (in the same issue) about the "Goal of Equality" toward which our social progress now seems to tend.—In other words, what is known as "ultimate democracy."

Pearson's Magazine is not always wise in its undoubted love for the thing which shouts aloud to the very housetops, but if one wants to realize once more how the social order does grow, let him reflect upon an article: "Those Stake Buntings in New York City Hall Park" which shows from records how a number of unfortunate and possibly innocent negroes were broken on the wheel, starved to death, burned at the stake and otherwise mishandled by the justice of the Province of New York in 1712 and 1742. The first of these ghastly events was only 200 years ago. The world do certainly move.

Those Marvelous Minds which hold that the judiciary is always and completely above criticism would certainly have sustained every utterance of the judges of 1712, and of thousands of still earlier ones such as the infamous Lord Jeffries, who, like a number of others who have unlimited power, were probably insane. One of those colonial judges, ordering a thief to be burned at the stake, added: "fastened by a long chain to a slow fire, in order that you may long dance, and make the people merry." Jeffries used to compel the wives and children of his victims to witness the "hanging and quartering." The power for the retention of which medieval gentry fought most bitterly was the power of unlimited punishment of their villains—the "private court." Men and women have been judicially tortured into confession and then pressed to death between planks for trivial offenses, for careless utterances, and on the most questionable evidence. The story of judicial murders forms one of the most terrible pages of history.

The Living Age, of Boston, now in its seventieth year, furnishes the cream of the foreign reviews and magazines. A man who reads its weekly issues will keep in touch with contemporary progress.

The Librarians, who belong to one of the oldest and most honor-worthy of all professions, contribute many articles of permanent value to the periodicals; their book talk is always attractive. This time it is Arthur Bostwick of the St. Louis Library who writes in the Bookman for October about books as roommates.

A few people here and there collect autographs; a few others go for rare prints, such as Meryon's, Whistler's, Raimondi's. These last read the Print Collectors' Quarterly, whose October issue is interesting to many who do not as yet collect, but who like to know about these things.

Zona Gale and Margaret Deland, both of whom know how to write, have some very good work in the November issue of the Woman's Home Companion.

That thoughtful woman, Anna Garland Spencer, contributes to Harper's Weekly an earnest and sensible essay upon "Marriage, Today and Tomorrow." She is always strongly progressive, but never dangerously revolutionary in her views.

Coleridge is a name to conjure with in English literature. Samuel Taylor Coleridge, poet, critic, philosopher, is the one we always think of, and yet his son Hartley wrote some superb sonnets; his nephew, Henry, had great talents as a writer; his daughter Sarah's "Phantasmion" was a remarkable romance, and his granddaughter Mary Elizabeth wrote some very beautiful poems. She had much of the spiritual outlook of her ancestor who wrote "The Ancient Mariner." The Bibelot for October re-prints an essay upon her work, written by Robert Bridges, the English poet-laureate.

Lots of Californians appreciate Dr. S. Wier Mitchell's books—and pick up first editions. He was born in Philadelphia in 1829, and his earlier writings were on physiology and neurology. His first novel, Hepzibah Guiness, appeared in 1880, since when he has published almost forty books. The first and second printings of his last novel "Westways" were exhausted in four days. The Century Co. has issued most of his books, first printing the best of them in the magazine.

People are beginning to talk about Frederick Trevor Hill, the New York lawyer, who has done much and excellent public service, and incidentally writes unusually striking novels and essays, such as "Lincoln, the Lawyer," (1890.) He is now at work on a "Life of Washington" which will have to be good indeed to beat Woodrow Wilson's. The Century Co. have just issued a new novel of his—"The Thirteenth Juror."

Mr. Lawrence North, long editor of the London News, an authority on Ruskin, is beginning to be known as a story-writer. His "Golightlys" which the George H. Doran Co. publish in America, is a "newspaper yarn." Other novels which are worth reading are "The Lost World" by the creator of Sherlock Holmes, Alphonse de Chateaubriant's "The Keynote," also G. A. Birmingham's humorous "Triscilla's Spies."

FARMERS NOT UNDER COMPENSATION ACT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Enemies of the Workmen's Compensation Act appear to have succeeded in some parts of the state in permitting farmers to believe that they will come under operation of the law. The statute specifically exempts the agricultural industry, among others, in the following terms:

"Excluding any person whose employment is both casual and not in the usual course of the trade, business, profession or occupation of his employer, and also excluding any employe engaged in farm, dairy, agricultural, viticultural or horticultural labor, in stock or poultry raising or in household domestic service."

The casual employe is one who works for an employer for less than one week but not in the occupation or profession of such employer. That is, if a tramp miner comes along and works in a mine for fifteen minutes and is hurt, he is under the protection of the Compensation Act, but if a tramp comes along and works for a mine owner in his garden, or washing windows in his house, or washing automobiles in his garage, he is not under compensation because not working in the line of the occupation of the employer. In other words, in order to be excluded from the protection of the Compensation Act the injured employe must be both casual, that is working for less than one week, and he must not be working in the line of the regular profession or employment, trade, business or occupation of his employer.

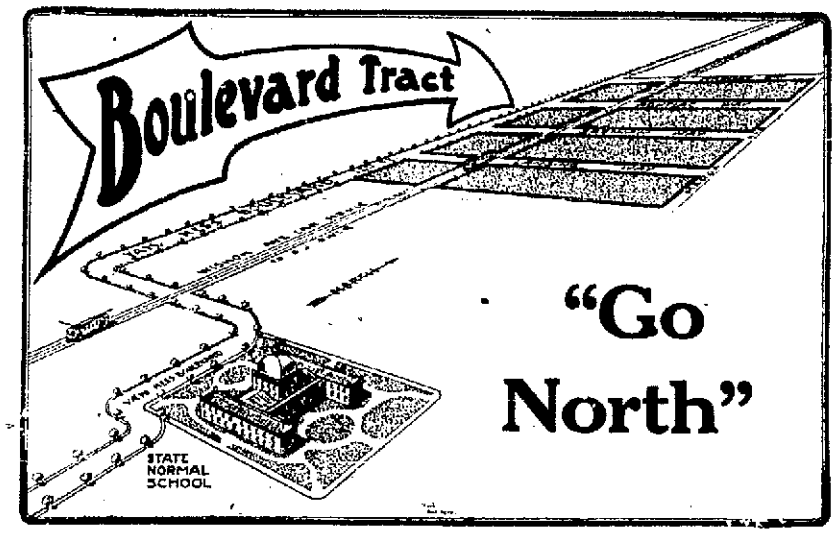

The best answer to the statement that an employe will get his finger pinched when he wants to lay off for a rest is that it hurts like sin to get one's finger pinched and those things do not happen much, if at all. There are occupations in which men lead such treadmill existences, such dogs' lives, that they by and by become so desperate that they will run a hand into a machine and get it taken off in order to get a pension and a change of occupation, but such instances are more rare than where men get their lives insured and go out behind the barn and blow their own brains out in order that their families may get the insurance.

In France, after many years' experience, only twelve instances have occurred in which it was proved that the injuries were self-inflicted and where it can be proved that they were self-inflicted, the injured person gets nothing, although in Great Britain and Germany, if a self-inflicted wound results in death, or in permanent total disability, the compensations are paid nevertheless, and for the reason that it is held that the industry that drives men to such extremity is chargeable with the result and society will not punish itself by being required to take care of such persons or their dependents who have been rendered helpless by reason of such injury.

Take Off the Fat Where It Shows

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that, no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street or in public places make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. This season's dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery, and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of about 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

DINUBA

The many friends of Miss Lillie Wilton and Henry Kidwell were treated to a surprise when it became known that these young people had quietly slipped away to Visalia and were there married by Rev. J. W. Fenton, formerly of this city, Tuesday. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilton, of near this city, and has a large circle of friends here and in Fresno. Mr. Kidwell is a prominent young farmer of the Monson district, and a brother of Mrs. Lee Campbell and Mrs. H. J. Barrett. He has prepared and furnished a neat home for his bride. Monday evening the friends of the bride gathered at the Wilton home and tendered that young lady a linen shower in honor of the event, though at that time no intimation of the date of the wedding was given.

Word has been received here of the wedding in San Francisco last week of T. W. McDonald and Miss Victoria Richards. The bride is a resident of Stockton and the groom of Sacramento. He was formerly a Dinuba boy, and the news of his wedding comes as a surprise here. McDonald is a son of Mrs. M. E. McDonald, formerly of this city and a brother of James McDonald, who was the founder and editor of the old Dinuba Tribune.

HANFORD

Late Saturday evening a party of friends journeyed out to the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Putz, eight miles northeast of town, and gave them a regular surprise in a German way, which seemed to agree with the younger set of the American type.

The evening was most enjoyable, spent in speech making, singing and music. Edward C. Hillbrink, from Corcoran, was the orator of the evening, while Miss Pauline Robertson and Miss Louise Busse presided at the piano. At midnight the party were invited to the dining room, where a fine German supper had been prepared, and the merry party enjoyed themselves until a late hour.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hauss, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jeffries, Mr. and Mrs. W. Sample, Mr. and Mrs. F. White; Misses M. Young, C. F. McKee, Myrtle Sample, G. W. MADERA

The Art Entertainment movement is coming along nicely. The last days of of this week it is proposed to hold a series of entertainments in the assembly room of the Lincoln school, the proceeds to go towards buying suitable pictures for the various rooms of our schools. The largest art company in America furnishes 200 large pictures, copies of the most celebrated pictures in the world for exhibit. In addition to this there will be social, musical, literary and school features which will make this a most notable event. The pictures on exhibition will all be suitable for our schools and an opportunity will be afforded for classes of the school, alumni, organizations, and individuals to select and donate pictures to the school. It is confidently expected to procure by this means, several pictures for each of our eighteen rooms and for the assembly and halls. The faculty of our schools, the Women's Improvement club, and the Parent-Teachers' association are behind this movement and it is bound to be a great success.

She was attired in ivory satin, with an over dress of silk chiffon heavily embroidered in seed pearls. The bodice of chantily lace was caught in the front with a silver and pearl ornament. She carried white carnations and was indeed a charming picture.

A sumptous supper was then served and much merriment ensued.

Adolph Pernu, president and general manager of the California Granite Works, purchasers of extensive granite lands in this district, has stated that he will apply to the board of supervisors at their next meeting for a permit for the construction of an industrial spur track to run from Adobe station on the Porterville Northeastern Railroad to the base of Rocky Hill, a distance of nearly one mile, which will be along the county road leading north from the station. Pernu states that he has several large contracts awaiting completion which will be filled with Porterville granite at once provided this permit can be obtained. He has already arranged for securing the right of way for nearly a mile through private property, a large proportion of which is the property of the Monache Land Company. As filling these contracts here will mean the immediate addition of a large force of men, thereby adding to the population of the community, Pernu will ask the co-operation of the publicity and commercial bodies of this city in securing the necessary permits.

At no previous time in the history of Porterville has there been the demand for houses which exists at the present time. There is usually an unusual demand for rentable property during the first two weeks in November, but this year the season for this demand is much earlier than usual. One Main street real estate dealer reports that yesterday he had applications for eight houses, all of which he was obliged to turn down because there are no homes of any sort now available. This condition will be even more serious after the fruit shipping season has opened, when orange packers and pickers come into this district in numbers.

Valley Realty

BAKERSFIELD

One of the latest land deals in the famous Weed Patch district is the sale of 20 acres by C. C. Stockton to Charles L. Adams for $200 an acre. This land is in a choice section, and carries a water right from a 100-inch well, a concrete pipe-line for conveying the water, a substantial residence and outbuildings. Adams recently owned 40 acres in the Weed Patch, and will set out 20 acres to walnuts this winter.

C. E. Tanner has recently purchased 20 acres in the foothills citrus farms colony near Weed Patch. He will specialize on alfalfa.

HANFORD

R. R. Cadwell has purchased the V. E. Hill ranch two miles east of this city and after adding several improvements will in the near future make his home on the place. Mr. Hill will shortly make a trip to his former home in England.

VISALIA

Most everybody in Tulare County knows something about the big Tagus ranch south of Visalia but it is doubtful if 5 per cent of the people right around in this neighborhood realize the immensity of the development plans which are now being consummated on this 3000 acre property.

W. H. White, manager of the various large farming interests in California of H. C. Merrett, the multi-millionaire owner of Tagus ranch, and who is, incidentally, a brother-in-law of Mr. Merritt, were looking over the ranch this week. Many miles of concrete irrigation pipe being laid; large number of wells and pumping plants being installed; hundreds of acres of land are being leveled for alfalfa. A busier scene would be hard to find anywhere and at the noon hour the ranch headquarters resemble a big railroad construction camp, with about three hundred head of work stock in the corrals and 130 men "feeding their faces" in the dining room. It is not every day that one finds a land owner expending $150,000 in development work, even in this rapidly growing county of Tulare.

TURLOCK

A deal was negotiated this week whereby the business block of the Swanson-Rapp company on West Main street was exchanged for 160 acres of unimproved land four miles southeast of this city belonging to M. Vincent, a prominent banker and capitalist of Selma. In the deal the Swanson-Rapp property was figured at $80,000 and the land at $24,000. Mr. Vincent was already heavily interested in Turlock district property, being the owner of 1600 acres of land, 160 acres of which tract was involved in the trade above noted. He has just made arrangements for the renting of about 800 acres of the tract, and is having ten ranch houses built for his tenants. The Swanson-Rapp Furniture company will continue to occupy the building that has passed into the possession of Mr. Vincent.

The old opera house, property on Broadway was sold this week to several Armenian resident of Fresno, for a consideration said to be $6,500. The new owners intend to move the old opera house building and erect a substantial, modern business block.

Louis Dahlstrom has exchanged two acres on Grant avenue for H. R. Whitlesey's ten acre tract a short distance south of this city. Mr. Dahlstrom will soon move to the ranch, while the Whitlesey family will become residents of this city.

Henry Lintz of Phoenix, Arizona, has bought the W. W. Parker 40-acre tract six miles west of this city. Mr. Lintz has returned to Phoenix for the purpose of shipping his household goods, and will accompany his family to their new home.

Gus Norquist of Kingsburg has purchased a five-acre tract a mile northeast of this city from J. P. Nylander. Mr. Norquist will build a barn at once, and next spring will erect a house and bring his family here.

J. W. Davis of Palo Alto has purchased the Gomez tract of 54 acres, four miles south of Turlock, for $8,100. Mr. Davis will put the entire tract in alfalfa, and will eventually go into the dairy business. Two of his brothers will come here from Auburn to assist him in running the place.

Mrs. S. E. Pentland of Los Angeles has traded property in that city for 80 acres of land four miles east of this city near Denair. She will soon locate here with her family.

Best Irrigation System In the U. S. in Patterson Lands

All of this wonderful production is assurred by the excellent irrigation system, claimed by many to be unsurpassed in the United States. It was built at the cost of $250,000.

The immense reservoirs are supplied by pumps. Concrete lined canals conduct the water without waste. It is a perfect system, and it has been given its severest tests under the unusual conditions of the last two years.

Patterson farmers are assured of plenty of water ALL the time. A water shortage is unknown. It is practically impossible. It is the assurance of continued prosperity year after year.

Plenty of water means big crops of alfalfa, which in turn make dairying immensely profitable.

Assurance of Crops

This is nothing unusual or sensational. It has been done and can be done, not only with one crop but with many different crops.

It is the finest of land for fruits and vines and dairying, conditions being ideal.

But here we want to tell you this time about the quick crops that bring you back most of your purchase price in a single year.

Irish potatoes, 2 crops a year, produce 250 sacks to the acre and never sell for less than $1.10 a sack retail. Sweet potatoes bring at least $2.00 a sack, and 200 sacks are easily produced. Lettuce and cucumbers have brought as high as $500 an acre; tomatoes do as well. Berries yield $200 to $300. Beans $75 to $100 an acre.

This hints of how soon you can pay for the land.

Alluvial Riverbottom Soil of Almost Unrivalled Productiveness

A word about the soil is necessary. It is of a character to warrant the extravagantly satisfactory irrigation system that has been installed at so much cost.

The soil is a bottomless loam. It is wonderfully rich, being all riverbottom soil composed of silt brought down in centuries past by the river, and of decomposed leaves, etc. It will produce almost any crop grown in California.

The inexhaustible fertility of the soil makes this region one of the finest market gardening sections to be found anywhere. This is an industry attracting much attention now.

River transportation, as well as railroads, brings transportation direct to the best western markets.

Yell Defiance at Blood Disorders

At Last You Can Get Rid of Blood Troubles —S. S. S.

The word Medicine is one of the most abused in our language. There are certain medicinal properties just as necessary to health as the food we eat. Take for example, the well-known medicine S. S. S. This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the elements of wheat, roast beef, the fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact, there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming Rheumatism, Catarrh of the Stomach and Intestines, skin eruptions and all blood troubles.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin, pale cheeks and that weariness of muscle and nerve that leads so many people into the dangerous path of stimulants and narcotics.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life. S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 219 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., who maintain a very efficient medical department where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may consult freely.

PANAMA PACIFIC EXPOSITION NOTES

The many colored prisms that will be used in the novel and striking scheme of night illumination of the Panama-Pacific exhibit palaces are of fine cut glass, made in Austria by a process not followed elsewhere. The prisms, known as jewels, are patiently tooled by hand in the homes of the artisans.

There will be several kinds of intramural transportation for carrying visitors to any part of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. In addition to motor busses, which will take a passenger to any point for ten cents, there will be a double track miniature railroad, which will give a four mile ride for ten cents; elastic jinrikshus, push chairs and bicycle chairs, the charges for which will be moderate.

The road systems of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will form a part of an artistic color scheme. A material that will be widely used will be the "red rock" indigenous to California, the rich tint of which will lessen the glare and add to the warmth and color of the grounds.

Up to and inclusive of August 31, 1913, the cash receipts of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company amounted to more than $6,000,000. The expenses to that date amounted to less than $5,000,000, and investment expenditures to $467,651.16, leaving a cash balance on hand of $1,279,264.01. The actual present available assets of the exposition company aggregate $311,978,811.50. It will require about $12,000,000 more to complete the work, and the actual net assets amount to this, without considering the sums to be derived from concessionaires, interest on money in bank and receipts from divers pre-exposition operations.

More than 6,000 applications have been received for amusement and other concessions at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915. One hundred accepted to date involve a total expenditure of about $7,000,000. More than 7,000 people will be employed in the concessions district, and the total amount to be invested in amusements in 1915 will probably aggregate $12,000,000. Among the most important concessions will be "The Grand Canyon of the Colorado;" a working model of the Panama Canal; naval sub-marines in operation; "Creation," based on the first chapter of Genesis; "Toyland," a reproduction of the famous city of Nuremburg, Germany; "Fire and Sword," or the fall of Adrianople: an ice palace; "Forty-Niners' Camp," "Mohammed's Mountain," a Chinese City, and others.

More organizations and societies have decided to hold congresses and conventions at San Francisco in 1915 than any other exposition at a corresponding time before its opening. Up to October 13, 1913, 175 such conventions and congresses had been arranged.

Exhibitors at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition may have their exhibits delivered right on the grounds from car or ship. The exposition has also its own harbor and docks, where vessels from all parts of the world may moor and discharge cargoes. No trans shipment will be necessary from time of first loading on car or ship.

Some idea of the immensity of the Palace of Machinery at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition may be gathered from the fact that while it is a wooden building, the largest in the world, it will require 1,500 tons of hardware in its construction, such as nails, bolts, joint plates, and the like. On October 1st the building was 80 per cent completed.

The yacht harbor on the waterfront of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is about five acres in area and has such ample and convenient docking facilities that coastwise steamers and other craft, sometimes six or seven at a time, use it daily, discharging building material.

The work of transplanting trees from the nurseries to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition grounds has been commenced. The first to be planted were some acacias, pines and cypress, which were put in the large grassy park on the esplanade of the Marina, abreast of the Palace of Mines and Metallurgy. The work of transplanting will be prosecuted actively.

The Panama-Pacific Exposition fire apparatus, to be installed soon in the nearly completed fire houses, will be of the latest motor driven pattern. The personnel will be composed of trained, experienced firemen.

An army of laborers is working a transformation in the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, and in view of the progress that is being made in the construction of the exhibition palaces, it is certain that the buildings will be completed several months in advance of the opening of the great fair. One of the most interesting pieces of construction work now going on is in Machinery Hall. The huge structure is crossed each way by a series of lofty naves, 126 feet high, while the height of the building from the floor to the roof is 135 feet. The ornamentation is being placed on the exterior of Machinery Hall. It consists in a cement composition called imitation Travertine stone. It is a faint ivory yellow in color, several shades removed from white, and at a distance presents the appearance of white. In the brilliant sunlight this shade will not be as glaring upon the eyes as pure white is.

Fleets of steamers are unloading lumber at the exposition docks. More than 40,000,000 feet of lumber have been delivered of the required amount of 76,000,000 feet. As many as nine steamers discharge cargoes at one time.

GETS HALF BILLION FROM ABROAD A YEAR

Englishmen Have Thirteen Billions Invested In Foreign Lands

LONDON, Oct. 25.—England's assessed income from abroad, as set forth in the income tax statistics of last year, reached the immense total of $650,000,000, which represents capital of nearly $13,000,000,000. These incomes are derived from foreign mines, gasworks, water works, tramways, breweries, tea and coffee plantations, nitrate grounds, oil fields, land, financial, telegraph, cable, shipping and insurance companies, branches of banks and mercantile companies, mortgages on property, loans and deposits abroad and profits of all kinds arising from business done abroad by manufacturers, merchants and commission agents. When it is realized how great is the capital invested by Englishmen abroad in these varied enterprises the immense aggregate income, outside that included in the income tax statistics, can be imagined.

According to the same statistics there are 214 persons in the United Kingdom with an income of $275,000, which means that there are that many persons possessing a capital of about $5,000,000 each. But these are not the richest Englishmen. There are 66 with an income of $500,000 and over, 55 with an income of from $375,000 to $500,000, 37 with incomes of from $325,000 to $375,000, and 56 with incomes of from $275,000 to $325,000. Furthermore, there are 4,143 persons with incomes of $50,000 and over, which means the possession of a capital of $1,000,000 or more. Consequently the total of persons in the country who possess at least $1,000,000 does not fall short of 4,571.

take, in my judgment, is to raise the average number of fowls in the farm flock to about 200 or more. This will make a flock which will be worth devoting some attention to, and the product from which can be sent to market most of the year in first-class condition instead of selling eggs throughout the central part of Missouri at two or three cents a dozen, as I am informed was the case last summer, when strictly fresh eggs were bringing twenty-five cents in our eastern markets. The farmer who has a flock of the size mentioned will be able to ship strictly fresh eggs to the market most of the year and very much more than double the price received for them. The value of the product of the present average flock is so small that it directly encourages carelessness and inattention."

"To my mind," says Professor J. G. Halpin, of Madison, Wisconsin, "one of the greatest faults with the average farmer's poultry is that he raises it in too close to the buildings and on the same ground year after year. I firmly believe that as our farms are occupied more and more years that we will begin to have a great deal more trouble with poultry diseases, especially with the parasites, etc. I believe the only way we can ever carry on successful poultry raising for the next hundred years is to branch out and use more of the farm as a poultry range. I believe that a great many of our troubles and diseases will disappear—that is, we will be able to starve out many parasites and perhaps rid some of our sections of avian tuberculosis if we move our fowls from one section of the farm to another yearly.

"We have a large number of farmers in this state who raise chickens year after year in a little yard, often right in close to the main poultry house. In fact, in many instances the ground occupied by the little chicks is also used as a run for the general farm flock during at least a part of the year. If parasites gain a foothold in a flock like this, the old hens will be bound to infest the ground, which later will cause disease to spread among the chickens.

"Of course in a section where the farms have only been occupied a few years, farmers will smile at any idea of this kind, but as soon as you get into the older sections of the country, I believe that you will find that the farmers are more and more inclined to admit that they have got to adopt a system of raising poultry that will allow them to move about from one part of the farm to another, cultivating the ground in the meantime to remove the accumulated filth and starve out the parasites."

Professor Theo. W. Wittman, of Allentown, Pa., says, "As I size up the situation, the most difficult thing to persuade the average farmer to do, is to make a start in better poultry; namely, get him to exchange his nondescript and worthless mongrels and dunghills for pure breds. One of the dullest tools on the average farm today is this same dunghill poultry. No same, or thinking farmer or no such individual in any walk of life would think of going into fruit growing or producing with an orchard of say seedling apple trees. The matter of varieties and improved varieties would be his first thought. So it should be with chickens.

"Unfortunately, it is not as yet as easy as it should be for a farmer to get the kind of pure-bred poultry he wants and needs. Too much poultry breeding up to this time has been for mere external points, such as serrations of comb or markings of feathers, and too little along the line of valuable internal points, such for instance as heavy laying. The best poultry breeders of the country owe it to themselves and owe it to their business to make strenuous efforts to produce still better utility pure breds. There is an enormous field among our farmers waiting for such."

PLACE FOR HEN TO CALL HER OWN

In the opinion of Professor C. A. Rogers, Ithaca, N. Y., "One of the greatest handicaps to the successful raising of poultry on the farm is a condition of circumstances. The horse, the cow and the pig are each given a place in which to live and practically compelled to live there. The hen is usually given some kind of a place in which to roost, but the fences are not tight enough to keep her within her domain, nor the house made attractive enough to entice her to return to it for eating, laying and sleeping. Consequently, the hen roosts on the machinery, steals her nest and in other ways annoys the farmer. By making the henhouse, whether it be a separate building or a part of the barn basement, cleaner, brighter and more wholesome, the fowl will be attracted to return to it for food, shelter and to lay, although she may and should roam over the neighboring fields all day. Under such conditions the farmer is brought in closer touch with his flock, with the result that he gives it better care and feed and obtains greater returns from it.

"You have put a difficult proposition for us, and I do not wish you to interpret my reply as being my expression of the greatest fault with the average farmer's way of raising poultry. I really do not know what I do think to be the greatest fault, but I have mentioned several of the greatest ones, in my opinion."

"DON'T CARE" AND NEGLECT

A national poultry authority, Professor James Dryden, Corvallis, thinks the greatest fault with the average farmer's and poultryman's way of raising poultry is neglect. Most of them know better but they don't care enough. It is a question of "don't care." To remedy this state of affairs, an interest should be awakened among farmers in better poultry culture and to get them to think along that line. If they would do a little independent thinking there would soon be a great clearing away of misconceptions in regard to better methods. The great fault, I think, after all, with the farmer and poultry keeper is that they don't think enough for themselves. They should read all the best literature they can get on the subject, including poultry papers, farm papers, poultry books and experiment station bulletins, but then after they have done that they should sit down and think it out for themselves. Nobody else can and should be permitted to do their own thinking. This is especially true in the field of poultry husbandry. There are so many different opinions and ideas in regard to what constitutes the most profitable methods of raising poultry. They need to get away from the habit of slavishly following any man or set of men's views, ridding themselves of all prejudice and weigh the evidence as it comes to them from the best sources. And that reminds me, that prejudice is a great stumbling block in the average poultry yard.

BREEDING, MARKETING.

"The four most conspicuous places where we find that poultrymen could improve their methods are, first, in a more rigid selection of their best stock for breeding purposes." This is the opinion of Professor James E. Rice, Ithaca, N. Y.

He says "As regards their constitutional vigor, the quality and quantity of eggs that they lay and uniformity in type of fowl for meat production, improvement can be made in this respect by bringing up the general average of the flock in two ways—first, by eliminating the unprofitable individuals, and second, by improving the quality of all of the flock by careful breeding.

"The second method of improvement would be to take more care in preparing rations that will give the best results in egg production and to feed these systematically. Many farmers in this and in other states are prone to feed those things which they happen to have on hand, and do not pay enough attention to giving a good variety of grains and ground feed, or to include meat and oyster shells, both of which are essential to the best results.

"The third way in which improvement may be brought about is in better methods of selecting eggs for hatching and rearing the chickens with a view to getting large size and vigorous stock. We find that the size of the chicken of any given variety is determined quite largely by the size of the egg out of which it was hatched, other things being equal, and that the method of feeding has an important bearing on the growth of the chick, which determines its future usefulness as regards the number of eggs that they will lay and their quality.

"The fourth important factor, by way of improvement, would be to keep more poultry in order that they may give it more systematic attention and market the product in larger quantities and to better advantage. This would mean better care in gathering eggs regularly, cleaning them, grading them, carefully packing and stencilling and shipping to a special trade.

"There are many other factors of great importance, but the four which I have mentioned seem to be the ones where there is greatest room for improvement."

ATTENTION TO DETAILS.

Professor Harry M. Lamon of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Washington, D. C., says: "When we were gathering data for the Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, Bulletin 141, Improvement of the Farm Egg,' we visited over one hundred farms, and the greatest fault we found with the farmer's methods of raising poultry was his utter lack of interest and inattention to the little details, which mean so much for the successful handling of poultry on the farm. In fact, we found the women to be the poultrymen on the farms.

I would suggest that the farmers of this country take at least two exclusive poultry papers, one that is published in the East and the other published in the West. The information derived from reading these journals would tend to bring about improved conditions and better methods for raising poultry on the farm."

CONSERVATION OF VIGOR.

Professor W. A. Brown of Orono, Maine, believes "the greatest difficulty encountered by the average farmer and poultryman is they do not know how to conserve the vigor of the stock. In a recent memorandum, I stated that this is the most important problem in the poultry business today. It affects all phases of the industry and can not be disregarded.

The conservation of vigor is one of the great fundamental problems confronting all agriculturists interested in the development of plant and animal life. It is of particular interest to poultrymen, because more is being required of the modern hen, in proportion to her live weight, than from any other class of farm animals. There is good reason to believe that much of the infertility and low hatching powers of eggs, and weakness and high mortality among the chickens is due to the lack of vigor on the part of the breeding stock.

"These are similar, if not the same, as the causes that have brought about a failure of many poultry enterprises. As a matter of fact, the average life of many large poultry plants has been very short indeed. The same has been true of the history of many smaller flocks. Many people are continually changing from one breed to another, in order to bring the stock up to the standard of production they think they ought to have. It does not seem to occur to them that the trouble is with themselves, in that they have allowed the vigor and stamina of the birds to become gradually depleted. Under ordinary care, it takes from three to five years, on the average, for this condition of affairs to become apparent.

"The following are some of the causes that have tended to reduce the vigor of stock:

1. The great prevalence of the intensive system of keeping poultry. This may work satisfactorily for laying stock, but breeding stock will not give the best results in small and closely yarded runs, bare of green food, and where the soil has become contaminated with the accumulated droppings.

2. Lack of sanitation, and the overcrowding of the birds in the damp, dirty, ill-ventilated houses, when the concensus of experimental evidence on the matter would indicate them clean, dry, open, or curtain-fronted houses, with an abundance of fresh air, were necessary, on account of the peculiar anatomical structure of the fowl.

3. Faulty methods of incubation and brooding.

4. Inroads of disease, and the presence of lice and mites. It is generally recognized that diseased birds should not be bred from, but too many people overlook the fact that but very indifferent results can be obtained from stock which is infested with lice and mites.

5. Unskillful feeding. — On many farms and poultry plants where a real genuine interest has been taken in poultry, probably the vigor of the birds has been depleted as much by the excessive feeding of too rich rations as by any other single cause. Poultrymen interested in late fall and winter egg production have been rather too prone to look upon the hen as a mechanic; in fact, many good laying strains have been properly called egg-laying machines. No doubt a hen does respond for a time to the feeding of rich, protein foods and other stimulants, but these can be used to excess, and often are to such an extent that the reproductive organs have lost the power to produce an egg that will hatch a chick, to say nothing of the possible death of the bird itself. It does not pay to treat a living, animate object as one would a machine.

"The poultry business works in a circle, and this lack of vigor is apparent on the whole circumference, for in many cases the chickens that just lived would have been better dead, for they they are often worse than dead. They are weak and anemic. They do not respond to good treatment and good food. They do not thrive, they are slow to mature, remain stunted, and often, in the general scarcity of pullets, they find their way into the laying house, and there they remain, failing to respond themselves, and casting a derogatory effect on the rest of the flock; and, if, perchance, they should get into the breeding pen, the effect of their lack of vigor will be passed on, with interest, to their progeny if they have any.

"In fact, poultrymen and others the country over do not lay sufficient stress on the individual itself. Ask a number of people congregated together in an institute meeting or a class room, 'What is the first essential in the production of winter eggs?' It is rather surprising the number who will answer that it depends on the care, on the feeding, on the housing, or on any one of the several other things. They seem to lose sight of the fact that a hen is necessary—not an ordinary hen, but a large, healthy, vigorous, substantial, well-grown pullet that will respond to good treatment, even under rather untoward circumstances."

have come into the possession of their birthright.

A recent writer says: "Those who believe that the duties of citizenship are as important as those of family life, and that the ability to dwell harmoniously in communities and to work for the common good is an important end in education, value the training that is given during the one meal at which all the children of a neighborhood sit down together and at which there is an opportunity to add to the spirit of fellowship developed in the home the spirit of a larger fellowship with all those of the community."

Fortunately, cooking is one of the forms of industry that may be carried on with the simplest tools. Although it would be difficult to give systematic work in cooking without some utensils many schools have been successful in serving a noon lunch with a very simple equipment. The domestic science department of the Cheney, Wash., State Normal school states that the following named articles are all that are required for serving a noon lunch in a one-room rural school:

1 four-quart double boiler.
1 large nickle teakettle.
1 six-quart granite kettle with cover.
1 soup ladle.
1 fork.
1 wooden spoon, teaspoon, tablespoon
1 butcher knife and a paring knife.
1 baking dish for scallops.
1 mixing bowl and measuring cup.
2 dishpans.
1 large sieve.
1 oil stove and oven.
A plate.

A plate, a soup bowl, soup spoon, teaspoon, cup and saucer for each child. It is preferable to have the school purchase these dishes as the table can be made more attractive when the tableware is of the same kind.

Food may be served on the desks where a table is not available. Squares of oilcloth should be used to protect the desks from hot dishes.

The Florence Automatic Blue Flame Oil Stove is recommended. The 2-burner high frame stove has been found most satisfactory, because the high frame stove placed on the floor is the proper height for cooking—so no box or table is necessary. The cost of the cooking utensils and stove is about $25.

Many good publications can be secured by teachers desiring specific information as to methods of conducting the class work, so that even a teacher untrained in domestic science may undertake the work.

BEST PROCESSES OF PICKLING RIPE OLIVES

vinegar improves both the color and flavor of green olives. Some picklers advise the addition also of a few bay leaves.

The varieties which, so far, seem best adapted to pickling, are the Mission, the Sevillano, the Manzanillo and the Ascolano. The Mission olive, which ripens in November in the earliest, but not until February in the later localities, is preferred by the pickle manufacturers because their methods are adapted to this variety. Its main defect is its late and irregular ripening, which exposes it to injury from frost in most localities, and necessitates several pickings.

The Sevillano is the variety from which the largest "Queen" olives of Spain are made. When ripe, it makes excellent black pickles. It resembles the Mission in shape, color and flavor, differing from it in its larger fruit and narrower leaves.

The Manzanillo, planted much more extensively in California than the Sevillano, is of short, apple-shape, a little larger than the Mission, and deeply colored. It ripens early and the quality of the ripe pickles is unexcelled. Unfortunately, in the hotter localities it is subject to a dry rot.

The Ascolano has very large fruit, exceeding even the Sevillano. It has been planted in small quantities in several localities and is everywhere reported as a good bearer. Some large plantings have been made recently. The fruit is of the shape and size of a French prune. It contains very little bitterness or color, but requires special care in pickling.

JAPANESE DELEGATES REPORT FINDING NO REASON FOR HEATED AGITATION AGAINST AMERICANS

Soyeda, Ebara and Yamaguchi Assure Fellow Countrymen That Conditions In California Are Good—People At Tokyo Oppose Naturalization Solution

By EDWARD YOUNG.

TOKYO, Oct. 25.—The report of the Japanese delegates despatched to the United States in connection with the California Alien Land Act will doubtless prove of great interest to all Americans, and indeed to all English-speaking people solicitous of amicable relations with Japan. It will be remembered that in the midst of the wild agitation and clamor that overtook Tokyo in regard to the legislation proposed in California, it was decided to send special delegates of approved ability and standing to the United States to ascertain the real conditions obtaining among the Japanese there. The Toyko Press describes these conditions as intolerable, the proposed legislation as an insult to the whole Japanese race; and the Government was being vigorously attacked for its supposed ineptitude in negotiations with Washington. Out of the rancor and tumult it was impossible to find out how far the Land Bill would actually affect the interests of the Japanese settlers and the dignity of the nation itself. Dr. Soyeda was despatched as the representative of the Japanese-American Society, Mr. Ebara as a representative of the Constitutionalist Party, and Mr. Yamaguchi as the delegate of the Tokyo American Friends Association.

These gentlemen toured the United States to gather what they could about the prevailing sentiment in regard to Japan, and they made special investigations in California. Their return to Japan to report upon the results of their mission has been awaited with the utmost interest. It was the signal for numerous meetings to hear what they had to say. That they were on the whole much more favorably impressed than they anticipated must be regarded as highly hopeful for a satisfactory solution of the difficulty. They went to California expecting to find the Japanese communities seething with excitement, their countrymen everywhere taking steps to resist intolerable oppression; and they found the land peaceful and the Japanese unmolested and for the most part contentedly pursuing their wonted avocations. In fact, most of the Japanese settlers appeared to resent the undue solicitude of the delegates; they did not appreciate a measure of sympathy that seemed to them uncalled for.

SOYEDA AND EBERA

Dr. Soyeda's report is especially significant, as he went everywhere, and interviewed all sorts of important people, as well as made a close observation of actual conditions among the Japanese settlers in California. His impression is that the alien land legislation will not so seriously affect the interests of his countrymen in California, after all. Most of the Japanese there had formed land companies, which would secure their land to them as effectually as and is secured to foreigners in Japan. Dr. Soyeda seems convinced that diplomacy has gone as far as it can, and done as much as at present lies within its power. He goes further, and suggests that the most effective way to promote a more favorable reception of the Japanese in the United States is to encourage greater self-improvement among them.

Ebara appears to have been chiefly concerned with ascertaining the general sentiment prevailing among Americans with regard to Japan. He is convinced that there is some prejudice against the Japanese, probably not more so than against all Asiatics; but the people, as a whole, seemed to take little interest in the question. He was surprised to find that the object of his mission so little concerned most of his countrymen in California. They did not appear to receive with any special gratifications the consolations he offered, nor were they in any great anxiety about the much detested legislation. Naturally he found capitalists more affable than the working class; for the question is one of labor competition largely. He does not quite agree with Dr. Soyeda in thinking that diplomacy cannot do more. It may be that a wise and tactful diplomacy might be able to secure greater land privileges for the Japanese. At least a revision of treaties might be attempted. Generally speaking he felt that a satisfactory and peaceful solution was sure to come, but it might take time.

PLEASANTLY DISAPPOINTED

Yamaguchi is in agreement with the opinions of the other two delegates as to the general contentment of the Japanese in the United States, and their hopeful prospects there. Before he left Tokyo for the United States he judged from the press and the general agitation that things in California were in a pretty bad state so far as his own countrymen were concerned. He went there looking for insults and abuses innumerable; but in spite of the noise and the reports of anti-Japanese sentiment, he found conditions not so bad as painted. Certainly, the situation was nothing like what it had been represented in Tokyo before his departure. He was very favorably impressed with the extent to which Japanese settlers had entered into the agricultural and fishing interests of California. In Oregon and Washington States he found conditions still more favorable, though in Oregon they were talking of enacting land laws similar to those passed in California. While admitting that the California law does not very seriously affect the prospects of the Japanese there, he approves the movement for more favorable legislation, and the government of Japan should not rest content until Japanese are accorded the same rights as Europeans.

There is one important lesson to be learned from the reports of these Japanese delegates to the United States. Henceforth the people of Japan must be prepared to take with a large measure of reserve all rumors as to anti-Japanese conditions in the United States. Had they done so in the present case they would have been saved a great deal of needless agitation and the Government a storm of unjustified attack, which must in some measure have retarded the progress and prospects of its negotiations. The demands made by the Tokyo populace for strong action and the accusations of incompetency hurled at the foreign office now prove to have been quite uncalled for; and the unseemly commotion and denunciation of the American attitude are seen to have had no beneficial effect whatever on the course of events in the United States. Washington was not in the least scared, and California remained steadfast to her purposes, an attitude of calmness and confidence that must have astonished, if not favorably impressed the public mind in Japan.

FOUND BOTH SIDES CALM

Moreover, the report of those who have seen the actual conditions will greatly tend to clear the air and soothe the disaffection in Japan, and leave the foreign office free to pursue the course calculated to make for the interests of the two nations. In fact, it is now realized that the Japanese in California have shown more self-control and discernment in this ordeal than their less affected countrymen at home. Dr. Soyeda testifies that they displayed admirable restraint, and the Californians likewise behaved with a calmness that must be appreciated. There was no hysterical agitation and accusation such as characterized the movement in Japan.

OPPOSE NATURALIZATION

The one discordant note in connection with the reports of the delegates is significant as to the future of the question at issue. The delegates appeared to favor naturalization as one way out of the difficulty. This sentiment met with vigorous opposition on the part of one of the Tokyo vernacular journals. Ebara advised the Japanese in California to look forward to naturalization and the privilege of becoming good American citizens. He declared their narrowness and determination to remain Japanese subjects in spite of the American objection to aliens. Some of them had even registered the birth of their children at the Japanese Consulate rather than allow them to be classed as native born Americans. But the Tokyo newspapers will have none of the sentiment Dr. Ebara suggests.

True Japanese will never renounce their nationality, says the "Yorodzu," and it hopes that the Japanese will protest against any effort to make them forego their nationality. This attitude cannot, of course, be acceptable to Americans, a nation largely made up of peoples who have renounced their nationality for American citizenship. Should the Japanese to any extent support this narrow-minded view, the Japanese question in California would be still further complicated and its solution indefinitely postponed. This ultra-patriotism in migration in all English-speaking countries.

Carload of Regals Just Arrived

Touring Cars and Roadsters
Electric Lights and Starter

A carload of new Regals has just arrived, and already we have sold some of them. The Regal is the easy riding underslung car that is so handsome. These are 1914 models with electric lighting and starting system.

The underslung construction that has made the Regal famous has two great advantages. In the first place it is a car that can scarcely be turned over because the center of gravity is so low.

In the second place it is the easiest riding car built. If you want a car just for pleasure, you want one that is easy riding. And if you want it for business, you certainly want a car that will not tire you out.

See the Regal Tippped at 45 Degrees—It Won't Turn Turtle

Here's something that has attracted a lot of attention.

We are showing a Regal tipped at an angle of 45 degrees. We have it here in the garage to demonstrate how nearly impossible it is to turn a Regal over under anything like ordinary conditions. It is the only car built that is so safe. This feature combined with the easy riding qualities makes the Regal a car you'll want.

PLANS FOR A NEW GIRLS' REFORMATORY

State to Care for These Delinquents In a Separate Institution

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—The recent appointment by Governor Johnson of four women to serve with the state engineer as a board to select and purchase a site for the California School for Girls, marks the first step toward establishing a separate girls' reformatory in California. This new institution will supercede the girls' department at the Whittier Reform School, which will be devoted exclusively to boys.

Under the act of the last legislature creating the girls' reformatory, the site shall consist of at least 100 acres. Two hundred thousand dollars was appropriated, one half immediately available and the other on January first next, for buying the land and constructing the buildings.

The law provides that a merit system shall be established in the school, whereby a girl may work out her way to parole and honorable discharge. When, in the opinion of the superintendent, a girl has earned the right to a parole, a reputable home or place of employment shall be provided for her before the Board of Trustees can release her from the school.

The report of the Board of Charities and Corrections shows that there were forty-five girl inmates of the Whittier School on September 1st last.

STEPS SEGREGATING CLASSES IN PRISONS

California Makes Rapid Advance In Methods of Reformation

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., 25—California is accomplishing some big things in prison management. Bread and water diet is proving much more successful in maintaining discipline than was the cruel straight jacket in use some years ago. Only 2 per cent and a fraction of the men released on parole engage in crime again. No other State equals California's record. The success of the parole system is complete.

Segregation of criminals will soon be possible at San Quentin. The first termer and the man who wants to reform will be kept apart from the hardened prisoners. The hated stripes will be replaced by a less offensive uniform for those convicts who show good purpose.

A new cell building will be completed at San Quentin before the first of the year, and segregation can then be carried out. The new building at Folsom will not be finished till later and segregation will be delayed at that institution.

Penitentiaries have, with considerable degree of correctness, been regarded as schools for crime. Under the new administration of prison affairs in this State much is being accomplished toward removing this reproach.

The Economy of "One Man" Direction

IT IS obvious that a motor car manufacturer can build 50,000 cars at much less than he can build 1,000.

But the difference in quantity buying and in quantity manufacturing are not the only elements of saving which can be effected.

Each factory has its own system, its own machinery, its own personnel. Some are still making cars by the old routine with the conventional methods and machinery. Some have advanced more or less and a few, a very few, are producing on the up-to-the-minute efficiency basis by special machinery and special methods particularly adapted to the size and type of the car being made.

We say without hesitation, and it is a fact well-known in the trade, that the great Overland plants are unquestionably the most thoroughly, efficiently and economically equipped and managed.

This great business has the advantage of the personal direction of one single man—the man who founded the business, the man who has grown up with it from the beginning, the man who developed it—John N. Willys.

Mr. Willys has clung steadfastly to the watchword "The most car for the least money." And each year he has more than made good this principle.

To produce a car of the Overland size, power, strength and high quality, and to sell that car for such a remarkably low price, has taxed, to the utmost, all the resourcefulness, foresight, ingenuity, untiring energy and wide experience of, not only Mr. Willys, but a veritable army of the industry's most able men.

Mr. Willys knows men, and it is well known that no manufacturing institution, perhaps in the world, can boast of a larger or more efficient and well-trained, well-paid, well-satisfied organization.

In the newest Overland increased value at a decreased price is more prominent and apparent than ever.

You will make a grave mistake if you fail to thoroughly examine our latest model.

CAR TURNS TURTLE; DRIVER IS KILLED

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Oct. 21.—Jack Forest of El Paso, well-known automobile racing driver, was killed, and John Pryor, a negro, his mechanician, was injured when Forest's Bear Cat Stutz turned turtle early tonight on the El Paso-Phoenix course thirteen miles west of this city.

Forest had entered his car in the Phoenix state fair races next month and was journeying to that city. Before leaving Douglas, he said, he expected to make the trip to Bisbee, a distance of twenty-nine miles, in thirty minutes.

Pryor who was removed to the county hospital, stated that the big racing car struck a hollow in the road and somersaulted twice, landing wheels upward with Forest beneath it.

The dead driver was 32 years of age.

WHITE SLAVER GETS FOUR YEARS IN PRISON

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—Within three hours after his return from Yuma, Ariz., where he was arrested by federal officials, Charles H. Duvall, an ex-convict and deserter from the United States army, pleaded guilty to a violation of the Mann white slave law, and was sentenced by Judge Olin Wellborn to serve four years at the penitentiary at San Quentin.

NO PROGRAM MADE FOR PROGRESSIVES

Governor Johnson Refuses to Permit Any Mapping Out of Campaign

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Governor Johnson has made it clear, in recent responses to inquiries from newspapermen, that he is not to be swerved from his purpose to make no decision as to his future plans until the first of the year.

It is also manifest that he is not trying to exert control of candidacies or other affairs of the Progressives. His emphatic declaration that no two or three men have the right to dictate is a conclusive recognition of the principle that the Progressive party belongs to the Progressive voters of the State and that it is their views and opinions that shall govern.

This is not only the announced policy of the Governor, but all those who have talked with him at Sacramento over the present political situation declare with unanimity that he is determined that it shall be established. He will have no manipulation, so far as he is concerned, "no close corporation" tactics, and will endeavor in every way possible to be responsive to the Progressive sentiment of the State.

The Governor's attitude is consistent with that he assumed in 1912, when he contended that notwithstanding that the State Central Committee, which was in control of the Progressives, might name the delegates to the National Convention at Chicago, the question of whether California should be represented by a Progressive or reactionary delegation should be submitted to the people at a Presidential preference primary.

Uncle Billy Kill's Ancient Fresno County Superstition

By UNCLE BILLY

W. J. Hutchison.

There has been a general belief ever since I have been in the county, and I myself mentioned it in one of my earlier articles that along in the early 60's there was a small steamboat taken from Stockton to Tulare lake and was there used as a pleasure boat. I have just lately come into possession of the facts in the matter, and deem it right as it belongs to the early history of this county to state the true history.

It is true that a little stern wheel boat came up the San Joaquin river, passed up the slough by Watson's ferry, passed the old Cassa Blanca and passed through the ranch of Jeff James. But when it reached Liberty it stuck in the mud on the ranch of the late A. Ashbrook and there it was abandoned. Mr. Ashbrook after a time took the wheel and made a big roller of it to mash the clods on his alfalfa ground. He later broke up the metal in it, hauled it to Fresno and sold it to a junk dealer.

Now when I told this to an old timer a few days ago he said: "But that boat was on the lake. I saw it myself."

Certainly there was a boat on the lake, but that boat was built there by A. J. Atwell, a lawyer of Visalia and it met with the same fate as the Stockton boat. It was stuck in the mud, and stayed there for years. Water all gone away from it. Like the other one, it was a bad speculation.

I got a notion I would locate the first brick building erected in the town. I thought I knew myself but wanted to be sure, so as fast as I could meet them I asked about six old timers and got five different opinions; one man agreed with me and it turned out we were both wrong.

The first brick building was the corner on Mariposa and H, built for Silverman & Einstein. The contract was let in the summer of '74 to A. W. Burrell, the man who built the Fresno court house. Every brick and piece of stone was shipped from Merced. Burrell was building a string of court houses all along the S. P. railroad through the valley from Modesto to Visalia. The Einstein building (as it is known now) was completed along in the early summer of 1875.

Most of us old timers agreed that the abstract office of Faymonville & Dixon was the second built. Along about that time and shortly after there were several small buildings erected. Among them was George Bernard's on the alley between I and J Sts., where now is the Fresno Savings Bank; a little one story on J street just north of the Barton which was used by A. J. Wall as an undertaking establishment, the first one I think, in town; also E. D. Edwards and W. H. Creed built a little brick office on the alley between J and K streets. Following these were Jerry Ryan with the U. S. Hotel, Williams with the Grand Central, and after that they came so fast we lost count.

Most all of those first ones have either been removed or remodeled, so that the original builders would not recognize them today and still the good work goes on and will continue to do so until the population of the city of Fresno reaches one hundred thousand or more.

FIRST BRICK KILNS.

When the Einstein building was contracted there was no brick being burnt here. The first yard was opened by Turlin & Knox near the old Gould ranch. They were from Sacramento and had some kind of sub-contract on the court house. Old Calvin Jones who will be remembered as the proprietor of the first grist mill, bought them out and continued the business for a while. Then soon the business took a jump. Yards were opened all around the town. Uncle Tom Hughes burnt the brick east of town that went into the Hughes Hotel. Our Joe Spinney got into the game.

Along about that time there was considerable rivalry among the yards and some funny things happened. For instance Billy Betteridge, who had by this time got into the business, went to his yard one morning and found that his brick moulds had walked off in the night. He started an immediate search and they were found under the old White school house. Nobody ever told how they got there. There were suspicions, but no proof and no arrests.

FRESNO COURT HOUSE.

I have been repeatedly asked when and how the court house was built and occupied. So thinking that it would perhaps interest some people, I hunted up the record. On the 14th day of May, 1874, the board of supervisors at a regular session held at the old court house in Millerton, having previously advertised for bids let the contract for building the Fresno court house to A. W. Burrell for the sum of $56,370, his being the lowest of five bids. On September 9th, 1874, the board, at a regular meeting authorized the clerk to procure for the purpose of placing under the corner stone at such time as the contractor should designate, certain articles. Some time later (I think in October) the ceremony of laying the cornerstone was held under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. Hon. A. C. Bradford, then district judge, making the address. Under that cornerstone was placed: One each of the several denominations of the gold and silver coins of the United States of America of that date, a copy of the last joint report of the auditor and treasurer, a copy of the act of the Legislature authorizing the removal of the county seat, a copy of the act authorizing the issuance of county bonds and a copy of the court house and jail bonds.

On August 6, 1874, a contract was also let to A. W. Burrell to bore a well and erect a tank for the purpose of supplying the new court house with water. That contract was for the sum of $1343. On the 9th day of August, 1875, the board of supervisors met in the clerk's office in Fresno and officially accepted the building on the report of the architect, A. A. Bennett, that the contract was complied with and the building completed. Thereupon the building was immediately occupied.

"6" Studebaker

Electrically Started
Electrically Lighted
Seven-Passenger

$1575

No other "Six" In the World Near This Price

The new Studebaker "SIX" stands absolutely alone and apart in the entire field of six-cylinder cars.

At its price of $1575—less by hundreds than the price of any other "Six"—it brings you vastly more than the operative advantages of the "Six."

It brings you these advantages, emphasized and enhanced because this "SIX" is not only a manufactured "SIX" but a Studebaker-manufactured "SIX."

Carries Seven In Comfort

It brings you passenger capacity for seven.

It brings you the manifest advantages of electric lighting and starting through a two-unit system that has proved itself on thousands of Studebaker cars.

You have never before been able to buy such a car at $1575.

Six Thousand Manufacturing Operations

How completely the Studebaker "SIX" is the product of the great Studebaker plants you will realize when you know that its construction requires more than 6,000 manufacturing operations.

We build its motor from the raw iron and steel, down through the numerous processes of casting, machining, grinding and assembling to the finished product.

We build its full-floating rear axle; stamp the light though tremendously strong housing from the sheet steel; we forge, cut and machine the axle and transmission gears.

Throughout the rear axle and transmission and in the front wheels we use 13 Timken roller bearings for quiet, easy running.

Economical of Fuel and Tires

In fuel consumption we believe the "SIX" will match, if not surpass, the economy of any car of equal horsepower. Its motor size is 3 1-2x5 inches.

It is economical because, in spite of its 121-inch wheelbase, it is light and easy on its 34x4 inch tires; yet it is wonderfully strong.

It is generously roomy and richly upholstered, and carries its seven passengers in utmost comfort.

Separate Electrical Units

The starting and lighting system is the Wagner two-unit, starting motor and generator separate.

"Buy It Because It's a Studebaker"

Not because of the price mark; but because of the trade mark.

Not because of the outside; but because of the inside.

This "FOUR" the Final Word Among Four-Cylinder Cars

This Studebaker "FOUR" has been developed from our experience in building 110,000 "FOURS."

Its price, $1050, represents the outside limit you should pay for a "Four;" because no "Four" can give you more in actual value or performance, than this one does.

So its price is right. Its capacity is right. Its power is right. It is the right type—the last word among four-cylinder cars.

A Powerful Long-Stroke Motor

Nothing that we can say here will give you an adequate idea of the power possibilities of this car — or of the things of which it is actually capable.

The motor presents the latest approved engineering practice—cylinders cast en bloc, valves enclosed, exhaust and intake manifolds integral.

The intake is very short and direct, placing the carburetor in a most advantageous position.

In fuel, both oil and gasoline, it will give long mileage.

A Car Pleasing to the Eye

Running boards are clean and free, with foot plates of aluminum.

The gasoline supply is under the cowl, giving a short, direct gravity feed to the carburetor.

Electric Lighting and Starting

It has left hand steering and center control.

The electrical starting and lighting equipment is the Wagner two unit system—two units for greater efficiency and greater dependability.

Most Modern and Complete Equipment

Electric horn, robe rail, tools and tool box are also furnished with the FOUR.

The car can now be seen at the Studebaker store and a demonstration arranged.

If I Should Die Tonight

If I should die tonight,
My friends would look upon my quiet face
Before they laid it in its resting place,
And deem that death had left it almost fair;
And, laying snow-white flowers against my hair
Would smooth it down with tearful tenderness,
And fold my hands with lingering caress—
Poor hands, so empty and so cold tonight.

If I should die tonight,
My friends would call to mind, with loving thought,
Some kindly deed the icy hands had wrought;
Some gentle word the frozen lips had said,
Errands on which the willing feet had sped.
The memory of my selfishness and pride,
My hasty words would all be put aside,
And, so I should be loved and mourned, tonight.

If I should die tonight,
Even hearts estranged would turn once more to me,
Recalling other days remorsefully;
The eyes that chill me with averted glance
Would look upon me as of yore, perchance,
And soften, in the old familiar way;
For who could war with dumb, unconscious clay?
So I might rest, forgiven of all, tonight.

Oh, friends, I pray tonight,
Keep not your kisses for my dead, cold brow—
The way is lonely, let me feel them now,
Think gently of me; I am travel-worn:
My faltering feet are pierced with many a thorn.
Forgive, oh hearts estranged, forgive, I plead.
When dreamless rest is mine, I shall not need
The tenderness for which I long tonight.

There has been no end of dispute as to who wrote the poem, "If I Should Die Tonight." It has been credited to various authors, but it has been fairly well established that the lines were written by Miss Arabella E. Smith. In the height of the controversy, on January 22, 1889, William M. Brooks, the president of Tabor College, at Tabor, Iowa, wrote the following letter, claiming for Miss Smith the authorship:

"Mrs. M. N. Robinson:

"Dear Madam—Yours of the 17th is at hand. I first met Miss Arabella E. Smith twenty-nine years ago, when she first came to Tabor as a student, writer, friend and associate teacher. She wrote poetry and prose exceptionally well in those early years. Miss Smith is and has always been entirely trustworthy and an earnest Christian. She wrote a great deal before she thought of publishing anything. Rev. J. K. Nutting, a Congregational minister, now of Freedom, Ohio, was in Tabor on some occasion many years ago. He heard of Miss Smith and her literary attainments, and asked her to let him send a poem to the Advance, Chicago, for publication. The Advance has since published several poems and some prose pieces. Her articles have appeared either without name or with initials, sometimes 'B. S.' sometimes 'A. E. S.' and sometimes 'B. E. S.' (Belle E. Smith).

"In the early years of her writing the Advance and the Guardian, New York, published a dozen or more of her poems, and the Illustrated Christian Weekly and the Congregationalist have also published her pieces.

"The poem "If I Should Di. Tonight,' was not written at a sitting, like most of her poems, but was an outgrowth of an experience running over some years, and gradually shaped itself in her mind in the autumn of 1872, and was committed to writing early in the winter of 1872 and 1873. It was first sent to the Illustrated Christian Weekly and refused. Only a few intimate friends saw it, among them the wife of Rev. O. V. Rice, now of Columbus, Nebraska, to whom nearly all of Miss Smith's poems were sent in manuscript.

"Some months after it was refused by the Christian Weekly, it was sent to the Christian Union, and published in that paper June 18, 1873. This was the first publication of the poem. The Christian Union has also published other poems of Miss Smith's writing, including 'The Measure of Love' and 'Beside the Dead.'

"Those who know Miss Smith have not the slightest shadow of a doubt as to her authorship of the poem, 'If I Should Die Tonight.'

"Very respectfully yours,
"WILLIAM M. BROOKS,
"President Tabor College."

When, early in 1887, Mr. Rider Haggard published his novel, "Jess," there was a great hue and cry of plagiarism. Among other evidences of insanity, "Jess" was given to relieving her overcharged soul by dropping into poetry, and when the critics discovered her in the act of enrobing from her inner consciousness one-half of a poem which had been current in the United States some fourteen years, there was a burst of righteous indignation from various quarters.

One zealous partisan wrote to a Philadelphia paper as follows: "These verses ('If I Should Die Tonight') were written many years ago by Mr. R. V. Vivian Myers, of Philadelphia. The poem is well known in England and this country and, for many years, was one of the pieces de resistance of Mr. S. K. Murdock, in his public readings.'"

The old saying is that "some are born, some achieve, while some have it thrust upon them." To this latter class no doubt belonged Mr. Myers, the man of many initials.

Mrs. Haggard then rose to explain, in behalf of her husband, saying that "the poem, in manuscript, was sent to Mr. Haggard from South Africa in a private letter about seven years ago, and by a lady now dead." She always supposed it to be her own composition and never before published. That Mr. Haggard's correspondent was "now dead" and, consequently unable to object to the stealing of her thunder, did not seem to improve matters materially.

On May 19, 1887, "The Christian Union" reprinted the poem as first contributed to its columns, June 18, 1873, and signed "B. S." On December 8, 1887, the same Journal announced that the "B. S." was Miss Bella Smith, of Tabor College, Iowa. A letter from this lady seems to settle effectually all questions as to authorship. She writes:

"The verses about which you inquire are mine. They werd published in "The Christian Union" of June 18, 1873. Since then I have seen them many times, and claimed by a number of different authors, but I have made no claim for many years. Last Fall, President Brooks, of Tabor College, with the freedom of a lifelong friend, claimed them for me without my knowledge. My friends had often commented on my carelessness regarding them, but I do not care to enter the list of disputed authors, so I leave them to their fate.

"M. R. SILSBY."

The popularity of this poem has called out several rather interesting parodies, the best, in many respects, being the following, by Ben King, which has been almost as widely circulated as the original:

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and say,
Weeping and heartsick o'er my lifeless clay—
If I should die tonight
And you should come in deepest grief and woe
And say, "Here's that ten dollars that I owe"—
I might arise in my large white cravat
And say, "What's that?"

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and kneel,
Clasping my bier to show the grief you feel—
I say, if I should die tonight
And you should come to me and there and then
Just even hint of paying me that ten,
I might rise the while;
But I'd drop dead again.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

The predominating feature of Saturday evening's weather map is the strong area of high barometric pressure which is central over the north Rocky Mountain states. It is causing decidedly colder weather in the Plateau, Rocky Mountains and Plains, the change along the east slope of the Rockies amounting to from 30 degrees to 40 degrees. Light scattered rain or snow over those sections has attended the change to colder.

The eastern disturbance is passing to sea off the Virginia coast attended by some heavy rains in the northeast. From New York City a twenty-four hour fall of 2.65 inches is reported.

The center of high pressure has passed well inland but no disturbance has appeared on the Pacific Coast and no material change in local weather conditions over Sunday is indicated.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The small fluctuations in stocks which occurred today gave no indication of the trend of speculative sentiment. The most obvious characteristic of the market was the absence of absorptive power. Trading was unusually light. The customary week-end covering late in the session caused a slight upturn.

There was a general disposition to await developments of the next few days.

Damage to the corn crop in the Southwest was reflected in Atchison's September statement, which showed a decrease in net earnings of $241,000. Northwestern's fell off $106,000, while Northern Pacific made a net gain of $229,000 in net revenue.

The bank statement showed a cash loss of $1,767,000 instead of the predicted gain of about that amount, and a small shrinkage in the reserve. Sterling exchange fell to a new low point for the year, being influenced by the large exports of cotton and grain.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value $695,000.

U. S. 2's reg. advanced 1½, the 2's coupon 1¾, the 4s 3½ and Panama 2's 1¾ on call on the week.

COTTON REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Cotton of the growth of 1913 ginned prior to October 18, amounted to 6,953,553 bales, the census bureau announced today. Round bales included 49,024. Sea Island bales, 20,880.

JUST SO.

Writing a message of congratulation to your successful opponent the night of election must be about as joyous as buying a present to send to the wedding of the lady who has rejected you for another.—Chicago Post.

Some Facts About Pathfinder Construction

They Show Its Value

NOW there is something besides the luxurious riding qualities and the extreme beauty of the Pathfinder. That is the construction that backs up the promise of this remarkable car. The Pathfinder has an important feature in the chassis construction. The method of driving through a torsion tube and yoke prevents disalignment of the wheels and saves wear on tires, besides eliminating radius rods which are a constant cause of noise and rattle. It is this feature that accounts for the remarkable fact that the Pathfinder is easier on tires than any other car. The Pathfinder construction employs the double drop frame which gives all of the advantages of the underslung type without the disadvantages — this means low center of gravity and entire absence of side-sway. All moving parts are enclosed in aluminum housing, nothing exposed to the dust but the tires. This construction makes for economy in the long run as dirt and sand cut the life out of your car when the vital parts are not enclosed. All bearings in the Pathfinder chassis are bronze bushed instead of steel against steel. Steel bearings rust and squeak, while with renewable bronze bushings your car will always remain noiseless even in old age. It is this attention to detail that makes the Pathfinder a car that gives perfect satisfaction when it is an old car as well as when it is new.

Rides Like Constant Coasting

Want a New Car if You Can Sell the Old One?

THIS is to the man who says "I will get a new car this year if I can trade in the one I now own at the right figure."

By "right figure" he means one that does not require too much cash in order to obtain a new car.

Don't you know that cars are made to attract various classes of buyers? Some builders seek to attract buyers by giving extraordinary values and with low prices. Other makers give the same, or less value, but price their articles high in order that a margin of profit is left with which to take care of trades.

This is made possible by the fact that even the most experienced motorist often is not able to compare values. Qualities usually are determined by the prices that are asked. So the buyer is deceived. He takes a car priced at $3,000, thinking he is getting a $3,000 value, when, as a matter of fact, he may be getting only a $2,000 value and the $1,000 is added to the price to absorb the used cars.

Hudson Six 54 Values Are Real

THIS—"the handsomest car ever designed"—is not built for trading. It is priced low for cash buyers. It is the kind of value you get when you pay cash. In its purchase you are not paying the price to help absorb the used car of some other buyer.

If you drive a car, then drive this Six for a while. If you do not know anything about six-cylinder cars—then come find out.

The man who knows nothing of the electric light is satisfied with his kerosene lamp. To him it is the very best artificial light to be obtained. So it is with the man who knows only the four-cylinder car. He does not understand the pleasure and satisfaction to be obtained with a Six.

The Hudson Six 54 rides like constant coasting.

Up hill or down, over rough roads or smooth, at any speed, you ride with a comfort not obtainable in any four.

There is nothing lacking in this car to make it complete.

It has a true streamline body, left-hand drive, center control, entrance to driver's seat from either side, four-speed transmission and many other details—some exclusive, all advanced—are features you should see.

Would you let such value be compared with the fictitious price of a car made for trading?

If You Do Not Know the Cadillac

"Ask Anyone"

The "Story of the Cadillac" is one of that mechanical and commercial advancement which makes for permanency. The Cadillac Company has never yielded to clamor by producing that which catered merely to fancy, nor that which took advantage of the uninformed. On the contrary it has produced only that which it knew to be right, that which it knew would give to the purchaser "value received" in abundant measure.

The Cadillac Company has never been obliged to resort to exaggeration and overdrawn claims to dispose of all the cars that it could make—and more. Its policy has ever been to under-claim rather than over-claim. It is gratified that the public accepts its representations at their full worth; because the public has never been misled and because the public could always expect and has always received more than was offered.

SACRAMENTO WINS PORTLAND SERIES

Second Time Victory Has Come to Wolves Against Webfeet

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 25.—The Sacramento Wolves retained their second place berth today by making every-one of their eight hits count for a run. Stanley, the Portland recruit southpaw, contributed one walk that accounted for one more run. Sacramento won, 9-3, clinching the series with their fourth win. This is the first series Sacramento has won from Portland this year and the second time since the teams have been in the league that Sacramento has taken a series from the northerners.

FRESNO RUGBY MEN GO DOWN BEFORE STOCKTON

Spectacular Sprint By Toomey Gives Fresno Only Try of Game

Perfect Boot By Whitney Converts Try for the Victory

BY GALEN BOGUE.

STOCKTON, Oct. 25—Before a crowd of 600 people or more the Stockton high school rugby team took the long end of a 5 to 3 game from the rugby fifteen of the Fresno high school, winning the game after the time for the last half had expired, as the ball was in play when the final whistle blew.

When the gun banged for the close of the game, the ball was but a few yards in front of Stockton's goal. It was Fresno's ball and the wing forward ordered a scrum. The ball went through the scrum perfectly to Stockton's half back and the ball was passed along to the backs until it reached Herb Waite, Stockton's star wing, who took the ball over for a try. Captain Whitney then made a perfect boot, converting for Stockton and winning the game.

During the first part of the initial half Stockton men rushed their opponents down the field and had the ball in front of Fresno's goal a good part of the time, but the defensive work of the visitors was without par. Toomey received the ball from a pass and made a run down the field undisturbed for Fresno's first and only score of the game. He failed to convert.

Both teams played more of a fighting than a scientific game, there being but little passing by the backs. The game resembled a regular football game rather than a rugby contest and every minute found players on both sides slugging their opponents.

Stockton showed to better advantage in the scrums, though the Fresno forwards always shoved the home scrum at will. In the line outs neither team was especially good, both sides being content to drop the ball and dribble it, preferring not to give the other a chance to start a passing rush.

Following is the way the teams lined up:

Fresno Recruit Helps to Get Score Against Oakland

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25—For the second time this week, Pitcher McKenry, the Angel recruit from the Fresno club of the State league, kept the Oaks guessing for nine innings and Los Angeles had no difficulty in winning today's game 4 to 0.

Ables was no puzzle to the home club after the fourth inning. He held the locals runless and hitless until that time. Score:

CONTESTANTS READY FOR LONG BATTLE AT TAFT

Sam Langford Meets Lester In Twenty Round Fight In Oil City

Men Complete Training for Match; Both In Fine Condition

TAFT, Oct. 25.—Final arrangements for the greatest twenty-round battle event ever staged in the oil fields, and one of the most important in the recent history of the heavyweight division were completed today. Sam Langford is down to 180 pounds, the mark he set when he began work. He declares that he is in absolutely fit condition and will do practically no work Sunday. Lester is also in good condition.

Special trains from Bakersfield and San Francisco have already been secured. They will arrive here about 10:30 o'clock Monday morning. The train from Bakersfield will be in charge of Joe Carroll, who has been an efficient and energetic lieutenant to Wilson.

The Norbig Film Company has its representatives in Taft to film the event. In order that there may be good light for the main event, the first preliminary will start at 1:30 sharp, the Main event will start at 2:30. There will be two preliminaries of four rounds each.

Manager Wilson reports a heavy advance sale of seats and he expects a capacity crowd in the new pavilion when the two huskies tangle on Monday afternoon. Returning visitors from the Portola festival have secured seats and many Los Angeles fans will stop off to witness the contest. It is the biggest fistic event ever promoted in the oil belt and few who follow the game will care to miss it.

Sam Langford is undoubtedly the most prominent pugilist in the heavyweight division today. With the decline of Jack Johnson there is no doubt that Langford stands head and shoulders over all competitors for championship honors. People who have returned from abroad and who have seen Johnson in his exhibitions say that the big black has run his course and that the first husky young contender who meets him will surely take his measure. Consequently Monday night's event takes on the aspect of a championship event.

For this reason the contest is attracting the attention of the outside world as well as of the patrons of the sport in Southern California. Lester realizes that he has the opportunity which comes to every fighter about once in his life and will exert every ounce of his energy and courage in the strife.

MURPHY WILL MAKE TOUR OF FOREIGN LANDS

HOLIDAY DRIVES SEALS ON ROCKS

Jimmy Johnston and Venice Team Get the Honors

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Jimmy Johnston Day spelled defeat today for San Francisco, when the Venice Tigers shut out the home team, 8 to 0. Overall was hit freely by the visitors. After having the game sewed up in the eighth frame by 4 to 0, the Venice players in the opening of the ninth sent four more runs across the plate. Spider Baum, pitching for the Tigers, held the Seals to six scattered hits, while Overall was touched up for thirteen hits. He retired in the ninth, Hogan, substitute outfielder for San Francisco, relieving him.

OVERALL DECLARES WAGNER GREATEST BALL PLAYER

Husky German Has Been In Game Seventeen Years and Still Going

Orvie Thinks Hans Strong In Every Department of Pastime

By ORVIE OVERALL

Hans Wagner I consider the greatest ball player of them all. The present day stars will have to go a long way before they can compare with the great German.

When McGraw declared Collins the peer of all ball players he must have been influenced by a burst of enthusiasm that made him forget the past. Collins is a young man in the game alongside of Wagner and there is no way of comparing the Collins of today and the Wagner of ten years ago. If you delve into the record book to draw conclusions Wagner has it on all of them by a big margin.

There is not a player in the game today whose record can compare with Wagner's. He has been going along for seventeen years and he is still holding his own with the best in the game.

DIDN'T HAVE A WEAKNESS

When I first went to the big league Wagner was in his prime. He was easily the star of the National league, and there were few players who equalled him in any department of the game. He did not have a weakness, and while there were other players who may have been as good fielders as the German, they could not hit or run bases like him. Others might have batted as well as Wagner, but they were not up to his standard in other departments of the game.

Collins and Cobb are remarkable players and two of the greatest the game has known, but I can not figure where either of them excels Wagner. I am talking of Wagner when he was at his best. Both Collins and Cobb are at their best now, while Wagner is on the slide, so it is hard to make comparisons between these players on their present season's showing.

It would be easier to compare Collins and Cobb, as both of them are in the height of their best form, while it is necessary to tell of what Wagner has done to get a decision.

GREAT IN FIELD, TOO

Take Wagner's record from any angle and you will find that he is a remarkable player. On the defensive or offensive he was strong. He probably gained greater recognition through his batting feats because the followers of the sport pay more attention to this feature of the game, as it catches their eye.

It is admitted that he is one of the greatest batters the game has known, but I also contend that he is a great fielder as well. Very few men that played shortstop were the equal of Wagner, and many of them that were compared with him at one time have passed out of the big leagues.

He covered a great amount of ground at shortstop. He was also endowed with a great arm, and he could throw the ball to first base about as fast as any of them.

ALL PITCHERS ALIKE TO HIM

Wagner is a natural hitter, and at this department of the game he appeared at his best. All pitchers looked alike to him when he used to sting the pill around the .350 mark.

He was strictly a slugger with a wonderful eye. He is hard to fool, and anytime he lays the wood against the ball it was going to travel. His great hitting and wonderful speed caused him to be feared by every pitcher who faced him.

Cobb is a remarkable ball player. He does a lot of spectacular work, but I doubt if he accomplishes as much as Wagner.

Wagner's record is one that I think will stand for a long time. For seventeen years he has been batting the ball above the .300 mark and he appears to be good for a few more years. McGraw may figure Collins, but I can not understand how he based his conclusions, as he could not have gone to the records.

WINTER LEAGUERS MEET AGAIN TODAY

Coliseums Meet McAfees In Opening Game; Arcades Play Brunswicks

Two baseball games of the Fresno Winter league are scheduled for Recreation Park diamond today. Coliseums oppose McAfees in the opening round, while the Arcades will meet the Brunswicks in the final contest. The opening battle is called at 1:30 o'clock instead of 2, with a time limit of one and one-half hours.

Captain Pickford of the Brunswicks is in charge of the teams at present as Manager Bradley is spending a few days in San Francisco. Practically the same lineup as went onto the field last Sunday will be used today. The hitting order is as follows: Cartwright ss, Duncan cf, Hyde 3b, Pickford 1b, Clarno 2b, Robels rf, Stapp lf, Preston c, Merriman p.

Ashway, a new second baseman, has been signed by Reg Dauner and leads the Arcade batting order. Ashway has been playing ball around Bakersfield and other cities of the oil district. He worked in the Humboldt league two years ago and is rated as a fast ball player. The batting order of the Arcades follows: Ashway 2b, Ryan lf, Steele ss, Martin cf, Dauner 1b, Ostrander c, Sorensen rf, Duncan 3b, Cook p, Spang extra.

With the exception of Hemphill, Manager Bill Budge of the McAfees will have the same string of players as last Sunday. Hemphill has been showing a good line of stuff, although illness has kept him out of the game. Following is the McAfee's hitting list: Hemphill 3b, Tufts cf, Besson 2b, Meeham ss, J. Cartwright c, Branch 1b, Bernard rf, Stevensen lf, Massow p.

On paper the Coliseums stack up as the strongest team in the league. The acquisition of Kuhn gives Manager Ford a good hitter and an excellent first sacker. Escola is back in the game and Brazill will be seen on third base. The batting order: Brazill 3b, Kuhn 1b, N. Smith 2b, Preston lf, Escola ss, Berryman c, Lewis rf, Stoner cf, C. Smith p.

Fifteen Hundred Enthusiastic Fans Witness Opening Game of C. C. A. A. L.

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 25.—What was quite the largest crowd that ever assembled at the Municipal Athletic field saw the football game this afternoon between Porterville H. and Bakersfield H., which resulted in an 0 to 0 tie. Thirty minute halves were played. Fifteen hundred people attended the game.

Bakersfield arrived 200 strong at noon today on a special train. Trained cheering squads were scattered about the athletic field and the consistent rooting of the boys and girls from the oil field added no little to the interest and enthusiasm which attended the game.

The Bakersfield visitors wore ribbons on which were the words: "Bakersfield Fights", and this motto adequately described the game, which was a consistent one from start to finish.

The teams lined up as follows:

Porterville—Forwards, Baca, Tobias, R. Norris, Evans, Danner, Ting and Deller. Wings, Bunker and Smith. Halves, Wilson and Anderson. Three-quarters, Hastings and Schmittou. Five-eighths, Flory. Full back, Sheets.

ALL BLACKS DEFEAT CALIFORNIA RUGGERS

BERKELEY, Oct. 25.—The University of California Rugby team again met defeat this afternoon at the hands of the unconquered New Zealands. All Blacks by a score of 37 to 3. California fought hard but was unable to overcome the superior playing of the visitors. Early in the second half California made its score for a time through faultless playing held back the New Zealanders.

Until the California varsity crossed the All-Blacks' line in the second half today, the visiting New Zealanders had not been scored upon in America. The three weeks they have been here they have met all the crack ruggers hereabouts and had scored a total of 255 points before a single try had been made against them.

BUSH PITCHES BUT FIVE FULL GAMES FOR MACK

Wonder of World Series But Stripling In Regular League Play

Youth Pulled Off Rubber Fifteen Times By Leader of Athletics

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 25.—Leslie Joseph Bush, a young man who might have made a Babe Adams reputation for himself in the last world's series had the series been longer, pitched only five full games for the Mackmen last season, being pulled off the rubber no less than fifteen times. He participated in portions of thirty-four contests, and all told labored on the mound in 199 innings, or about twenty-one full games. The man from Brainard, Minn., was not the wildest flinger in the American league by any means, for he passed only sixty-six players and winged only five.

The greatest number of passes Bush handed out in one game was four, and in two of the complete contests he pitched he had perfect command. Bush went the route three times against the Naps, once against the Tigers and once against the Browns. On June 13 he hooked up with Vean Gregg, the Charley Sweeney of 1913, and went down to honorable defeat, 3 to 0, permitting his opponents five hits and denying them a pass and striking out Napoleon Lajoie.

DEFEATS CLEVELAND

On July 9th Bush lasted through another game against Cleveland, being returned a winner this time on the basis of 5 to 3. He pitched against Willie Mitchell and Fred Blanding and held the Naps to a dozen well distributed safeties, again refusing to allow any one to promenade. The third complete game pitched by Bush was recorded on July 30 and was with St. Louis. The young Minnesotan downed the Browns, 2 to 1, his mound rival being Karl Wellman. The Missourians obtained five hits and one pass.

On August 6th Mack picked Bush to subdue the Naps and Leslie Joseph did so with ease, the score being 7 to 1. Gregg and Kahler were Cleveland's gunners and the Naps made seven hits and drew one pass.

Bush went the route for the last time during the championship season on September 22nd, his opponents being the Tigers, whom he blanked, 4 to 0. In this game Bush yielded eight safeties and walked four men. Detroit's pitcher was George Dauss.

Bush was chased to the tall timbers by all seven American League clubs. The Naps made him quit three times and so did the Yankees and the Nationals. He was shelled from the mound twice by the Red Sox, twice by the White Sox, once by the Tigers and once by the Browns.

OPENS AGAINST YANKEES

Bush's major league debut was accomplished on September 30, 1912 when he faced the Yankees. The youngster failed to last through the entire controversy, being derricked after he had pitched eight innings. In that time the Yanks acquired ten runs and twelve hits, three of them homers and four of them walked. Bush in his inaugural game tore off a pair of safeties, manufacturing a triple off Ray Caldwell when the bases were jammed.

The Athletics were not the only Major League club last season to have two pitchers who were born in the same city. Bush and Bender as nearly every one knows, first saw the light of day in Brainard, Minn. Few fans are aware that Al Demaree and Arthur Fromme of the Giants both were born in Quincy, Ill. Such is the case, however.

Detroit American Manager After Strong Aggregation Next Season

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 24.—With the shouting and the tumult of the 1913 baseball season not yet dead, optimistic Jean Dubuc of the Detroit Tigers says that the Jennings organization will be one of the strongest teams in the American league next year. He says that before the season is six weeks old the pennant contenders will begin to pay serious attention to the Tigers.

"We have one of the best outfields in the league," declared Dubuc. "Also one of the best catching staffs, and our infield is better than the average, much better. As for the pitching staff, well—

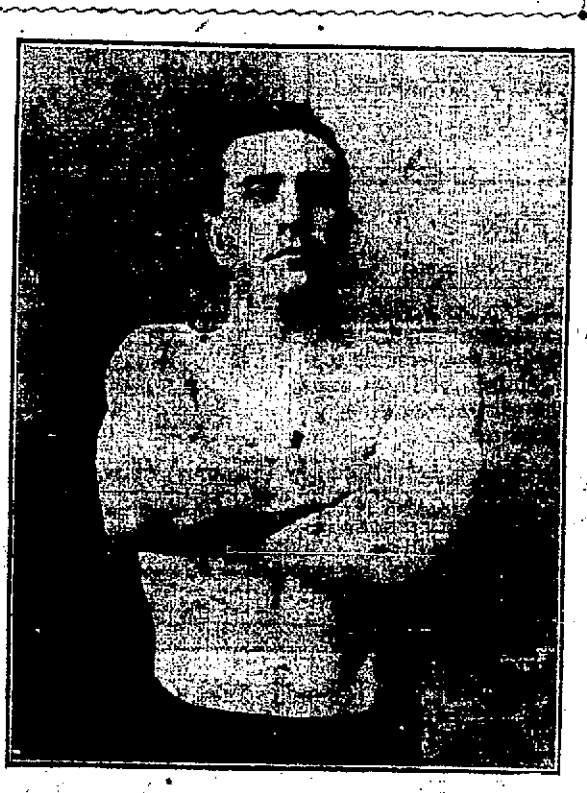

"Dauss was one of the best of the 1913 youngsters and Williams looks like a very promising left-hander. He is young, but he knows how to pitch, and, best of all, he has control. He has better control than a major portion of the right-handers. Had Williams been with us from the beginning of the season we would have finished in the first division. A score of games went to the other fellow because we did not have a capable left-hander to shove in at the critical moments.

"Willett is a better pitcher than he ever has been. He has gained control of a slow ball, and if he starts off as well in 1914 as he finished in 1913 he will be one of the leading pitchers.

"A glance at the records will show that he won 10 of his last 15 games. As for myself—I'll be in condition when the season starts if earnest work will accomplish anything. Mark Hall is a good dependable worker, and we should start the 1914 season with four dependable pitchers.

"This will mean a lot to Detroit."

JOSEPHS MEETS ITALIAN WRESTLER TODAY

G. PIOMBO.

The stage is set for the handicap wrestling match between Aram Josephs, the Armenian wrestler of this city, and G. Piombo, the Italian champion, from San Francisco this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Officials for the match have been chosen and the preliminaries for the big bout arranged.

Both men are in perfect condition. Josephs will enter the ring at 158 pounds, while Piombo will tip the beam at 180 when he steps onto the mat. Two weeks of training have worked wonders in the two men. Neither of them were far from condition when the articles of agreement were signed and their workouts have been strenuous enough to bring them to perfect form.

For the first time in the history of local wrestling, two Japanese will contest. A local boy and a San Francisco youth will furnish the first piece of entertainment. It is expected that a record crowd will attend as great interest has been manifested.

ELECTRICAL PAGEANT OF THE PORTOLA WEEK

San Francisco Eclipses Record of Merrymaking In Brilliant Parade

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—San Francisco eclipsed tonight all former carnival records with an electrical pageant of brilliant floats.

The trireme Chinese junk, Santa Maria of Columbus, Indian canoe, Robert W. Fulton's original steam craft, and other floats represented the early days of navigation. Later camo war vessels of many kinds, firing bombs and confetti from miniature cannons. Searchlights from the decks of the vessels were played upon the crowds. A score of bands, crowds of joys and glooms, Chinese dragons and other novelties, were interspersed among the floats.

CHARGED WITH BEING A LAND SWINDLER

PORTLAND, Oct. 25.—On a charge of alleged land swindling promoted in Portland, Seattle and Walla Walla, Ernest O. Gross is held in jail here, having been arrested last night. The land in question, it is alleged, was represented to be near the California line and was sold in parcels at $150 each.

NOT YET MARRIED.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 25—John G. A. Leishman, the former American ambassador to Germany, said tonight that the report that the marriage of his daughter, Miss Nancy Leishman, to the Duke of Croy had taken place yesterday at Geneva, was untrue. Both religious and civil ceremonies, he added, will take place here next Tuesday.

FOOTBALL SCORES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 25.—With Yale field a quagmire and a pelting rain falling during the game, Washington and Jefferson held Yale to an 0 to 0 score this afternoon. Playing conditions could scarcely have been worse and both teams played below par in consequence.

The visitors threw a scare into the Yale camp in the first few minutes of play when Braden picked up the ball after Knowles' punt had been blocked and raced over the line. There was offside play, however, and the score did not count.

Griffin and John R. Strachan, runners up in this year's national doubles championship at Newport. RIVERDALE DEFEATED BY LATON IN BASKETBALL

LATON, Oct. 25.—The practice game of Basket ball between Laton and Riverdale played here this afternoon was won by the Laton club, 14 to 9. A large crowd witnessed the game, which was fast and exciting, being a tie at the end of the first half. In the second half the Latonites got the measure of the Riverdales, but they had to play for it all the way through.

GOLF PLAYERS TO BE STANDARDIZED

Uniform Handicaping Method to Be Established In California

Golf playing in California is to be standardized, that is the classification of players is to be standardized, to eliminate the imperfect methods of handicapping that have been in vogue in this state.

At the present time every golf club has its own standard of classification and a class A man on one club may be a class C or D man on another or vice versa.

An elaborate system of identification of the 6000 or more golf players is now being prepared and when it is completed, every player above a certain rating, will know just how many other players there are in his class and who the players are.

A standard set of links is to be adopted and rating will be on this standard. If one club has links that require more strokes than the standard due consideration will be given in the classification of the players and the same consideration will be given where the links are shorter than the standard.

Paul W. Selby, president of the California Golf association, is to have charge of the work of rating players according to their ability and in the carrying on of this work, he expects to pay a visit to every golf club in California. He will be in Fresno in a short while and will play several games on the links of the Sunnyside Country club.

When the ratings are made, copies, in book form, together with a description of every golf club in California, will be furnished the golf clubs and members.

J. A. Ryan of San Francisco, representing Henry Roberts, a golf writer, who has undertaken the work of getting information for ratings, has been in Fresno for several days in conference with officials of the Sunnyside club in regard to this.

Although golf is a new sport for Fresno, there are a large number of "bugs" already here, and it is believed that the directors of the club will soon affiliate with the California Golf association so as to be able to participate in the many tournaments that take place in the state annually. It is also hoped that as soon as the Sunnyside links are improved, tournaments can be brought to this city. Because of the fact that the majority of the Sunnyside club players are only beginners, play thus far has only been between members of this club, and no attempt has been made to enter outside tournaments or to induce others to enter tournaments here.

The proposal to rate members of the different golf clubs for the purpose of standardizing the game in California, has been received with much pleasure by the Sunnyside club people and the belief is expressed that this club will soon become a factor in California golfing.

ARRANGE BOOSTING TOUR FOR DRIED FRUIT COMPANY

Promotion Committee Plans to Visit All Peach Growing Centers

H. W. Wrightson Resigns As Chairman; E. W. Hyde Succeeds Him

A boosting tour on behalf of the Growers' Dried Fruit Company will be conducted tomorrow by several members of the committee that has the promotion work in charge, and all the peach growers of Fresno county will be visited. E. W. Hyde, Frank Lanfing, D. V. Bartos and W. R. Nutting are among those who expect to make the trip, and they plan stops in Fowler, Selma, Kingsburg, Dinuba, Reedley, Parlier and Del Rey.

It is not the intention of the members of the committee to hold meetings at these places, but simply to get in touch with prominent people to get them interested in the work. The belief has been expressed that quick action can be had towards organization of the dried fruit growers in time at least to prevent short sales by packers next year.

The promotion committee of the Dried Fruit Company held its regular weekly meetings in the offices of the Raisin Exchange yesterday, and it was at this meeting that arrangements were made for the boosting tour.

Believing that as this company is for peach growers it should have peach growers at the head, H. W. Wrightson, chairman of the promotion committee, tendered his resignation, and after much discussion it was accepted. Wrightson suggested very strongly that he thought the committee ought to have for chairman someone who is interested in peach growing. Wrightson has no peach interests, and said he would prefer to resign, but would lend all aid possible to the proposition, whether he was an official or not.

E. W. Hyde of Fresno was unanimously chosen to succeed Wrightson as head of the committee.

Reports were received from several districts to the effect that a great deal of interest is being shown in the new company. M. H. Bixby said that there was a universal wish in Oleander and Easton that canvassers be sent out immediately to take subscriptions.

W. F. Mielke reported a strong sentiment in the Dinuba and Reedley districts in favor of the company, and that most of the people he had seen had doubled their subscriptions over the amount taken last spring. At the meeting at the McKinley school on Thursday night all but two of those present subscribed for stock in the Growers' Dried Fruit Company, according to a report made by E. W. Hyde.

The committee will meet again next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The singing of old hymns familiar many years ago, but some of which have been forgotten today, will be a feature of the service this morning at the First Methodist church. The service will be for the special benefit of elderly people and many will be brought to the church in carriages and autos lent for the occasion. There will be extra duets and quartets singing old hymns and congregational singing led by the choir. Mrs. Earl Towner will give an organ selection.

GOVERNOR TO RESIGN.

GIRL IS KILLED BY AUTO TRUCK

Tries to Steal Ride and Falls Under Wheel; Driver Not Blamed

While trying to steal a ride on an auto truck belonging to the Madary planing mill, Zaroki Garalcdian, a 6-year-old girl, fell under the wheels yesterday morning and sustained injuries that resulted in her death a short time later.

According to witnesses, the truck was passing along H street, near the child's home, when she tried to jump on a side fender. She slipped and fell, the rear wheel passing over her body. The witnesses attach no blame to the driver of the truck.

The driver was attracted by the screams of other children and a call for police and doctors was sent in. Dr. W. W. Savage decided that the injuries were of such a serious nature that it would be dangerous to take the child to the emergency hospital and she was rushed to the county hospital, where she died later. The accident happened about 8:30 in the morning and the child died at 11:30.

The remains are now being held at the city morgue pending an inquest on Monday.

BUGGIES COLLIDE; DRIVERS IN FIGHT

One Placed Under Arrest and Other Is Taken To Hospital

C. H. Tilly, a livery stable proprietor of Selma, was arrested, and T. Moradian, of Lone Star, was treated at the emergency hospital last night for bruises and cuts as the result of a collision between two buggies and an ensuing fight on Railroad avenue, near Malaga.

Tilly, with a companion, was driving toward Selma while Moradian was coming toward Fresno. The two buggies locked wheels, both were overturned and the occupants were thrown into the road. As soon as they had recovered, an argument ensued and Tilly says that Moradian suddenly started for him. Tilly smashed him one in the face, knocking him unconscious.

Frank S. Bagley, a merchant of Malaga, heard of the affair and telephoned to the sheriff's office. He held the men until Deputy Sheriff Thorwaldsen arrived. Moradian was quite badly bruised, but when it was found that his injuries were not serious, the officers gave Tilly his release. Dr. W. W. Savage, who attended Moradian, said he had been drinking.

MANY SCARLET FEVER CASES ARE REPORTED

Kerman and Camden Schools Closed for Purpose of Fumigation

Quite an epidemic of scarlet fever has broken out in several country districts and two county schools have been closed for fumigation. It is expected they will open up on Monday.

Dr. G. L. Long, county health officer, reports that there are five or six cases of scarlet fever at Kerman where one school was closed. The only manner by which the spread of the disease can be traced is through a minister, who came to Kerman after riding on a train with a man who had scarlet fever.

There are four cases in one family of eleven children, at Camden, twenty miles south of Fresno, and that school has been closed. Dr. Long also reports that there are two cases of scarlet fever at Selma.

Following the discussion refreshments of ice cream, cake, salted almonds, etc., were served the following visitors: Joshua Anderson of Kingsburg; Miss Edith Staley of Selma; Miss Kathryn Sharmer of Reedley; Henry Santon of Conejo, Miss Mary Howery of Kerman, Miss Elizabeth Dulin of Coalinga, Mrs. E. S. Byfield of Parlier, Miss Hattie Stratton of Fowler, Miss Frances St. George of Toll-House and Mrs. William Steines of Riverdale.

NOTABLE NEW BUSINESS BLOCKS ARE NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED IN FRESNO

Fresno's New Building Era

The Republican this morning presents a page of business buildings just completed or in course of construction. With one or two exceptions the buildings show that they are in course of construction and all are of the substantial type, representing a new building era in Fresno. Every building is of the brick steel or concrete type. That Fresno's business district is growing, in no particular direction, but in all directions is indicated from the location of these structures. While these are the chief buildings now being built, they are by no means the only ones. Others like the Elks new home while still in the prospective stage are absolutely assured. Realestatemen, architects and material men all predict a record-breaking fall for building.

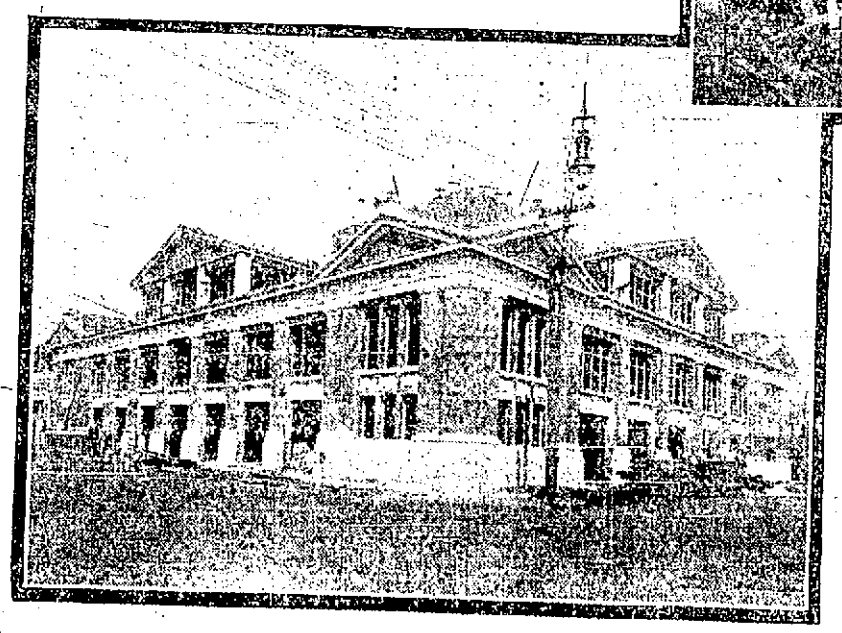

Where New Buildings Are

First column—Kinema Theater on J street north of Fresno, being built by Roeding estate; Griffith-McKenzie 10-story building Mariposa and J; Mrs. F. H. Short building, Tulare St. opposite Santa Fe.

Second Row—Rowell buildings Tulare and K; Holland & Holland building, Fresno street where the Associated-Raisin and the Commercial club have engaged quarters.

Center—Showing progress of work on the Gottschalk building, J and Kern streets, which will be one of the largest department stores of the valley.

Last row—Convention hall, which is exteriorly completed and the interior is now being finished. It will seat between 5000 and 6000 persons. T. H. Lynch building, corner of Tulare and M streets, rapidly nearing completion.

EMPIRE

Good shows have become the inevitable rule at the Empire this year and the show-going public has learned to look for the unusual at this popular vaudeville theater.

Opening this afternoon at the matinee at 2 o'clock there is an entire new bill composed of exceptionally good vaudeville acts. The first of these is Hagan & Rosa in a singing and yodeling act that is highly entertaining, for this pair of singers have excellent voices and a choice of songs that prove they know what is preferred by the majority of people.

Eggleston & Smith in character singing and violin playing also produce a brand of music that meets with the fullest appreciation of audiences everywhere they appear. The violins they use are in master hands for the talented playing of this pair is the result of years of study. And neither are their voices inferior for their singing comes up to the high expectations raised by the violin music they produce.

Billy Howard is a comedian with a line of fun that is new. People expect to see a lone comedian with something of more than usual excellence and Billy has a sketch he plays all by his lonesome. It is entitled "The Squeetunk Messenger" and consists of monologue and songs. Billy is an entertainer who has earned his right to appear on this excellent bill.

"Something New" is the billing of Kathryn & Carrol McFarland in a sketch composed of catchy songs and witty sayings. They have the added charm of originality. This duo guarantee to extract laughter from the coldest audience in the world. As Fresno audiences have the name of being highly demonstrative among performers, the McFarlands will not have the least trouble in collecting the applause and instigating the giggles that they come here for.

The Three Campbells in "Aunt Jerusha's Visit to the City" is one of the best acts of the kind that has been seen in local vaudeville. They have one of the funniest acts that can be imagined. The Campbells have been in Fresno before and they made an immense hit. Their humor is of the kind that induces paroxysms of glee.

With a splendid reel of Keystone pictures the Empire has a show that is sure to please. Two performances are given in the evening, one at 7:45 and one at 9:15. Tickets should be reserved, which may be done by phoning 942.

WAYFARING

Surely we stumble as we turn away
And choose a path outleading from the light,—
Where our own shadows veil the ground from sight,
Concealing pitfalls into which we stray,

Yet on the instant when our hearts retrace
The upward road, from darks where they have lain,—
The light illumines every step again,
And every help in the ascent we face!

BARTON

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," Eugene Walter's great play, founded on John Fox, Jr's. wholly read novel of the same name, is the attraction announced for the Barton next Tuesday evening October 28th.

The story is of the evolution of June, a little barefoot mountain girl, light-hearted and care-free, who learns to love a kind young northern man who comes prospecting in the Cumberland mountains. John Hale, the engineer meets the mountain girl, uncarned in books, but with a fine nature and seeing her ambition for "larnin'", takes her down to his cabin in "the gap," with one of the mountain women as chaperon. There June goes to school. While imbibing book knowledge, she gradually comes to love the young northern engineer more and more and thus there are many complications, for the mountain people gossip concerning the intentions of the man who is paying so much attention to the little girl not in his own class.

The curtain rises on the Lonesome Pine with June in rough homespun and hair flying, meeting first the stalwart young northerner, Hale, and his chum, and partner, Bob Merkley. Judd Tolliver, June's father, offers the hospitality of the Cove in the shape of a tin cup of moonshine so soon as he is sure the newcomers are not raiders, and they talk business.

The second act shows Hale's cabin in the gap, June transformed by a pretty blue check gingham frock and a bit of "larnin'." Out of the world of Hale's friends in the north comes a box of finery, and the little mountain girl, like all womankind, is ecstatic. Like the unspoiled, honest little girl she is, she shows Hale how much she loves him, and the young man, who hasn't succeeded in his project of realizing on the coal lands he has purchased from Judd Tolliver, and consequently has had no thought of marriage, does not enthuse over June's advances, even though he has great fondness for the girl. She takes his coolness as an indication that "I ain't good enough for him." Some of her kinsmen come to the gap with the gossip concerning her and Hale, and June sends for her "pap" to take her home.

Because of a misunderstanding about Hale's intentions toward the girl, Jethrine open up a feud, and in the third act June nurses Hale's chum, Bob Berkeley, who has been shot by a rival, Dave Tolliver. Hale comes in the capacity of an officer of the law to arrest Dave, but from the little mountain girl the two northern men get a new idea of duty and sacrifice. On the fourth and last act, the curtain falls as the sun is just coming over the trail of the Lonesome Pine. Judd Tolliver has learned that there is a better way of settling disputes than with guns and bloodshed. Hale has learned how much he needs little June, and the lovers are last seen in an embrace that tells of the wedding ceremony to come very soon.

IN "THE TR AIL OF THE LONESOME PINE"—CO MING TO BARTON

"Madame Sherry"

With the coming engagement of "Madame Sherry," at the Barton next Thursday evening, a sumptuous scenic production is promised and a brilliant performance is assured through the strength of the company headed by John L. Kearney, who will be seen as Theophilus Sherry, the millionaire connoisseur of Greek art. And leading his associates in the capable cast are included Lucille Palmer as Lulu, the actress and dancer; Clarence Lydston as Edward Sherry, nephew of Theophilus; Edna Robinson as Yvonne, the convent girl; Rosella Fielding as Catherine, the Irish house-keeper; Harry Bowen as Phillippe, the French husband of Catherine; Grace Duval as Perlita, the fiery tempered Spanish girl; Wallace McDonald as Gomez, son of the President of Venezuela and a chorus composed of pretty girls, who sing melodiously and dance with poetry of motion, contributing adornment to the stage pictures and volume to the ensemble harmonies. "Madame Sherry" would be a magnet if interpreted by a much less talented lot of principals than that already enumerated, for without musical embellishment, it would be an entertaining comedy, and with its melodious setting there are few current bids for popular patronage to equal it. This statement may not be amiss for Fresno, because everyone has heard "Every Little Movement" and the other song hits in "Madame Sherry." An impression is current among those who have not witnessed the play that its charm lies mainly, if not solely, in the score, while the fact is that the mirthful qualities of its story are no less engaging than the music. It is a cleverly told tale of a man's love for a maid, love of the romantic kind, that is strengthened instead of diminished by having to overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles to smooth running. This courtship is attended by so many misadventures that while retaining its sentimental appeal, the accessory situations are prolific of amusement for the audience. The music of "Sherry" is of that ecstatic quality that at once fascinates and enthralls, and among the masterpieces of modern composition is justly placed with the gems of the first water.

The seat sale will open tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

William Faversham

The finest acting organization seen in a Shakespearian play within the memory of the present generation and the most sumptuous and spectacular production of a classical play ever made in America—these are some of the unusual things promised local theater-goers when William Faversham appears in "Julius Caesar" at the Barton Opera House next Saturday evening, November 1st.

Usually a star of Mr. Faversham's assured popularity is quite content with a company containing actors of no established standing. Nevertheless, Mr. Faversham, in determining a year ago to enter the Shakespearian field, decided that none but the best players would ever have a place in his organization. Being his own manager it was easy for him to carry this idea into effect.

Associated with him this season in his production of "Julius Caesar" are no less than two co-stars, both artists of wide experience and established artistic worth. Both enjoy great fame and popularity, the one more particularly in England and the other in this country.

These artists are Miss Constance Collier, admittedly the best Shakespearian star in this country for upwards of twenty years. Miss Collier, who is a rare beauty as well as a distinguished artist, was for seven years the leading woman for Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in all the Shakespearian productions which that actor-manager made at his Majesty's theater, London. She was last seen in this country as Nancy Sykes in the all-star revival of "Oliver Twist" made in New York two seasons ago. Mr. MacLean has played practically every important Shakespearian rule in the dozen most frequently produced plays and possesses an experience in this line of endeavour second to no actor on the English speaking stage. The seat sale will open next Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Mail orders, when accompanied by remittance, will be accepted now.

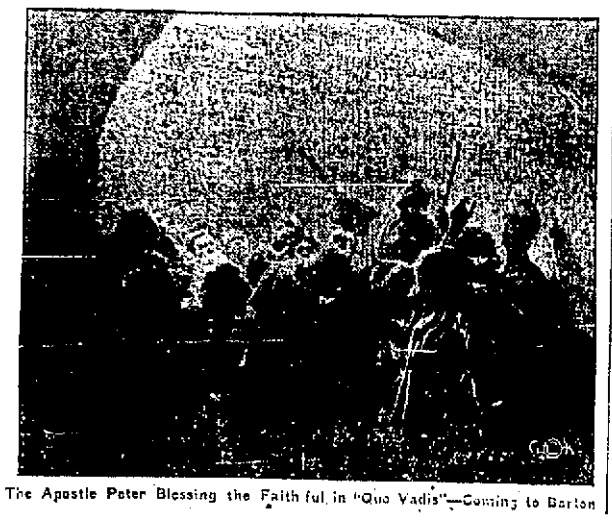

"Quo Vadis"

"Quo Vadis", George Kleine's magnificent production of the masterly Cines photo drama continues to crowd the Astor Theater in New York City and break records at Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and all the other cities where it is being presented. It is astonishing that this attraction can perform this feat at this season of the year when all the greatest stars of the dramatic world have failed. It is glowing tribute to the finest achievement the world has yet known in the field of photo drama and serves to illustrate the marvellous hold this form of entertainment has upon the public and the enormous possibilities for future development.

That tremendous soul or magnetism with which the brilliant Sienkiewicz invested his novel is retained in the photo drama reproduction and the audience is almost as much swayed by the camera effect as by the words of the novelist. The arrangement of the picture is perfect, relating the story in sequential detail, and, by the use of the slightest imagination, the auditor has no difficult in following and understanding it. The pursuit of Lygia by the young patrician Vinitius is so thoroughly human it has a strong appeal to everybody and when his earthly passion is glorified through his conversion, the young man has everybody's sympathy in his trials. It is the immense human interest of the photo drama that has as much as anything to do with its success. The spectacular features are wonderful, the burning of Rome, the pageantry of the court of Nero, the games in the Arena and the devouring of the Christians by the lions all have their thrills but to young and old it is the big love story that lingers longest in the memory.

Mr. George Kleine's production of "Quo Vadis" will be the attraction at the Barton Opera House for 3 nights commencing next Sunday, November 2, with a matinee Saturday. The sale of seats begin Thursday.

MAJESTIC THEATER

The wrestling match for the championship of the interior of the state is the big feature at the Majestic this afternoon.

It is something to boast about; and the management of the popular theater on the corner of F and Kern streets is to be congratulated on securing the championship match for the main attraction today.

The principals are John Piombo, mighty among the inhabitants of the local Italian quarter as the champion wrestler of his race in the state. Piombo has hundreds of admirers who are willing to back their favorite with money, chalk or marbles. They have entire faith in his thews and sinews and believe that he can win over any wrestler of his class in the West.

And not less certain of their man are the backers of Aram Josephs. The latter has become a wrestling star in the last year and many expect him to attain national prominence on the mat. Josephs is a stuck individual with muscles of iron and a grip that only grim Death itself can break. The coming together of these favorites is something that has been discussed for the last year, and many have been the efforts to settle the unending controversy as to which is the better man. It will be settled today in the only possible way. Already there has been a large advance sale of tickets for this event, which has stirred the sport-loving element of this city as no similar event has for years. It is currently reported that many considerable sums are wagered on the outcome, and it is not unlikely that a number of bootblack stands and fruit stores will have new proprietors if Mr. Piombo fails to put Josephs down decisively enough to gain the decision.

The wrestling match comes off in the afternoon today just after the matinee. The latter is an entirely new bill "A Night in A Mad House" a production of Mr. Matt Burtons, written from an actual occurrence witnessed by him when a visitor to the asylum at Stockton. It is a musical comedy that fairly shrieks with fun. Ed Wright, the blackface comedian, red Wiess, the Hebrew impersonator, and Charles Pollard, vocalist, have good parts, as has Mr. Burton. The chorus has new songs. Miss Berger has a good part in the new bill.

PORTOLA PICTURES THURSDAY.

Thursday night moving pictures of the big Portola celebration being held in San Francisco will be shown. This is the first time that moving pictures have ever been shown so soon after the occurrence of an event of such interest.

PRINCESS

Another week of success, vaudeville at the Princess theater will be inaugurated this afternoon when the new program for the first half of the week starts. There will be five acts and every one a feature on the new program. The Rondas Trio, cyclists sensation, will be the bill toppers of the new show. The trio consists of two women and a man whose work on the bikes has been clever enough to insure them several seasons on the best vaudeville circuits. Another act which should prove above the average is Lowe & Gerald, instrumentalists who have effective instruments and a choice selection of numbers. Duke, a college athlete who has taken to the stage, in poses plastique and an exhibition of wonderful skill and strength, will be on the program. Reed & Richards, exceptional entertainers, and Daily, black face comedian and instrumentalists. The first film of a new service, The Keystone Comedy Service, will be shown tomorrow in addition to two other pictures. This comedy, "The Fatal Taxi," will close the show. The Keystone company holds undisputed sway as the best comedy company in filmdom and their productions are being shown in all the big vaudeville theaters of the country.

Beginning next Wednesday Paul Pereira, the eminent Portugese violinist and his string sextette, will be the feature of a new program. Pereira is regarded as one of the world's best musicians and he has an international reputation, gained when he was court violinist to the King of Portugal. His companions in his present act are all clever musicians and their program is one which should appeal to the most critical music lover.

Also on the new program will be Guerin, an operatic soloist of considerable fame; Hendrickson & Lewis, two girls well known in vaudeville; Curran & Middleton with a splendid novelty act and "Rose Marie," a sketch with a cast of four talented actors. There will be another Keystone comedy on the Wednesday program.

THE IDEA FOR THIS NOVEL & PRACTICAL DESIGN WAS ORIGINATED BY "WINIFRED WORTH"

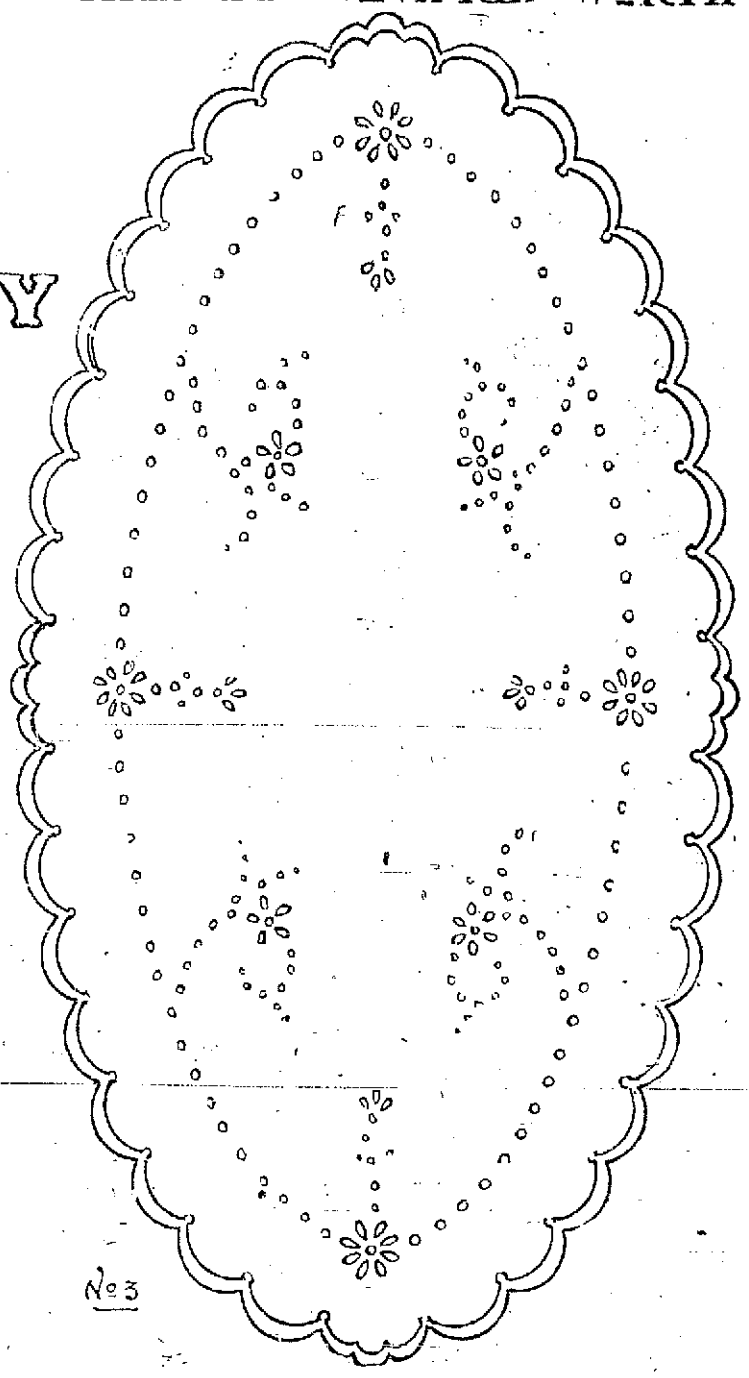

DOILY SET FOR EMBROIDERY WORK

No 1

No 2

No 3

There is nothing so dear to the heart of most women as the bits of pretty damask and embroidery they use on the dining table. Too, the richness, quality and beauty of such pieces bespeak kindly for their owner and reflect her excellent taste in such matters. That is why I have furnished a dainty doily pattern which I feel confident any woman can make.

Use a good grade of white floss. I would suggest the ball floss. It is not harsh when laundered, but presents a very smooth surface, not unlike the satin sheen in fine damask. Do not pad the edges, avoid knots on the underside, and use but a single thread to outline each dot.

But I have another conceit to offer, something so pretty that I believe you will be eager to try it. Take a strand of floss, five or six threads to each strand. Thread it on a needle that will carry the entire strand. Next make a single French knot where each tiny circle is indicated. The result is a fluffy knot. This makes a heavy border, beautiful indeed, in a complete pattern. Be sure to press such doilies upon a folded Turkish towel, embroidery face down. Sincerely yours,

Winifred Worth

QUILTS FOR BABY

BY MRS. McCUNE.

DISTINCTIVE quilts for the little tots' room are a joy to the children and a delightful task for mothers. They are very expensive if bought and less individual of course. Here are a few ideas for home-made designs that will make nursery quilts things to be remembered in after years, besides being present joys.

The flower quilt always holds great attraction for youngsters. If the nursery be papered in daisy paper, the carrying out of this idea is one of the easiest things imaginable. On a foundation of silk poplin or, best of all, unbleached muslin, arrange the daisies in a straight border, the stems growing from a plain band on the edge of the quilt, continuing around the four sides.

To make the daisies, cut an oval four inches long and one inch at its greatest width. Make a patterns of a petal three inches by about three-quarters of an inch. Cut out sixteen of these from white muslin if your background is a color. Make the center yellow in this case. If you are going to have yellow petals, the center should be a golden brown.

Arrange the petals and the center—under it—and place the stem under one edge. Sew around the edges, without turning in, using the sewing machine or quick running stitches by hand.

This is a very attractive design, the idea being capable of many different treatments in the field of flowers. Poppies, tulips, rosea, hydrodia, clematis, may be used, and one flower quilt has a huge basket, upset, from which are tumbling in confusion dear to the child's heart all kinds of blossoms, that spread out to the corners of the quilt. In this pattern all colors of material are used. The variegated effect is of continuous interest to the little owner.

FASHIONDOM

BY MRS. KINGSLEY.

THE heelless slipper of soft, pliable leather, laced halfway to the toes with narrow ribbon, is being worn by many of fashion's devotees.

One of the quaintest fashions introduced recently is the wearing of gloves with extremely long uppers. These are pushed up into manifold creases about the arm.

The flesh colored tulle has been discarded on many evening gowns, and colored tulle to match the predominating shade of the gown is now being used.

The tiny Parisiennes are using these braided hats for school wear and reserving the dainty bonnets of chiffon, silk, leghorn and crepe tissue for best.

Sleeves of coats and gowns are slashed in the same manner as the skirts. The opening is filled with a lace ruffle or is outlined with fancy buttons.

A fashion that is having a great vogue is the skirt of shepherd plaid with a separate coat of black satin, rather fancifully made and finished with the inevitable ruffles of net or shadow lace.

Coats three-quarter length, are rounded in front so as to disclose the gown beneath. They are fastened with buttons or fancy motifs.

The newest neckwear consists of a broad collar fashioned of colored chiffon in brilliant tones of red, blue or violet, to which are attached revers of lace or embroidered sheer linen.

A blouse of sheerest lemon-yellow linen has frills of narrow valenciennes lace to trim it. Another model of the same material is adorned with coarse white cluny lace. The collar is drawn together with a cravat of black moire.

Collars are constantly appearing in a new phase, and, whether of the Medico or Dutch style, have original touches which make them irresistible. The neck must be free and uncovered, and it is to be hoped that this fashion continues in favor.

Mantelets of cotton brocade and silk are displayed in a great variety of styles. Hats brilliantly colored are trimmed with plumage springing from a base of flowers. This combination of feathers and flowers is very strong this season.

Tailored waists of silk are to be very popular this season. They are made with standing collars of the material, or the neck, cut a little low in front, is finished with a round collar or an adaptation of the sailor.

CARE OF SILVERWARE

THE pressed glass articles nowadays are such good imitations of the real many women prefer to use them for every day rather than the most costly kind. In the case of breakage there is much less to regret. But the cheaper glass must be kept in good condition if it is to keep its brilliancy.

In fact it requires quite the same care given to cut glass.

Few women need to be told that glassware which has contained milk must be rinsed in cold water before being put into the hot. Hot water only makes the milk stick more closely, and unless it is rinsed off in cold water the glass will be cloudy even with careful washing in hot water.

The safer plan is to wash one piece of glass at a time, and in the case of expensive cut glass a cloth should be laid at the bottom of the dishpan as a precaution. Soapy articles are apt to slip from the hand.

Two pans of water are necessary. One will contain suds made from warm water and a good white soap, the other warm water containing a few drops of ammonia.

Most women know glassware must be wiped dry while still warm. As this means it is also wet—not being allowed to drain—plenty of towels are necessary if there are many pieces to be cleansed. Some people claim glassware is made more brilliant if it is first rinsed in warm water and then in cold, the articles being allowed to become dry of themselves. Personally, I have not found the plan a success, but it is worth trying. Others may be able to do it successfully and thereby save time and towels.

Cloths for wiping glass should be without lint. A soft linen towel is excellent, afterward polishing with an old silk handkerchief. Tissue paper also makes a good polisher. A soft brush should be finally used which will penetrate the cuttings.

EFFECTS IN COLORS

"ONE of the secrets of always being well and suitably dressed," declares a famous dressmaker, "is to understand the effects that color has upon the spirit, and it is a thing which very few women take into account. A dress that is becoming to one, in a certain mood, will be hopelessly unbecoming another time. For instance, black evening frock is always smart, but don't don one when you are depressed, or you will feel more so. You'll be a perfect signal of woe.

"A gray frock or a brown one will have much the same effect, but white has a soothing influence. A red evening gown really helps to brighten a dull occasion and green is always cheerful also. Don't put on a yellow gown unless you are feeling particularly well, and if you are in exuberant spirits a blue frock makes a delightful vision of you.

"I won't let my customers try on model frocks which I'm sure they might like ordinarily if they come to me jaded and tired, because I know that the color will not suit them at the moment. A dainty sky blue creation must not be pressed upon a woman who is worried and fatigued. She cannot see herself in it, or if she does she promptly loathes it, whereas another time when she comes in fresh and smiling she turns from softer colors and selects the tender blue."

A REST ROOM

EVERY grown brother and sister of a household is entitled not only to "a bed, a chair, a table and a candlestick," but to a space for them, no matter how small, that belongs to himself or herself—"the little room" to which he or she can go for the solace, the refreshment of solitude and silence, where the door can be fully closed to everyone else.

A home is a shelter to hide in from the provoking of all men, and nobody can be more provoking at times than one's own family, the family that we love. There are little times when one is imperatively better off without supervision, without care, without notice.

A woman said to me not long ago she was rooming perforce with her grown-up niece: "I am growing rapidly insane for lack of some place of my own, where for at least an hour of the day I might be able to sit down or stand up or brush my hair or pull the blind without Ada's speaking about it. I would be glad of a corner barred off from the world where I could kick my feet or scream, if I pleased, without its being of the slightest interest to anybody."

She didn't realize in her own nervous irritation that Ada's incessant attention came from nervous irritation also. Even if people apparently do not mind living in a continued state of gregariousness it has its own disastrous effect on them. They become excited, inconsequent, overstrained.

I once knew of a large and hospitable family who went through a long season of overcrowding with beloved and desired company, with most disastrous and health disabling results afterwards—that dragged through a whole winter.

When they tried sensibly to ferret out the exact cause of this general breakdown it was found not in the scarcity of servants at the time, which caused the brunt of all the extra work to fall upon the women of the family, but in the continued sharing of somebody's room, of not having a single place, either day or night, to go to for the rest of being alone.

PICTURES

HANG pictures flat on the wall, they are no longer tilted. Fine marine views are always in good taste for living room or library. The long side walls of a hall make an excellent gallery for engravings and etchings. Some one try having your hall a la Rembrandt—tan walls with Rembrandt prints in sepia.

Pretty passe-partout motto pictures with delicate violet or rose decoration are very appropriate for milady's boudoir.

Attractive for the country house or bedroom of city homes are those sketchily painted pictures which show any one of the various subjects with singular grace of poise, if of animal, bird or fish life, and if of flowers or butterflies, the same charm of naturalness lingers in it.

A good scheme to improve the appearance of a room is to have the pictures hung with fine covered wire the same shade as the wallpaper. This does away with the cut up appearance caused by the ordinary metal wires.

Pictures should not only be suited to the apartment where they are to be hung, but also suited to each other. It is a mistake to hang a water color next to an oil painting, as it is wrong to place a reprint beside a fine engraving.

Pictures should hang so the center will be on a level with the line of vision of the person of average height.

VERY frequently when separating the whites from the yolks of eggs the yolk becomes broken and falls into the white. Dip a cloth in warm water, wring it dry and touch the yolk with a corner of it. The yolk will adhere to the cloth and may easily be removed.

NEW people realize that the gas bill may be very perceptibly reduced by exercising care to light the gas properly. Hold the lighted match to the burner, then very slowly turn on the gas. If you turn the gas on full force and apply the match a slight explosion ensues, which is said to affect the meter—and send it forward rapidly.

A TEASPOONFUL of turpentine boiled with your white clothes will greatly aid the whitening process.

VINEGAR in which home made cucumber pickles have been preserved should not be thrown away, but used in salad dressing. The flavor is delicious and cannot be gained in any other way.

BEWARE of using celluloid combs in the hair. If they come near a gas jet they will explode in the hair.

A SIMPLE cake icing is made by using orange juice or any other fruit juice and stirring in sufficient confectioners' sugar to have it the right consistency.

A MAN who has been camping is authority for the statement that an ordinary wax candle may be used to polish tan shoes. Rub the candle on the shoes and then polish with a soft cloth.

TO save incandescent mantles, when lighting, turn on the gas for a second before applying the match; then hold the match about two inches above the top of the chimney and the mantle will last much longer.

TO have boiled potatoes fluffy, pour the water off when they are done, then let them stand in the dish they were cooked in on the back of the stove for a few minutes, giving them an occasional shake.

WHEN you are boiling rice, take care not to throw away the water. Strain it into a bowl and you will find it makes a most excellent starch. This starch may be used either hot or cold. Two or three drops of turpentine are an improvement.

A LITTLE wooden chopping bowl with a knife to fit it will do things that an ordinary knife and board will not accomplish, and will save getting out the big bowl and knife for a small piece of work, such as mincing an onion or a carrot or a bit of meat.

GREEN or red may be "set" in garments before laundering them by soaking the goods an hour or two in two gallons of salt water into which a lump of alum the size of a walnut has been dissolved. Blue can be set by soaking the material in two gallons of soft water in which a teaspoonful of copperas and a pinch of lime have been dissolved. A teaspoonful of turpentine to a gallon of water also will set blue.

WHEN using oil for frying the oily taste can be taken away by making the oil very hot, and then fry a piece of onion in it. When brown take it out.

TO remove the smell of paint from a room, leave in it overnight a pail of water with four or five sliced onions in it. Shut the room up tight, and in the morning the obnoxious paint smell will be entirely gone.

A SIMPLE and excellent way to remove dirty marks from a mackintosh is to cut a raw potato in slices and rub it well on the marks. It will also remove mildstains from dress skirts, children's coats and men's trousers.

AS a kitchen disinfectant salt has no equal. Pour the salt water from the ice cream freezer into pipes to disinfect them. Salt cleans iron, makes a good dentrifice, brightens the carpets, removes egg stains from silver spoons, will cause fruit stains to be more easily removed from linen; combined with acids will clean brass.

WHEN soot or ink falls on a carpet or rug never attempt to sweep it off at once, but cover it thickly with dry salt and let it stand for a day. Then you can brush off the salt and the stain will come with it.

NEWSPAPERS are naturally moth-proof, as moths refuse to penetrate printers' ink. Winter clothing covered with many wrappings of newspapers, and with the final wrappings sealed so that it has no opening, is mothproof; yet it is well to put camphor or moth balls inside the clothing in this newspaper case.

PARIS FALL OPENINGS

DRAWINGS BY DAGMAR RASMUSSEN FROM EXCLUSIVE PARIS PHOTOGRAPHS

PARIS [illegible] Every [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] la Paix [illegible] [illegible] places of [illegible] These [illegible] first from [illegible] and from [illegible] the proper [illegible] of the two [illegible] and never [illegible] many models [illegible] them all [illegible] Of course each [illegible] these fabrics, and [illegible] models that are [illegible] and the have the same general [illegible] general outline, even if they [illegible] materials they use and the manner of [illegible].

[illegible] there are Paquin [illegible] Worth [illegible] [illegible] Callot & Martial, [illegible] Aragon [illegible] forward any statements [illegible] they are not [illegible] will not dip their [illegible] to any [illegible] establishments, such as Zimmerman [illegible] and a half dozen others are offering to show [illegible] customers all the way from [illegible] to [illegible] frocks and if the reader thinks that one can view all of these and still keep a clear and unbiased mind and an eye that can take in details, you are a[illegible] mistaken. The salient points one can always remember and after all these are the important ones for the early part of the season, for it is a well known fact that fully half the models are changed after a few weeks of showing, especially if they have received only lukewarm receptions.

Skirts loom large on the horizon at present, not because they are the more weighty portion of the frock, but because there has been so much said of them and they have been so thoroughly discussed. The slit skirt has not disappeared and apparently it is good for another protracted run. About seven out of every dozen shown show an opening, either at the side or in the front, and this is from eight inches in length to knee high.

Every model that I have seen however, that is intended for daytime wear, and many that are fashioned for evening, have this opening filled in. Sometimes it is with plaited chiffon, sometimes with flounces of lace. Occasionally a tab of heavy embroidery will also come under the opening and will still further serve to conceal space, besides adding a dash of brilliant color to a subdued effect. When chiffon is employed to fill in these slits it is invariably of the color of the gown, and the plaitings are full and fan-shaped. If lace is used it veils a scant plaiting of mousseline de soie, or chiffon, for only thin lace is [illegible] Chantilly, Malines, and the like.

One might insist that through these supposedly transparent materials the leg would be plainly visible, but as a matter of fact it cannot be seen, and if there is an occasional outline suggested it is no more than can be seen when wearing a cloth skirt that is unlined. I cannot think that even the most carping critic would object to these new slit skirts, for they are pretty, graceful, and much easier to walk in than have been the skirts for some time past.

A number of evening dresses, notably those that are being shown by Worth and Redfern, have skirts that are more or less like those worn during this last season. They either round up slightly in front or they open at one side, but not high. The rounded ones have no trimming and they are only deep enough to show the elaborate bowed and buckled trimmings on slippers or the laced sandals that have ribbons that cross over the instep and then recross once or twice about the ankle.

The side slit evening gown made in either of these two establishments, possibly the most famous of any in Paris for gorgeous dinner and ball dresses, have generally some sort of ornament that falls in the opening, such as heavy tassels of pearls that have their beginnings in girdles about the waist, fall part way down the skirt, and are then slipped under and allowed to hang, or else there is some odd shaped ornament of gold lace or passementerie, covered with embroidery in silks or beads, these of themselves being beautiful and decorative.

I saw one such gown as this at Redfern's, the material being of satin in a marvelous shade of yellow, the skirt being trained off at one side of the back, while on the opposite side in front it was opened up for ten inches, possibly more. A double tunic fell over this plain skirt, the first being of black chiffon, the second of a brilliant blue, and each was edged with sable.

The bodice showed a foundation of satin, but only belt high, this being veiled first in black and after in blue, the latter coming against the neck and arms. The girdle was more than a belt, for it was shaped and came about the hips, but not above the waist line. It was made of some sort of a wonderful golden gauze that was patterned over in a deeper, darker gold, and this pattern was outlined in brilliants. The knotting of this girdle took place at the left side, and the two ends, after falling below the tunics, were then drawn under the skirt and appeared later in the slit at the side. Here they were again knotted, or rather tied in a soft bow, and this really entirely filled this narrow opening.

Every evening dress that I have seen has carried on the tradition of flimsiness that has been characteristic of them for several seasons. Not a single petticoat is worn with them, and really they do not need these garments, for the skirts are always made of satin, panne velvet, or some fabric of equal weight. The bottoms of the skirts are mostly plain, and all are faced up on the under side with velvet or cloth, this, of course, making them more clinging. More trains are seen, but none is unduly long.

In the same ratio that trains have become more numerous, corsages have become more abbreviated, that is to say that they are much more décolleté than last year. In many the back is pointed down to within an inch of the waist line, and there is no attempt to fill these points in with lace or tulle. The front of the bodice of many evening gowns is frequently cut square across, or if not they are made in surplice style. As only thin materials are used for evening bodices, this especial fashion is vastly becoming and much softer than they have been heretofore.

A lot of [illegible] collars are to be worn, both for evening and afternoon as well. These are not altogether the old fashioned idea of such a collar, those formerly worn being large and standing well up in the back. The present style of Medici is a rather small affair, which stands up only an inch or two and is curved away from the throat or shoulders, as the case may be. In evening gowns these collars are made of lace and are quite transparent, the edges being finely wired. For afternoon frocks the collar may be made of anything, from velvet to lace, and it frequently is made of the former and matches the gown. With these latter a somewhat novel idea is to cover the outside of the collar with some bright colored brocade or flowered silk and allow the dark velvet or silk to form the frame for the face. It is rather pretty and a new touch.

Now as to overskirts. Apparently they are to be worn, for more are being shown than ever and of these the greater number are wired to stand away from the skirts. A good many of them are bell shaped and these have been christened the "Minaret," after a play which was produced here late last season. This particular stage piece was dressed by Poiret and at the time it was made the subject of much criticism and ridicule, for the gowns were all of Egyptian character, garish in coloring and supposedly unbecoming. But women are never to be depended upon, for suddenly, without rhyme or reason, the Minaret overskirt has become the rage.

It is being made of any sort of material, frequently of velvet or cloth and is often bordered with bands of fur. These are not much featherboned, but enough, however, to ripple out the fur. Frequently there are two, sometimes three, of these fur trimmed overskirts, these being only in case the fabric of which they are made is thin. Now that we are accustomed to them they look pretty and, of course, they are new and smart. Even when worn with coats they keep a certain line, for with these the coat must be short.

For ordinary street wear there seems to be a tendency [illegible] some [illegible] [illegible] length, trimmed up with outside pockets and big buttons. Worth has an extremely good model of this style, which suggests a slightly [illegible] waist, and a skirt that ripples about the [illegible] of plain cloth and is intended to be worn with huge plaid skirts, or with those of fancy stripes.

Redfern is also showing quite a long street coat; at least the back is of knee length, the front being somewhat shorter. There is a seam that goes round the waist and the skirt portion of the coat has fullness adjusted into this seam about the hips and a box plait in the back. This plait falls in a decided point in the back and it and the lower edge of the coat are both wired slightly. Otherwise it is a plain garment intended, like the other model, to be worn with odd skirts, and Redfern is showing it in rather a bright shade of blue with a skirt of blue and black stripes on a gunmetal gray background.

I notice that nearly street costumes have skirts that are a little fuller than have been worn during the summer and many of them have plaited fans let into the [illegible] or a [illegible] sort of tab plaited, which is inserted under a seam. Nearly all the new skirts have a little fullness at the top just across the back. This is drawn into a space perhaps six or seven inches long, and there is frequently a [illegible] or stitched belt, finished with a small buckle that apparently holds this fullness in place.

[illegible] as it seems some of the perfectly plain tailored costumes have skirts that are opened and filled in with chiffon plaitings. Bechoff-David has a number of these made of colored cloths or of velour [illegible]. A [illegible] in brick dust red had the skirt front [illegible] the chiffon exactly matching [illegible] it was plain, with just the fullness [illegible]. The coat also was plain, with a [illegible] down the back and a single breasted [illegible] closely. There was a rather [illegible] colored to match which was placed low on the coat, almost about the hips, and in the back this was slipped under the panel.

While there are many costumes made of bright colors being shown, I think these, except for extra suits, will not be so much worn, but that darker shades will replace them. There has been such a riot of color for so long a time that all the rich, dark colors come now as a welcome relief. Every one predicts that brown will be the color of all for the winter and this in the shades that tinge on the red rather than yellow. A forecast of the probable popularity of this color was seen during the last days of the racing season at Deauville, these particular days being almost historic as always indicating any changes in fashions. This year the prevalence of brown was much commented upon, for more gowns and hats of this shade were seen than any other one color except white. In fact, the smartest white dresses were trimmed or combined with brown instead of black, all the soft maroon shades of chiffon being especially noticeable.

Of brown hats, too, there were thousands being worn, the majority being of velvet, with paradise feathers of the same shade, and there were some lovely tulle hats fashioned of a dark shade of brown, which were being trimmed with white feathers, or if they were unusually small in size, of smart little white wings, which were perched off at an angle at one side.

Closely allied to browns are the shades of taupe, and this is also going to be one of the winter shades. A number of the dressmakers are using it combined with white, and as the fur of the same name is to be one of the fashionable furs of the winter it will be much in evidence for smart street frocks and dressy afternoon costumes.

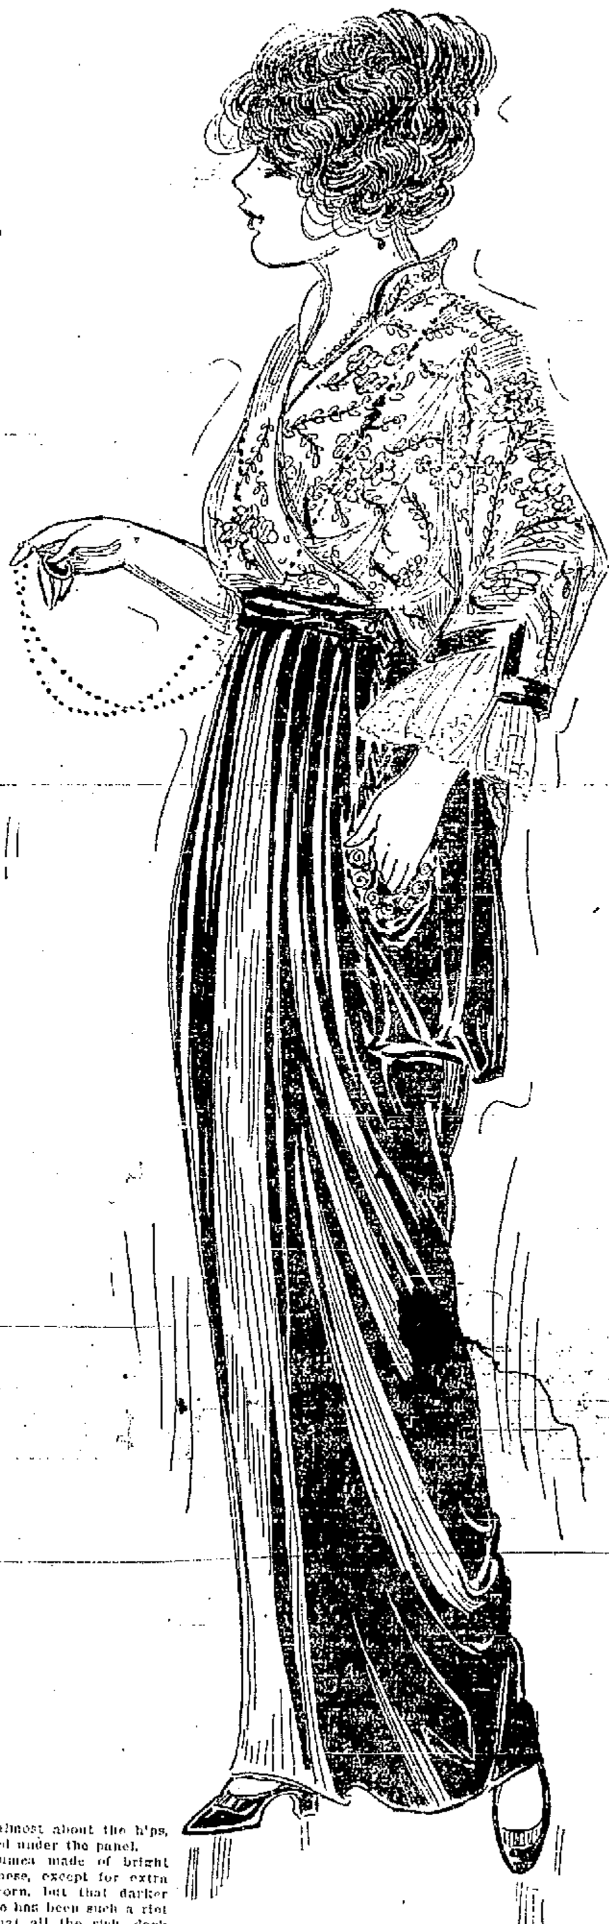

Gown for afternoon wear, of a lovely shade of brown panne velvet. The skirt is narrow and is a little draped on either side, the front being quite plain, while the back has some gathers put into the waistband. The overskirt is of the same velvet, and this is very new in design. It is apparently made of a straight length of material, which is folded into the waist. The lower edge is composed of four deep tucks, the first a quarter of a yard below the waist line. Each tuck is very slightly wired, only enough to keep the edges out. The bodice is quite full and somewhat baggy above the belt. At the top all the fullness is brought into the rounded neck under a narrow band of gold and brown openwork passementerie. The sleeves come from beneath the large raw sizes, terminating above the wrists in frill ends. Model from Martial and Armand.

Hat in round turban shape, with a hat and crown, it being made of brown velvet. At the left side there is an opening, the velvet forming two stiffened out donkey ear bows. It is extremely smart. Model from Corlier.

Gown for dinner, showing a novel combination of tunics and overskirts. The skirt is of ivory colored satin, narrow, but with a little fullness brought into the front. It terminates in a train of moderate length, which is pointed. There is a black satin overdress, which falls in the back in one long sash end, this being draped up so that it is double. Over the satin is a tunic of black mousseline, the edge of which is bordered with fine lace, the pattern being beaded with small pearls. On the bodice the black tunic extends to just above the line of the bust. Over this black one hangs a second and much shorter tunic of the pearled lace. This is very narrow over the shoulders and is sleeveless. It is not caught in by a regular belt, but by a small cording, and in front there is a handsome ornament of brilliants and pearls. The sleeves of the gown are of lace, which is not pearled, and these are veiled in one thickness of black mousseline. Model from Zimmerman.

Gown of very dull dark blue panne velvet. The skirt has the new cut, being nearly straight, with most of the fullness brought into the front. It is seamed down the front and is left open for almost half a yard from its lower edge. A chiffon plaiting of the same shade as the velvet fills in this opening, but this is visible only when walking. In the back the skirt has a sort of overskirt, which is somewhat short and is draped up under. On the left side hangs a small pocket, which is elaborately embroidered in a floral design. The bodice of the gown is of printed velvet, the background being of a bluish gray shade and the printing done in very gay colors. It is simply formed, having a surplice front and sleeves that are kimono shaped. These last, however, are fastened up on the under side, just below the arm size, and this takes away from the former loose, baggy appearance. The sleeve itself is oddly cut, being very wide at the elbow, and from there falling in a straight tab. The collar is a modified Medici, being wired at the top and curving slightly outward. This is lined in white. The sleeves have white tulle plaitings coming from beneath them. Model from Zimmerman.

How It Was Built By Civilian Engineers—A Complete Story of the Construction of the Pedro Miguel and Miraflores Locks.

CHAT part of the Panama Canal known as the Pacific Division begins at Pedro Miguel and extends to the deep waters of the Pacific Ocean, embracing the locks at Pedro Miguel and Miraflores. A ship on leaving Culebra Cut will enter the lock at Pedro Miguel and begin its descent to the Pacific. The drop here is a little more than thirty feet. The ship will then enter a small lake, the elevation of which is about fifty-four feet above the sea level, and will go under its own steam for about one and one-half miles to Miraflores. At this point it will pass through the two locks and be lowered to the sea level passing out into the Pacific through a channel about eight and one-half miles in length with a bottom width of five hundred feet. The entire trip from the Atlantic is expected to consume from ten to twelve hours, three of which will be spent in passing through the six locks. While the work of the Pacific Division has been done under the direction of Col. Goethals, the actual construction is being carried out by civilian engineers. In May, 1907, Mr. S. B. Williamson, a well-known civil engineer who had at one time been in the employ of the United States Government, was called to Panama by Col. Goethals and given a position as division engineer of locks and dams.

Civil Engineer Williamson Takes Charge of Pacific Division.

When the reorganization took place in 1908, Mr. Williamson was made division engineer of the Pacific Division—a position which he held until December, 1912, when he resigned. Mr. H. O. Cole, his assistant, another civilian, then took charge and this section of the work is being completed under his direction. Both Pedro Miguel and Miraflores date from the French canal days and bear respectively the names of Saint Peter Michael and Miraflores, a distinguished Spanish soldier. At Pedro Miguel the French had two small dredges in operation and had already made emplacements for their locks, while at Miraflores they had a small settlement and this has been continued by the Americans as a small labor camp. This section of the Canal, while less spectacular than either of the other two sections, the task of building it was none the less formidable for the lock construction involved the placing of 2,400,000 cubic yards of concrete while the dry excavations amounted to 6,000,000 yards.

On the Pacific side, the first dam encountered is at Pedro Miguel and serves to hold the waters of Gatun Lake at its southern end of the cut. It is 1,400 feet long and about forty feet wide at the top. The maximum height of the water against this dam will be forty feet. The plan of construction is much the same as at Gatun except that the Pedro Miguel dam is much smaller. The lock construction is unlike that at Gatun as there the three locks form a continuous wall while those of Pedro Miguel and Miraflores are divided by an artificial lake. This body of water is formed by the dams connecting the walls of the Miraflores locks with high ground on either side. The dam to the westward is formed of earth and is about 2,700 feet long, having its crest about fifteen feet above water in Miraflores lake. The east dam will be of concrete containing 75,000 cubic yards, is about 500 feet long and forms a spillway for the Miraflores lake with crest gates similar to those of the Gatun spillway, and capable of discharging 7,500 cubic feet of water per second. The Cocoli River is the principal feeder of this lake.

Highest Gates and Walls of the Canal.

The highest gates and the highest lock walls are at Miraflores, and these locks are the only ones having no intermediate gates. Furthermore the area of the upper locks is greater than the lower, because of the omission of the intermediate gates in the latter. The combined result is that the volume of each lower lock is less than that of the upper locks when the tide is higher than about two feet below meantide, and the lock is incapable of receiving the full contents of an entire upper lock without causing an overflow of the walls and gates. A portion of the water from the upper lock must be wasted through the culverts or cross emptied into the twin lock. To diminish this waste as far as possible, the volume of the lower locks has been enlarged by increasing the height of the walls and gates to eighty-two feet, which is the maximum consistent with economy and safety in construction.

The rock used in the building of the Pacific locks was obtained at a quarry opened in Ancon hill, near the Pacific entrance of the Canal, and the sand used in concrete mixing was brought from Chame, about twenty-three miles up the coast from Panama. The expense of obtaining this material for the Pacific division was much less than that of the Atlantic section. The Pacific section, however, had one disadvantage, the fact that the Pedro Miguel and Miraflores locks were separated—making them practically two distinct undertakings. There was a vast amount of excavation before a proper foundation was secured for the locks, especially at Miraflores, where nearly two and one-quarter million cubic yards of earth had to be removed. Added to this several bad slides occurred, which greatly retarded the work.

The first concrete for the Pedro Miguel locks was laid in September, 1909, seven days after the beginning of the Gatun locks. The Miraflores locks were the last ones to be constructed as the work there did not commence until February, 1910. The construction was practically the same as that at Gatun, except for the use of the huge sand cranes—the invention of Engineer Williamson. These great cranes stretch their giant arms across the locks and ideal the steam shovels of the cut in the accuracy of their work, for the sand and concrete always lands exactly where it is needed.

Dredge Corozal Arrives.

At the Pacific entrance the French had dredged a narrow channel from deep water, three miles inland, and it was used by ships going to the Balboa docks. This, however, was merely a drop in the bucket and a large amount of dredging was required in the Pacific channels. For a time several of the old French dredges were used, but their work seemed like emptying a rain water barrel with a tea spoon, so the Canal Commission set about to secure a real dredge.

This dredge bears the name of Corozal, and came from Scotland, making the trip under her own steam from the Builder's yard to Balboa, 12,064 miles in 26 days. She is said to be the largest sand and mud lifter in the world and has been at work since April, 1912. The length of the craft is 255 feet with a molded breadth of forty-five feet. She is capable of lifting 1,200 cubic yards per hour from a depth of fifty feet and of discharging the spoil direct into the hoppers or barges moored alongside. Two sets of thirty-nine buckets are provided; one set with a capacity of fifty-four cubic feet per bucket, is used in soft material, and the other with a capacity of thirty-four cubic feet per bucket, is intended for digging rock. The speed of dredging is between fourteen and fifteen buckets per minute. The dredge has been working steadily day and night ever since her arrival. The quarters of the workmen are so comfortable that the men who man the dredge are loath to come ashore. The dredge carries her own refrigerator plant for the use of the workmen who live on board.

Two methods are employed to break the rock for dredging—drilling under water with a drill scow and breaking below water with a Lobnitz rock breaker; the former method requires the use of explosions. The big dull barge Teredo has been operated in the Pacific channel for about eighteen months, and will continue its work for several months longer.

The new docks are so far completed, and the channel dredged to such a depth, that any ship under six hundred feet in length may tie up at the splendid reinforced concrete docks of the Panama railroad. "This Canal isn't going to be like expositions," said one of the railroad men. "It will be absolutely complete when it opens for business," and those of us who have been fortunate enough to visit the Canal from year to year can readily understand this, for during the last year everything has been rushed to completion.

Why Fortification of the Canal Is Necessary.

Break-waters at the Pacific have been completed and the huge trestle connecting the islands at the entrance of the channel is well on the way. Already the great guns which are to be set up on Naos Island have been shipped to the isthmus. The giant cannon will guard the Pacific end of the Canal and establish complete control over the Canal in time of war, should this nation ever again have the misfortune to engage in a conflict with another country, for in time of war it is quite as important as the Canal be closed to the fleet of an enemy as it is for the Canal to be opened to our own fleet, especially if that enemy should have ships on both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

Like the other two divisions, that of the Pacific is nearly complete. On August 31, the dyke, which prevented the water from entering the steam shovel cut, was blown up and the water poured into the 5,000-foot channel between Miraflores and the Pacific. It required 37,000 pounds of explosives to destroy the dyke. The dredge, Marmot, was then set at work and by November 1, of this year, it is expected that large ships will be able to traverse the Pacific end of the Canal a distance of eight and one-half miles up to Miraflores locks. The launch, Birdena, made the trip from the dyke to the locks on September 2, the first vessel to pass through this section of the Canal under its own steam.

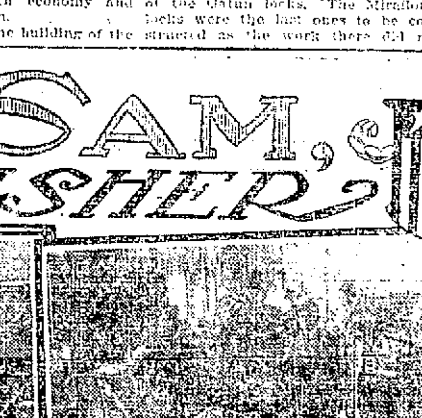

The work of the civilian engineers has been little short of marvelous. Beginning their labors as they did at a much later period than either of the other two divisions they have steadily pushed ahead, overcoming difficulties which would have frightened off men of almost any other nationality, they are nearing the end of their trials. So here's to Williamson and Cole, the builders of the Pacific division of Uncle Sam's biggest undertaking.

Wrapping the Miscellaneous Envelope Mail

UNCLE SAM is now one of the greatest publishers in the world. Even he did not fully realize what an extensive publisher he was until a short time ago, when, under the new law drawn upon the recommendation of the Cleveland Economy and Efficiency Commission, all mailing and distributing of public documents was taken from the hundred or more departments, bureaus, commissions, services and offices and concentrated in the office of the Superintendent of Documents, one of the bureaus of the Government Printing Office.

The Superintendent of Public Documents has had charge of the work since the law was passed, and after several months' experience in distributing the Government Printing Office publications he is willing and anxious to testify that Uncle Sam is the greatest publisher on earth. There is considerable foundation for the statement, for the new central mailing office is now sending out over a million copies of publications each week.

Immense Mailing List.

Over a thousand separate mailing lists must be kept in the file-room for the various publications. There are acres of bins and shelves containing the back number files, on which there is always a steady demand. In fact, the entire government in all its branches is blocked out in this great stockroom, as if on a relief map—divisions of the room for departments, sections for bureaus, stacks for divisions and the bins or pigeon-holes filled with their hundred or two hundred copies of single publications. In this stockroom is employed a force of clerks to the average number of one hundred and twenty-five. The force is sometimes as large as one hundred and fifty, while at other times it drops down to ninety. The employees are assisted in their work by a battery of mechanical addressing machines, envelope-licking machines and automatic mail sacking devices. All this is a part of the activity created by the new law.

From his fifteen-million-dollar publishing plant, the Government Printing office, Uncle Sam issues with other things three daily newspapers, five weeklies and half a dozen monthlies, as well as a monthly illustrated magazine, the Pan-American Union.

The regular publications by no means constitute the bulk of Uncle Sam's publishing business. The major portion of it is in the occasional publications, the greater number of scientific, economic and congressional documents that are daily turned in for printing. There are over a thousand of these, and they are all well enough known over the country to have regular mailing lists. There is scarcely an office in the government which in the course of a year fails to turn out at least one publication of some sort. The Department of Agriculture makes the greatest use of printer's ink, its widely varied publications alone circulating thirty-two million copies annually. The farmer's bulletins are probably the most widely known of all the documents coming from the great printing office in Washington. They are published "every once in a while," and their circulation varies even more than their periodicity. Some of restricted interest will run only a few thousand, and other popular editions will run to over a million copies. The most popular document ever published at the Government Printing Office was the famous "Uncle Sam's Cook Book," while all poultry bulletins are in great demand at all seasons of the year.

Fine Bookwork.

But the government takes up other work beside the printing of occasional leaflets and paper-bound pamphlets, and there are more pretentious volumes from the bindery. Some of these, such as certain publications issued by the Smithsonian Institution, are beautiful examples of bookwork, illustrated with photogravures and lithographs and often bound in rich leathers. The Census Bureau furnishes much work for the bindery department, its characteristic navy-blue bindings being familiar all over the country. Every bureau and every department issues an annual report which is given a permanent binding, and all of these documents go to the Superintendent of Documents for distribution.

In order to see how this great volume of work is systematized one can suppose that the Department of Agriculture has prepared a new farmer's bulletin on some popular subject. The editor of the department sends the "copy" to the Government Printing Office, together with a printing requisition for an edition of a certain size. A slip of notification is also sent to the Superintendent of Documents, and on this slip is written a series of key numbers, which direct him as to the preparing of the mailing list for the bulletin. Each mailing list has its own key, which number is printed on each name stencil. Should it happen to be a document for which there is no mailing list, it would be put in stock to await the miscellaneous demand for it. Presently, from the printing office comes the "jacket" for the work, a large form page containing complete printing instructions, style of type, composition, paper, binding, etc., as well as the key numbers showing the distribution. The Superintendent of Documents, being a store-keeper who occasionally advertises his wares, must ever have an eye for business, and if from a perusal of the "jacket" the forthcoming document looks salable, he may order an additional quantity for the government book store, of which he has complete charge. This, in the case of a farmer's bulletin, is called "Ordering the Department of Agriculture Jacket."

Detail of Management.

Presently the first of the copies of the farmer's bulletins comes to the shipping room. Meanwhile the office system has poured a card in the [illegible] [illegible] when they arrive from the [illegible] [illegible] located the [illegible] key numbers of a [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] would have stored the complete edition in the stockroom. As it is [illegible] [illegible] made for mailing and [illegible] [illegible] of the bulletin, together with the key number, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the mailing [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] will [illegible] cheapest in [illegible] pictures that might be [illegible] by Cold-[illegible] [illegible] it will be mailed flat in envelopes. The mailing lists are made up according to [illegible] [illegible] are in one [illegible] [illegible] in another, fruit [illegible] [illegible] then, etc., from these classifications the list has been made [illegible] bulletin, which is sent [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] might have a possible [illegible]. With the key numbers the [illegible] of the mailing section [illegible] [illegible] stencils and drawn all the [illegible] boxes required. The stencils are made of waxed paper [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] paste-board frames, and the stencilling is done on ordinary typewriters equipped [illegible] [illegible] first perforate [illegible] [illegible] the ink of the addressing [illegible] through the [illegible] printing on the wrapper.

Addressing Machines.

[illegible] addressing machines are kept busy turning out wrappers and envelopes, and these are being added to as the work becomes more and more systematized. The stencils in the machines feed down from a column, like paper drinking cups in vending machines, and the wrapper feeds from a roll, the machine cutting the proper length wrapper as it prints it. Each machine is capable of addressing thirty thousand wrappers per day. All of the wrapping is still done by hand, as satisfactory wrapping machines have not been found to do the work. In some instances, as many as fifty girls are employed to wrap a single edition. The girls throw the wrapped and sealed copies into a shallow trough which runs an endless belt, the latter carrying the documents into mail sacks. The wrappers are arranged by cities and states, so that when the mail bag is full it need only be sealed and addressed, putting no work upon the railway mail clerks.

In the room with the wrapping girls and the addressing machines are the automatic envelope sealers. This is a simple machine, in which the envelopes slide along a thin metal plate, where they are touched by a moistened roller. At a break in the plate the flaps slide through to the upper side and are sealed to the envelopes by the double pressure of two steel rollers. They are then dropped directly into a small sack, which is attached to the machine. This machine will seal about one hundred and fifty envelopes per minute.

The Congressional Record.

One of the impressive spectacles of the Government Printing Office is the printing and mailing of the daily Congressional Record. Even experienced publishers marvel at the manner in which the printing and mailing is done. The Record is a publication which sometimes for weeks will average daily one hundred and thirty pages of solid printed matter, a staggering number of words, much larger than is printed in any daily newspaper or weekly or monthly magazine. The Congressional Record is often printed in feverish haste in the small hours of the morning, yet it is remarkably free from errors, either of English, composition or of make-up. The stutterings of the linotype never get into the Record, the proper words are capitalized, or left uncapitalized, and the spelling is always uniform. Although written, printed and delivered in twelve hours, it compares very favorably in accuracy with the best specimens of bookwork.

The first Record ever issued from the Government Printing Office was that of June 5, 1909. It contained one hundred and ninety-two pages. That was a day before the government had adopted the linotype machines, and all the type was set by hand. It took two hundred and sixty-five printers three [illegible] and one hundred and fifty [illegible] the remainder of the time to do the work. But the edition was [illegible] mailed at eight in the morning [illegible] is today exhibited as a model of accurate printing.

Little by little as news concerning what is a going on in the world has reached Bingville ushually via a city newspaper which has been sent to the Bingville P. O. by mistake and whitch Eph Higgins, our accommodating P. M., has opend & read and whitch has then been passed on from one to another until it was wore out, as you might say—we repeat, that little by little the wimmen folks of Bingville sinst they have lernt that wimmen folks in farrin parts of this country are fighting for the right to vote, have the awdacitty to think that they, too, should be gave the sacred right of sufferage.

Shall the wimmen of Bingville ever vote?

"NEVER!" we reply.

And when we say "Never!" so emfattick we persoomwe voice the opynyun of all stalwart men in Bingville. What right has a woman got monkeying with the sacred right of sufferage? She ain't got no right, we reply.

A woman's place is in the home doing the cleaning, washing, cooking, ironing, mending, et cettery, too numerous to menshion. If the wimmen folks of Bingville should go in for politicks our homes would be a delooshion and a snare. Politicks is bad enuff as it is, and what would it be, we ask, if wimmen was running politicks? Where would they run them to? They'd run them into the ground, that's where.

Why, some of the votes of men in Bingville is ruled by wimmen as it is! There's Hod Slocomb, for instants—Hod has to vote the way his wife tells him to, and there is other husbands who haft to do the same, but we won't humilyate them by menshioning their names in this conneckshion. We wouldn't menshion Hods name, either, if it wassent that he stopped his Bugle last wk. owing us $11 on back subscripshion, which we never expect to get.

If you are a husband it is your dooty to show your wife that her place is at home instid of mixing up in politicks and wanting to vote which is absurd and ridicklus in the extream.

Thats What Hod Peters & Jim Watson Met Up With in Their Search for Honey---Turrible Experients for Jim Who Is Still Laid Up!---Hod Says He'll Git That Honey Yit or Bust!

Last Saturday forenoon while Hod Peters was settin out on his back steps in the sunshine smokin and wishin to goodness that he had his corn all husked up, along come a bee, and after buzzin around Hod's head for a minnit until Hod says: "Git outen here, dodgast ye er Ile swat the packen outen ye!" went & lit on a appel butter crock, and after fillin itself up with the sugar on the crock riz up above the house, buzzed around a minnit until it got its bearings and then sailed off straight west over the barn.

"By grachions, that bee's makin for a bee tree!" exclaims Hod, and without takin time to put on his hat, Hod jumpd to his feet, clim over the fence and follerd the bee as hard as he could go. The air was sort of cool up where the bee was flyin and it sagged along kind of slow, which enabled Hod to keep his eye on it.

When Hod come to the next fence he jumpt it at a bound and lit out acrost Sim Wilkins plowed ground which Sim had jest sowed to wheat. Sim happened to see Hod running acrost the field and hollered at him. "Git offen my sowed ground, you ding-busted fool!" but Hod hollered back, "Don't detain me—Ime in a turrible hurry!" Sim was mad, so he sicked "Towser," his old bulldog, on Hod. Towser can't run very fast, but he done the best he could and gained on Hod like everythink.

When Hod seen that Towser was after him and ketchin up fast, he was a good eal sweat up and follerd the bee faster than ever. Hod said afterwards he was purty bizzy keepin one eye on the bee and tother on Towser, and it like to of sprained his eyesight.

When Towser come to the stone fence he couldn't jump it like Hod done, so Towser run along the fence to find a place to git through and come acrost the woodchuck hole and started to try to dig the woodchuck outen the hole and forgot all about Hod.

Well, Hod finally follerd the bee into Plutarch Stone's woods until he seen it light on a white oak tree and crawl into a hole in a limb about 30 feet from the ground.

Then Hod hurried back to Bingville and happend to meet Jim Watson at the edge of town. Hod told Jim he had found a bee tree and if he, Jim, would chop down the tree, doing all the labor hisself, they would go havvers on the honey inside the tree. This was agreeable to Jim, who went home after his axe, and the two returned to the bee tree and Jim begin to chop down the tree Hod pointed out, while Hod set back in the shade and smoked.

Bye and bye the tree fell with a dull, sickening thud, but there diddent seem to be no bees in it, and then Hod suddintly discuvverd that he had made a awful mistake and that Jim had went and chopped down the wrong tree.

This almost made Jim sick to his stummick, and he called Hod names that Hod wouldn't of took from no living man if he haddent been in partnership with him on the proceeds of the honey, as you might say.

Hod pointed out another tree to Jim, whitch he said was shurely the right tree that had the bees in, but Jim wassent willing to take Hod's word for it without first going up the tree to ascertain the truth for hisself, so he removed his shoes and stockings and shinned up the tree like a squirl, until fust thing he knowd he was right over the hole the bees was in and they poured outen that hole like fury and begin to sting Jim somethink awful.

"Help! Help!" hollers Jim in agony, hangin onto the tree like grim deth.

"How can I let go my holts on the tree to light my pipe?" groans Jim. "If I do Ile be smasht to my doom—besides I ain't got enny matches ennyhow!"

"Come down part way and Ile hand you a match!" hollers Hod.

This made Jim so mad that he let go one hand to shake his fist at Hod and come tumblin down outen the tree bumpin into the limbs as he fell and struck the ground so hard he bounced three feet into the air. Strange as it may seem, Jim wassent fatally injured. Jim jumpt to his feet and started to run with the bees still follering him. Hod was stung a few times in the retreat, but not near so bad as Jim.

The two run haff a mile before they could git shet of the bees and by this time Jim's eyes was sweld shet with bee stings to sich a extent that he couldn't see where he was going, and so Hod had to take him by the hand and lead him back to Bingville, where they arrived after a long, tireless journey.

Jim's wife put flaxseed poultices on Jim's fase and hands and helpd him to bed.

Hod says that he's a going to wait until it gits cold and then go out there some day and cut down that tree and git all the honey in it when the bees is so cold and numb that they can't sting.

Plutarch Stone says if he sees Hod cutting down enny bee trees or enny other kind of trees on his land he'll have the law on him for trespass. Hod says he don't calkilate Plutarch will see him.

A Awful Mixup

Slim Wiggins sold a pig last week to Ab Smith of Bingville (considerashion unknowd) and one of the condishions of the sale was that Slim was to deliver the pig on the hoof to Ab in Bingville.

Well, on Tuesday morning last, brite & early, Slim started to drive the pig into Bingville. The pig was a going along as nise as you please and Slim had almost got to the edge of town when he met Ranse Hillyer comin drivin a buckboard, with Ranse's dog "Peter" runnin along in front.

Soon as Peter seen the pig he made a dash for it, being as Ranse's dog is nothin but a pup and very full of mischief. When the pig seen the dog comin it turned tail and started back. Slim, he jumpd in front of the pig to head it off, but the pig jest shut its eyes and hit Slim about knee-high. Slim went into the air with a yell and fell in the road with vilence enuff to bust him in two.

Soon as Slim could git up he kindly invited Ranse to step outen the buckboard and get a blamed good thrashin for havin sich a ornery dog as that. Ranse, he excepted the invitashion and within five minnits he had licked Slim until the latter hollerd "Enuff!" as loud as he could holler.

Then Slim walked back home, where he found the pig in the barnyard. Slim says if Ab Smith wants that pig he'll haft to come after it hisself, being as he won't undertake to drive the animile to Bingville agin if it lives to be 200 years old.

Surprise for Clem

Lem Brown, our expert carpenter, is putting in some back steps for Clem Wilkins. Well tother morning about 3 a. m. Clem got up before daylight as usual and started out to the barn to do the chores forgetting that there wassent enny steps at the back door and as a result Clem opend the door, and stepped out into spase as you might say falling heels over head into a box of mortar which he had mixed up to repair the chimbley with.

For a minnit Clem was so mussed up in his mind that he couldn't make out where he was or what had happened to him. Besides he couldn't see nothink being as his eyes was full of mortar.

Clem calkilates if it haddent been for the soft mortar he would of dashd his brains outen his head if he has enny.

BILDINGS MOOVED!

This is to a nounce that I have went into the bilding mooving bizness. I persoom I am the 1st bilding moover who has ever set up shop in Bingville.

If you happen to have any bildings on your land that you would rather would be elsewhere than where they now be, confer with me about it and we will talk matters over. I will take a squint at the size of the bilding and ascertain if possible where you desire to have it moved to, then I will make you a price on the job whitch will be satisfacktory to me and I hope will be to you.

Some times a person wants a henhouse mooved, or a sheepshed or a wood shed. I don't care what it is, Ile moove it or bust.

Why tear down a bilding and bild it agin when you can have me move it without tearing it down a tall? I may bend it a leetle mite out of plum, but I won't break it for you. Ile garryntee that.

I mooved a buggyshed for Cy Hoskins from where it was to the middle of Snake Crick, but that wassen't my fault—one of the skids sliped and the bilding rolled end over end down the bank and into the crick.

Think this over when you come to moove your bildings. Estimates furnished with great cheer.

THE SACRAMENTO VALLEY
Is developing faster than any other part of California. Old ranches that have been producing big crops for years are being cut up. We have just placed the Senator Fair ranch on the market. It is rich river bottom land, soil 35 feet deep, all silt. It needs no leveling, checking, ditching or developing of water, as it is now as level as a floor and it sub-irrigates. This year, the dryest in forty years, banner crops of grain, alfalfa, sugar beets and beans were raised. Beans now being threshed run from 25 to 37 bags per acre, price now $5.30. The same land grew crop of grain hay, making for the season from $125 to $200 per acre. River, rail and electric transportation to the best markets in the state. Wonderful development in progress, so get in line and buy now. Low prices, easy terms, fair treatment. Excursions daily. Come in and see us.

NORTHERN COUNTIES REAL ESTATE

PAYS FARMERS $15,000 A MONTH
Two creameries are paying Los Molinos dairymen $15,000 a month. A year ago the amount was only $4,000 a month. That shows how Los Molinos, the cream of the Sacramento valley, is growing. But such growth would not be possible if the people did not have help. Our company has provided these people money to buy 2,000 dairy cows, which were taken without any cash payment and are being paid for out of half the cream receipts. We will supply you all the cows you want.
An acre of good alfalfa land here will support a cow and as many hogs and fowls as you need to consume your skim milk. It is a poor cow that will not pay $10 a month.
Right here is the best water right in California. That is proved absolutely by the fact that while no other district in the state had enough water this year, we had twice as much as we needed.
There is no better vegetable land or fruit land anywhere, and the best of markets are already established. Prunes sold this year for $200 an acre on the trees.
You can buy tracts of 5 to 40 acres; only one-tenth cash; 8 years to pay out. A few bargains on partly improved places.
Come and see this country at once. We are closing out. Thirty days' delay may lose you your chance.

KUHN IRRIGATED FARMS
200,000 Acres on West Side Sacramento Valley, level, rich soil, best system of gravity irrigation in state. Main canal 190 feet wide, 60 miles long. Water costs 70c per acre, per year. Land owns the water. Sold for $135 and $150 per acre. One-fifth down, no more for four years but interest at six per cent. Ten years to pay out. 30,000 acres already sold and improved. Good roads, schools and churches. River and rail transportation. No farm over three miles from railroad. 1,000 dairy farmers now on tract. Special parties leave Fresno every Saturday for land. For particulars and literature, address
W. E. BUSH & CO., Sole Agents

RIVERGARDEN FARMS
In the heart of the great Sacramento Valley, is the largest tract of subdued river silt land ready for cultivation. A part of it is the famous Senator Fair ranch, which has grown prize winning crops and stock for many years. It is rich soil, 35 feet deep, and it sub-irrigates. No need of leveling, checking, running ditches and developing, as nature has provided for all these. Good "all purpose" land; will grow anything. Alfalfa, grain, vegetables and fruit excel. Beans now being threshed run from 25 to 37 bags per acre, and the same land grew a crop of grain hay, thus making the land produce from $125 to $200 per acre this season. Just placed on the market so come quick and get a good selection. Call, write or telephone.

SYNDICALISTS HOLD CONGRESS AT LONDON

Very Tower of Babel In Its Medley of Tongues anad Opinions

Headquarters of International Movement Hereafter to Be In Holland

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Syndicalist Congress at the Holborn Hall has ended. To say that it concluded its labors would be inaccurate, for in reality it only touched the fringe of the ambitious programme with which it set out. Many of its members seem to have gone to the meetings with the determination to speak early and often. The rules of procedure had no existence. English, French, Spanish, German were spoken by turns, and sometimes simultaneously. As a net result little light has been thrown on the ideas for which the Syndicalists stand. So long as speakers confined themselves to the repetition of famanar formulas such as a "class struggle," "international solidarity," "direct action," "emancipation," "capitalistic tyranny," and so forth, one might have imagined that the Syndicalists were united. But submitted for discussion the elements as soon as a definite proposition was were let loose.

EVERYTHING OPPOSED

Speaking generally, there was nothing a comrade might propose that some other comrades did not immediately oppose. And fierce were the passions that were aroused. In fact, the congress had to take note of some of the expressions used, and to carry a sort of resolution deprecating personalities. Yet these great resentments appeared, to the outsider, at least, to concern the difference between tweedledum and tweedledee. The chairman, Mr. "Jack" Tanner, of the Hammersmith Engineers' Trade Union, wielded his big bell, but to one paid the slightest attention.

One of the strangest ideas the delegates had of discussion was to split up into different groups, each of which proceeded to talk, in various languages, on some different aspect of a subject under consideration. Attempts to apply the closure did not always meet with success; indeed, they often seemed to protract the discussion and intimate the speakers. Sometimes the very proposer that a vote be now taken was himself an offender in this respect, and one of the French delegates was right in saying of one of the delegates from a South American state: "Il demands la cloture et il vent faire un discours."

It is small wonder that the chairman at the close of the proceedings expressed regret that in five days they had got through only two items on their agenda, which originally included nine, as well as a hope that the next Congress would be better organized. At the same time he said he desired to announce that the London group wished him to say that it took no responsibility whatever for the organization of the congress. Evidently there was something underlying this. A few moments earlier one of the Argentine delegates protested energetically against the protest which had been made by the other Argentine representative (there were only two of them). No one seemed to remember the nature of the protest in question or to take the slightest notice of the incident.

As a net result of the proceedings it was resolved that an International Syndicalist Committee should be formed, and that it should issue an official bulletin, designed to keep the branches in different countries in touch with each other. It was generally agreed that the subscription towards should be 4½d. per 1,000 members, that the maintainance of this organization is to say, 0.5 centime, or less than one-twentieth of a penny, per subscriber, but opinions were much divided on the question whether the contribution should be in the form of a subscription to the committee or a subscription to its bulletin or official organ. A battle raged round this momentous question for about one hour, at the end of which time there was a show of hands and the bulletinists had it.

HOLLAND HEADQUARTERS

Again there were divergent views as to whether the committee should have its great in Holland or in Paris. A vote was again taken and Holland won the day, nineteen delegates voting, for it as against ten for Paris. It was further resolved that the committee should consist of five "comrades," chosen by the Dutch Trade Unions, and that other bodies should be represented when grave questions should arise, but that the latter should act in a consultative capacity only. The voting was by individual members, although this system was strongly denounced by certain delegates, who pointed out that it gave an unfair advantage to those countries which had the largest number of representatives.

It was understood that the question of the time and place of meeting of the next Syndicalist Congress would be left in the hands of the committee.

A mass meeting of workers was held in the Holborn Hall in the evening, Guy Bowman presiding. The chairman described the work of the conference as linking up the revolutionaries of the world.

CAPE TOWN TO BE GREATLY ENLARGED

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 25.—The greater municipal Cape Town has come into being with the first meeting of the unified council. The event is interesting not only as the culmination of a movement which has been on foot for more than ten years, but as in indication of a remarkable development of civic energy and public spirit throughout the Cape Peninsula. It is more than a decade since a commission was appointed by the old Cape Government to inquire into the question of municipal unification. The present Chief Justice of the Union of South Africa (then Sir Henry, now Baron, de Villiers) was chairman of the commission which made an able and exhaustible report. The jealousies, rivalries, and vested interests of the various municipalities, however, prevented amalgamation for many years and it was not until last session of the Cape Provincial Council that the necessary legislation was passed.

Even now the municipality of Wynberg between Claremont and Muizenberg has decided to stand out; but the new city of Cape Town, as it is styled in the statute, will embrace old Cape Town, Sea Point, Wood Bay, Mowbray, Maitland, Rondebosch, Claremont, and Mutzenberg-Kalk Bay. The unified council consists of forty-two councillors, eighteen representing old Cape Town, while Woodstock has six representatives, and each of the others three. The new corporation takes over a municipal area nearly 30,000 acres in extent, with a population, white, colored and black, of 140,000.

CITIZENSHIP IN THIS TOWN WORTH $400 PER YEAR

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Klingenberg, a town in Southern Germany on the River Main, may lay claim to many of the characteristics of a modern Utopia. It not only supplies every resident with well paid work and relieves him of all his municipal and state taxes, but gives him an annual allowance of $400 for pin money, with occasional gifts for holiday celebrations. The fortunes of Klingenberg, which has about 1,700 inhabitants, are founded upon its deposits of clay, which on account of its fire-resisting properties is widely exported, particularly to the United States.

The deposits are worked by the municipality directly at an annual profit of $100,000, and every Klingenberger is entitled to a position as miner. The fortnightly pay day is observed as a holiday, without detriment to the regular German holidays, on which an extra payment of a dollar to a dollar and a quarter is made to every citizen to enable him to celebrate properly.

To prevent the flooding of this ideal place of residence by Germans from all parts of the Empire, it has been found necessary to limit rights of citizenship. No one is admitted without a payment of $125 to the municipal treasury. More favorable terms are granted, however, to men taking wives in the town.

GERMAN CITIES BUY UP RADIUM

Threaten Corner In Mineral Used In Treatment of Cancer

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—In view of the promising results attained in the treatment of cancer, more than a dozen German cities have voted money for the purchase of radium and its sister product, mesothorium. The appropriations range as high as $60,000 at Leipsic and $58,000 at Berlin. Munich is the only large city not yet in the market, the city council having postponed its intended appropriation of $50,000 on the ground that speculators had raised the price of radium artificially and exorbantly. The total amount voted throughout the Empire is already about $600,000, more than half the value of the world's total supply of radium at present.

Public interest in these substances has created a rare opportunity for swindlers, and radium promoters are already in the field. The German financial papers recently warned the public against an adventurer who has already tried to exploit the English and French markets with a pretended radium company and is now flooding Germany with circulars advising investment in the stock of a similar concern. He has obtained lists of possible investors and promises the customary enormous profits.

Radium institutes are springing up in every important German city, but the merits of the treatment are as usual overshadowed by a mass of extravagant claims. Among the really scientific developments reports is the application of radium and mesothorium to diseases of the ear. This is the subject of an article by Dr. Hugel in the Munich Medical Weekly. Dr. Hugel's experiments have extended over only six months, too short a time for positive general declarations, but he has treated ossification of the eardrum and diseases of the labyrinth, ailments which have hitherto defied medical treatment, and in a number of cases noted a marked improvement. The treatment is painless, and as only a small quantity of mesothorium—five milligrammes—is required, it is not expensive.

In the same publication Prof. Dr. Werner of the Samaritar House at Heidelberg, reports on an alternative treatment of cancer by a combination of chemical and radioactive treatment. He uses as the chemical element cholin, a product of the decomposition of lecithin, one of the fatty substances found in the body. It was observed about a year ago that under the influence of radium rays the lecithin of the body tended to change into cholin. This led to experiments with the introduction of cholin into the body, thereby imitating in a chemical way one of the effects of radioactive treatment. Prof. Werner has now treated several hundred cases and reports in a considerable percentage decided improvement. In some instances the complete disappearance of the growth under treatment has been noted, though only time can tell whether actual cures have been scored.

One of the advantages claimed by Prof. Werner for his method of treatment is that the amount of radium required is greatly reduced.

WEEK OF PRAYER FOR BRITISH SUFFRAGISTS

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The first week of November is to be observed by the suffragists of the United Kingdom as a national week of prayer for woman suffrage. A call has been issued by various suffrage societies of the Catholic Church, the Church of England, Jewish League, the Quakers, the Scottish churches, and other bodies.

The preamble invites the prayers of all suffragists "in the belief that the enfranchisement of women is in accordance with the will of God." The observance is proposed in the following manner: "Every individual suffragist who recognizes that the claim for the enfranchisement of women is based on justice and righteousness, and can be rightly and conscientiously pleaded before God, is asked to join in this week of prayer."

WILL BUILD LONGEST BRIDGE IN WORLD TO RUGEN

Island to Be Connected With German Mainland At Cost of $5,000,000

Annual Ferry Passenger Service Has Already Reached 100,000

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—It seems probable that next year a commencement will be made with the construction of the railway bridge between Rugen and the mainland, which will be the longest in the world, exceeding even that over Hoanghe, with its 3,530 yards. The cost of this great engineering work is however, not expected to amount to more than $5,000,000, or less than a third of that of the Forth Bridge.

It would appear to be rather the success of the train ferry from Sassnitz to Trelleborg, in Sweden, than the ever-increasing popularity of Rugen as a holiday resort, which has led to the projecting of the contemplated viaduct. Originally it was estimated that the number of railway passengers to cross the island would reach 100,000 route proved that this figure was already in 1915, but so popular has the most attained last year.

When the bridge, which, it is said, is to include a track for pedestrians, though none for road traffic, is completed, it will substantially shorten the journeys between Berlin and Hamburg, on the one hand, and Stockholm and Christiania on the other.

MANY BETROTHALS BROKEN IN LONDON

Feminist Movement Tends to Break Up Prospective Marriages

LONDON, Oct. 25.—During the last few weeks the society columns of the London papers have contained an ever increasing number of announcements of broken marriage engagements.

Many explanations have been put forward for this public admission of disagreements between engaged couples. The poet naturally explains it by reasoning that spring is the time for love making and fall for waning affections, and as the autumn months come along the lovers find that they are not suited to one another. Others, however, blame the feminist movement which now has to stand the brunt of so many attacks.

Charles Garvice, the novelist, advances this reason: "I do not mean," he said, "that all women and girls are suffragists, or are even in sympathy with the movement, but it undoubtedly has led the girl of today to take a broader view of life than her mother did. The worldly minded mother fifty years ago, whose daughter was carefully guarded and secluded, had little difficulty in persuading the girl into a desirable marriage. Conditions have change since those days, and a girl is now brave enough, if she finds after having been engaged to a man for a few weeks that marriage would mean future unhappiness, to break the engagement."

REPORTS VALUABLE MARBLE DEPOSITS IN SPITZBERGEN

CHRISTIANIA, Oct. 25.—Mr. Mansfield, head of the Northern Exploration Company's Works in Spitzbergen who has just passed through Christiania on his way to England, showed a large collection of colored photographs of different varieties of marble found in Spitzbergen. He stated that by employing drilling machines he had proved that solid marble existed at a depth of 75 feet, and that the marble is found over a wide expanse of territory.

EXILED GRAND DUKE LIVING IN LONDON

Second Member of Russian Royal Family With Morganatic Wife

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, the only brother of the Emperor of Russia, who aroused the displeasure of his royal brother by his marriage to a Viennese woman not of royal parentage, has taken up his residence in England, thus adding to the interesting colony of exiles who have made this country their home.

The Grand Duke has taken a long lease of Knebworth House, the ancestral seat of Lord Lytton, near Hertford, and has already moved in. This makes the second Russian Grand Duke who because of a morganatic marriage has come to England to stay. The other, the Grand Duke Michael Michaelvitch, a first cousin once removed from the Emperor, who married Countess Torby, has a home at Hempstead. His two daughters are almost as English as their neighbors, and his wife, still known as Countess Torby, has for years taken a prominent part in the social life of London and England generally.

The Emperor's brother doubtless will be just as welcome in English society. His mother, the Dowager Empress Marie, is a sister of the Queen Mother of England, and despite the fact that his marriage did not please his family it is not likely to make any difference to his social status in this country.

HEIR TO THRONE OF GERMANY AT OUTS WITH FATHER

Stays Away From Dantzig On Account of Kaiser's Recent Visit

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Long current reports of strained relations between Emperor William and his son, the Crown Prince, found support in the absence of the Crown Prince on the occasion of the Emperor's visit to Dantzig and Langfuhr early this month. On his return from a hunting trip to his great estate at Ramitten, the Emperor made a detour to call upon the regiments of the Life Guard Hussar brigade, of which the Crown Prince commands the first regiment. Every other officer of the brigade, including Prince Friedrich Sigismund and Prince Friedrich Karl of Prussia, the brigade commander, the corps commander and the inspector general of the eastern army corps gathered to welcome his majesty, some of them sacrificing their annual leaves for the purpose. The Crown Prince, however, departed unceremoniously a few days earlier for a hunting trip in the Bavarian highlands.

It is reported that the Crown Prince is more and more dissatisfied with his exile in the eastern provinces of the Empire, a displeasure which has been intensified by the apparently inspired reports printed from time to time that on the expiration of his tour of duty in command of a cavalry regiment he would be given an infantry regiment, likewise in the provinces, either at Dantzig or at Breslau, an industrial town in the center of the Silesian mining and manufacturing district and many, many hours from the delights and comforts of Berlin. Court gossip a short time before the Emperor's Langfuhr visit had it that the Crown Prince was making every endeavor to obtain a detail to the general staff at Berlin. But as his residence in Berlin would be an invitation to the dissatisfied and disgruntled in court, military and political life to gather around him and form that "Crown Prince clique" which tends to collect about every heir to a throne, indications are that the "exile" may be continued for a year or two longer.

Overworked Women

If you were offered sure aid in time of trouble, would you put it aside and accept something of doubtful efficiency?

If you saw before you a strong and safe bridge leading to your goal, would you ignore it and try some insecure and tottering structure? You would, of course, choose without hesitation that which all evidence showed to be the safest and best for you. Why then, do some women risk their most precious possession—their health—because of some unwarranted prejudice against an advertised medicine?

You know, or should know, that for nearly forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for woman's special ills. No medicine without great merit could have stood the test all these years and attained the largest sale and greatest success of any medicine in the world for this particular purpose.

Therefore, is it fair for you or anyone to say, without giving this great medicine a trial, "I don't believe it will help me."

Read the following genuine and truthful letters—only two of many thousands from grateful women:—

Letter from Miss Grace Dodds, Bethlehem, N.H.—"By working very hard, sweeping carpets, washing, ironing, lifting heavy baskets of clothes, etc., I got all run down. I was sick in bed every month. This last Spring my mother got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and already I feel like another girl. I am regular and do not have the pains that I did, and do not have to go to bed. I will tell all my friends what the Compound is doing for me."—Miss GRACIE B. DODDS, Box 133, Bethlehem, N.H.

Letter from Mrs. Etta Donovan, Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony, backache, irregularities, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk up stairs without stopping on the way. I was all run down in every way. I tried three doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said it was no use for me to take anything as nothing would restore me to health again. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and by taking seven bottles of the Compound and other treatment you advised, I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, 762 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.
